No. 1209.—A despatch by Lieutenant-General Sir P. H. N. Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., on the operations of Indian Expeditionary Force "D" from the 19th January to the 30th April 1916, is published for general information :

No. 168-31-O.

General Headquarters,

I. E. F. "D."

Dated the 12th August 1916.

FROM

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR P. H. N. LAKE, K. C. B., K. C. M. G.,

Commanding Indian Expeditionary Force "D."

To

THE CHIEF OF THE GENERAL STAFF,

Army Headquarters, Simla, India.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit a despatch describing the operations of the Force under my command, from January 19th, 1916, the date of my assuming command, up to April 30th, 1916.

2. Sir John Nixon's last despatches, dated January 17th, referred to General Aylmer's advance from Ali Gharbi ; his capture of the Turkish position at Shaikh

Saad after severe fighting on the 6th, 7th and 8th January; the battle of 13th and 14th January on the Wadi River, and the retreat of the enemy to an entrenched position across the Umm-al-Hannah defile.

3. The period now under report includes three phases in the further attempt to relieve Kut:—

1st Phase.—19th to 23rd January.—Unsuccessful attempt to force the Hannah defile. Commander—Lieutenant-General Sir F. Aylmer.

2nd Phase.—24th January to 10th March.—A period of rest and reorganisation, followed by the unsuccessful attempt to outflank the enemy's right in the vicinity of the Dujailah Redoubt.

Commander—Lieutenant-General Sir F. Aylmer.

3rd Phase.—11th March to 30th April.—A brief period of preparation, followed by the attack and capture of the Hannah and Falahiyah positions; failure to force the Sannaiyat position; and fall of Kut.

Commander—Lieutenant-General Sir G. F. Gorringe.

4. The general position of affairs on the Tigris front on January 19th, 1916, was that the bulk of General Aylmer's force, after the heavy fighting referred to in paragraph 2, was encamped on the left bank of the Tigris, above the Wadi River; the advanced troops were in touch with the Turks entrenched in their Umm-al-Hannah position. General Aylmer was actively engaged in re-organising his force for a further advance with the least possible delay. He fully realised that an immediate advance must involve some deficiencies in his organisation and fighting strength, but was influenced by the following factors:—

(i) General Townshend's reports as to the limit of his food supplies, and the influence of food supply questions generally on the operations of the relieving column.

(ii) General Townshend's anxiety about the sufficiency of his ammunition supply and the condition of some of his troops.

(iii) The rapidity with which the Turks might be able to reinforce the troops opposed to General Townshend, and the desirability of forestalling them.

It was, I understand, these three considerations that had mainly influenced my predecessor in ordering General Aylmer to advance as early in January as possible with the force which would then be concentrated at Ali Gharbi.

It was not until after the heavy fighting for the Hannah position on January 21st that General Townshend's report of January 25th, 1916—to the effect that as regards food supplies he could hold out for another 84 days—reached General Headquarters.

5. The difficulty experienced in pushing up reinforcements, supplies and munitions of war to the front seriously affected the operations.

The number of steamers available in January 1916 for river transport purposes was practically the same as when, in June 1915, the first advance up the Tigris took place. Additional river craft had from time to time been demanded as augmentations to the force in Mesopotamia were decided upon, but, owing to the peculiar conditions which vessels intended for the intricate navigation of the Tigris have to satisfy, the provision of these vessels was a difficult problem, necessarily entailing long delays, and the supply was never able to keep pace with the requirements of the force.

In consequence of this, it was never possible during the period now under report either to concentrate at the Tigris front the whole of the forces available in the country, or to equip such forces as could be concentrated there with sufficient transport to make them mobile and enable them to operate freely at any distance from the river.

It was always necessary, therefore, for General Headquarters to balance most carefully the flow of reinforcements and supplies, so that the former should not outrun the latter.

1st Phase. 19th to 23rd January.

6. After the battle of Wadi River, General Aylmer's leading troops had followed the retreating Turks to the Umm-al-Hannah position and entrenched themselves at the mouth of the defile, so as to shut the enemy in and limit his power of taking the offensive.

7. The weather at this period was extraordinarily unfavourable. Heavy rains caused the river to come down in flood, and overflow its banks, and converted the ground on either bank into a veritable bog.

Our bridge across the Wadi was washed away several times, while the boisterous winds greatly interfered with the construction of a bridge across the Tigris, here some 400 yards in width.

8. It was essential to establish artillery on the right bank of the Tigris so as to support, by enfilading fire, the attack of our infantry against the Hannah position.

9. Guns and troops were ferried across, with difficulty, owing to the high wind and heavy squalls of rain; but by the 19th all troops allotted to the right bank had crossed over and were established in the positions from which they were required to co-operate with the main force on the left bank.

10. Meanwhile the leading infantry brigades on the left bank had pushed nearer the enemy. January the 20th was devoted to a systematic bombardment of his position, and during the night the infantry pushed forward their advanced line to within 200 yards of the enemy's trenches.

11. On the morning of the 21st, under cover of an intensive artillery bombardment, our infantry moved to the attack.

On our right the troops got to within 100 yards of the enemy's line but were unable to advance further. Our left column, consisting of the Black Watch, 6th Jats and 41st Dogras, penetrated the front line with a rush, capturing trenches which they held for about an hour and a half. Supports were sent forward, but, losing direction and coming under heavy fire, failed to reach them. Thus, left unsupported, our previously successful troops, when Turkish counter-attacks developed, were overwhelmed by numbers and forced to retire.

12. Heavy rain now began to fall and continued throughout the day. Telephone communication broke down, and communication by orderly became slow and uncertain.

After further artillery bombardment the attack was renewed at 1 p.m., but by this time the heavy rain had converted the ground into a sea of mud, rendering rapid movement impossible. The enemy's fire was heavy and effective, inflicting severe losses, and though every effort was made, the assault failed.

Our troops maintained their position until dark and then slowly withdrew to the main trenches which had been previously occupied, some 1,300 yards from those of the enemy.

13. As far as possible all the wounded were brought in during the withdrawal, but their sufferings and hardships were acute under the existing climatic conditions, when vehicles and stretcher bearers could scarcely move in the deep mud.

14. To renew the attack on the 22nd was not practicable. The losses on the 21st had been heavy, the ground was still a quagmire and the troops exhausted. A six hours' armistice was arranged, in order to bury the dead and remove the wounded to shelter.

15. I cannot sufficiently express my admiration for the courage and dogged determination of the force engaged. For days they bivouacked in driving rain on soaked and sodden ground. Three times they were called upon to advance over a perfectly flat country, deep in mud, and absolutely devoid of cover, against well constructed and well planned trenches, manned by a brave and stubborn enemy approximately their equal in numbers. They showed a spirit of endurance and self-sacrifice of which their country may well be proud.

2nd Phase. 24th January to 10th March.

16. The hurried improvisation of temporary brigades, divisions, etc., with which the force had been obliged to commence its advance from Ali Gharbi was now showing its inherent weakness. Divisions and brigades, the units of which knew each other and had served together in France, had perforce been broken up to meet the difficulties of transport on a long sea voyage. There had been no time on arrival in Mesopotamia to await belated units. In many cases, Field Ambulances had arrived after the combatant units. Brigade and divisional formations had been made up with such units as were first available. This was a severe handicap to the troops, and steps were now taken to reconstitute formations as far as possible in their original condition.

17. Throughout the month of February, preparations were made for resuming the offensive. Reinforcements were pushed up from the Base by steamer and route march; reorganisation and training were carried on at the front. On the left bank our trenches were again pushed forward towards the Hannah position. Frequent reconnaissances were made by land and air on both banks. During this period no severe fighting took place, though several minor operations were undertaken to gain information and to harass the enemy. On February 11th the bridge which had been destroyed by floods on January 14th was replaced.

18. The situation at the end of February was briefly as follows:—

On the left bank, the enemy, having been reinforced, still held the Hannah position in force; further in rear were other defensive lines, at Falahiyah, Sannaiyat, Nakhailat, and along the northern part of the Es Sinn position. All except the last named had been constructed since the battle of Hannah on 21st January. They were all protected on both flanks by the Tigris and the Suwaikieh Marsh respectively. On the right bank, the Es Sinn position constituted the Turkish main line of defence, with an advanced position near Beit Aiessa. The right flank of the Es Sinn position rested on the Dujailah Redoubt, which lay some five miles south of the river and 14 miles south-west of the British lines on the right bank.

19. It was decided to attack the Turkish right flank and Dujailah Redoubt, as the first step towards the relief of Kut before the arrival of the flood season, expected about the middle of March. It was feared that, as soon as the Tigris came down in flood, the Turks would cut the bunds and so flood the country as to render further offensive operations impracticable.

The whole area was so flat that there was hardly any portion of it which could safely be said to be above flood level.

20. General Aylmer made his arrangements accordingly. He decided not to wait for further reinforcements, but to advance with the maximum force for which land transport could be made available with two days' food and water. To conceal his intentions during the period of preparation, our artillery on both banks engaged the enemy's trenches on the left bank, whilst the force in front of the Hannah position displayed great activity.

21. Operations were again interrupted at the beginning of March by adverse weather conditions. This delay was unfortunate, as it gave time to the enemy to construct trenches closing the gap which had hitherto existed between Dujailah Redoubt and the Hai River.

22. On the afternoon of March 7th, General Aylmer assembled his subordinate commanders and gave his final instructions, laying particular stress on the fact that the operation was designed to effect a surprise; and that, to prevent the enemy forestalling us, it was essential that the first phase of the operation, i.e., the capture of the Dujailah Redoubt, should be pushed through with the utmost vigour.

23. His dispositions were briefly as follows:—

The greater part of a division under General Younghusband, assisted by Naval Gunboats, contained the enemy on the left bank. The remaining troops were formed into two columns, under General Kemball and General Keary, respectively, a reserve of infantry and the Cavalry Brigade being held at the Corps Commander's own disposal. Kemball's column, covered on the outer flank by the Cavalry Brigade, was to make a turning movement to attack the Dujailah Redoubt from the south, supported by the remainder of the force operating from a position to the east of the Redoubt.

24. The night march by this large force, which led across the enemy's front to a position on his right flank, was a difficult operation, entailing movement over unknown ground and requiring most careful arrangements to attain success. Thanks to excellent staff work and good march discipline, the troops reached their allotted positions apparently undiscovered by the enemy, but while Keary's column was in position at daybreak ready to support Kemball's attack, the latter's command did not reach the point selected for its deployment, in the Dujailah depression, until more than an hour later. This delay was highly prejudicial to the success of the operation.

25. In spite of their late arrival the presence of so large a force seems to have been quite unexpected by the Turks, as Dujailah Redoubt was apparently lightly held when our columns reached their allotted positions. Prompt and energetic action would probably have forestalled the enemy's reinforcements. But time was lost by waiting for the guns to register and to carry out reconnaissances, and when, nearly three hours later, Kemball's troops advanced to the attack, they were strongly opposed by the enemy from trenches cleverly concealed in the brushwood, and were unable to make further ground for some time, though assisted by Keary's attack upon the Redoubt from the east.

The southern attack was now reinforced, and by 1 P.M. had pushed forward to within 500 yards of the Redoubt, but concealed trenches again stopped further progress and the Turks made several counter-attacks with reinforcements which had by now arrived from the direction of Magasis.

26. It was about this time that the Corps Commander received from his Engineer officers the unwelcome news that the water supply contained in rain-water pools in the Dujailah depression, upon which he had reckoned, was insufficient, and could not be increased by digging. It was clear therefore that unless the Dujailah Redoubt could be carried that day, the scarcity of water would of itself compel our troops to fall back. Preparations were accordingly made for a further assault on the Redoubt and at 5-15 P.M. attacks were launched from the south and east under cover of a heavy bombardment. The 9th and 28th Infantry Brigades got within 200 yards of the southern face where they were held up by heavy fire, although reinforced. Meanwhile, the 8th Infantry Brigade supported by the 37th had assaulted from the east; the two leading battalions of the former, the Manchesters and 59th Rifles, and some of the 37th Infantry Brigade, succeeded in gaining a foot-hold in the Redoubt. But here they were heavily counter-attacked by large enemy reinforcements, and being subjected to an extremely rapid and accurate shrapnel fire from concealed guns in the vicinity of Sinn Aftar, they were forced to fall back to the position from which they started.

27. The troops, who had been under arms for some 30 hours including a long night march, were now much exhausted, and General Aylmer considered that a renewal of the assault during the night 8th-9th March could not be made with any prospect of success. Next morning the enemy's position was found to be unchanged, and General Aylmer, finding himself faced with the deficiency of water already referred to, decided upon the immediate withdrawal of his force to Wadi, which was reached the same night.

28. The evacuation of our wounded had preceded our retirement. The first parties of wounded reached Wadi at 4 P.M. on March 9th, and the last wounded man was attended to in hospital at that place at 2 A.M., March 10th. The Corps Commander speaks in high terms of the gallantry and devotion displayed by officers and subordinates of the Medical Service and Army Bearer Corps during the fighting. They collected and attended to the wounded under heavy fire in a manner which called forth the admiration of the whole force.

3rd Phase. 11th March to 30th April.

29. No further operations of any importance occurred during March, though minor engagements took place on the right bank, in which enemy trenches were taken and prisoners captured. But rain fell, and the Tigris came down in heavy flood on March 15th, causing extensive inundations which compelled our troops to evacuate their advanced positions on that bank. For the remainder of the month there was a strenuous struggle with the inundations, to prevent the whole country being flooded. Every available man was engaged in digging embankments, and operations were temporarily suspended.

30. On March 12th, Major-General Sir G. F. Gorringe succeeded to the command of the Corps. Fresh troops now began to arrive up-river and it was decided to renew active operations as soon as this reinforcement was complete. Careful investigations were made, meanwhile, as to the feasibility of an advance on Kut by the right bank from Shaikh Saad, but as enquiry showed that the country along this route was not flood proof and would be liable to inundation by the breaking of the bunds on the right bank of the Tigris, which were under Turkish control, it was decided that conditions were more favourable for an attack on the Hannah position, and an advance up the left bank.

Preparations were accordingly made for putting this plan into action.

31. The VII Division had been engaged in sapping up to the enemy's front trenches, continually under heavy fire and hampered by floods. By March 28th, their sap-heads were 150 yards from the Turkish front line.

On April 1st, the XIII Division moved up from Shaikh Saad to relieve them in the front trenches preparatory to the assault. Heavy rain fell, however, on this and the following day, and floods rendered some of the positions of our troops on the right bank untenable. The ground became impassable, and operations had to be postponed.

32. By the evening of April 4th, the ground had dried sufficiently for the assault. At daylight the next morning the XIII Division jumped out of their trenches and rushed the Turkish first and second lines in quick succession. Our artillery and machine guns at once opened on the third and other lines in rear, and by 7 A.M. the whole position was in our hands.

33. The attack on Hannah had been prepared with the greatest care, and was brilliantly executed by General Maude and the XIII Division. The enemy's position was a maze of deep trenches occupying a frontage of only 1,300 yards between the Tigris and the Suwaikieh Marsh, and extending for 2,600 yards from front to rear. Although it was lightly held by the Turks with a few companies and some machine guns, it was a position of great strength.

34. Meanwhile, on the right bank, the III Division had been gaining ground. In the morning the 8th Infantry Brigade, led by the Manchesters, captured the Turkish position on Abu Roman mounds. An attempt by the enemy to recapture this position in the afternoon was beaten off.

During the day the river rose considerably, and it was evident that a fresh flood was coming down. This pointed to the urgency of capturing the Falahiyah and Sannaiyat positions, 3 and 6 miles respectively west of the Hannah position, before the rising river should enable the Turks to flood the country between us, by opening the bunds.

35. After nightfall a heavy bombardment was directed on the Falahiyah position from 7-15 P.M. to 7-30 P.M., after which the XIII Division assaulted and captured a series of deep trenches in several lines. The position was stubbornly held by about 3 battalions of Turks, but by 9-30 P.M. it was completely in our hands and consolidated.

The 38th Infantry Brigade and the Warwicks and Worcesters of the 39th Infantry Brigade did particularly well in this assault. High praise is due to Major-General Maude, his brigade commanders and all under their commands for this successful night attack. The Division suffered some 1,300 casualties during the day.

36. The VII Division, which had hitherto been in support, now moved forward, and passing through the XIII Division, took up a position about two miles east of Sannaiyat, ready to attack the northern portion of these entrenchments at dawn on April 6th. The line of direction was to be maintained by moving with the left flank along a communication trench which joined the Falahiyah and Sannaiyat positions. Previous reconnaissance of the terrain to be traversed had of course been impossible during daylight, as it was then still occupied by the Turks.

37. The passage, however, of numerous and deep cross trenches so hampered the advance that, at dawn, when the assault was to have taken place, the troops were still some 2,300 yards from the enemy's position. This delay was fatal to their chance of success, as the ground was perfectly flat and without any vestige of cover. In these circumstances it would have been wiser to have postponed the attack at the last moment. The advance was however continued with the greatest gallantry under heavy artillery and machine gun fire, to within 700 yards of the Turkish trenches. Here the attacking lines were checked, and eventually fell back on to the supporting 3rd line, where they dug themselves in at about 1,000 yards from the enemy.

38. During the night of 5th-6th April and throughout the 6th the river rose steadily, until at mid-day it reached the highest level of the year. The wind changed to the north and blew the water of the Suwaikieh Marsh southwards across the right of the VII Division; protecting bunds along both the Tigris and the edge of the marsh had then to be constructed under the enemy's fire. Our guns were surrounded by floods, and for some time the position was distinctly critical.

The Marsh continued to encroach so much on the ground occupied by the VII Division that all efforts had to be devoted to securing from the floods the positions already gained. On the right bank the inundations rendered communication most difficult, and threatened to isolate the III Division altogether. On April 8th, in face of many difficulties, a new bridge over the Tigris was completed at Falahiyah.

39. During the night 8th-9th April the XIII Division took the place of the VII Division in the trenches, and at 4-20 A.M. advanced to the assault on Sannaiyat. When within 300 yards of the enemy's front line they were discovered by the Turks, who sent up "Very" lights and flares and opened a heavy rifle and gun fire. The first line, including detachments of the 6th K.O. Royal Lancaster Regiment, 8th Welsh Fusiliers, 6th L. North Lancashire Regiment and 5th Wiltshire Regiment, penetrated the centre of the enemy's front line trench. In the glare of the lights the second line lost direction, wavered, and fell back on the third and fourth lines. Support thus failed to reach the front line at the critical moment, in spite of the most gallant and energetic attempts of officers concerned to remedy matters.

Our troops who had reached the enemy's trenches were heavily counter-attacked by superior numbers and driven back to from 300 to 500 yards from the enemy's line, where brigades dug themselves in.

40. I had been at Wadi in close touch with the Corps Commander since April 6th, and after the failure of this attack we met and discussed the situation together in detail. While it was clearly very desirable to secure the Sannaiyat position with its obvious advantages, yet we had to bear in mind how very short the time at our disposal was if Kut was to be relieved, and the delay which a systematic approach by sapping right up to the position must involve. It was therefore decided that another attempt to force the enemy's right about the Sinn Aftar Redoubt offered prospects of speedier success.

41. General Gorringe accordingly proceeded to make the necessary arrangements for this move. As will be understood, it involved securing the control of the river bunds which were covered by the enemy's advanced position at Beit Aiessa, and establishing communications across the intervening flooded areas which must be traversed before we could reach that position. It should be borne in mind that there is no such thing as a road, in the sense in which we use the word, in this part of the country, and that no road material or metalling of any sort exists ; yet in order to supply the troops with food and ammunition when they should have succeeded in crossing the inundations, some sort of permanent track above flood level, along which transport could work, was essential.

42. The VII Division now again took over and pushed forward the trench work in front of Sannaiyat as far as constant interruptions by floods would permit. The XIII Division was held back near Falahiyah Bridge in reserve.

43. On April 12th, the III Division, advancing across belts of inundation intersected by deep cuts, drove in the enemy's piquets east of Beit Aiessa and occupied their outpost line, consolidating their position during the night.

On April 15th and 16th, some of the enemy's advanced trenches were captured and counter-attacks were repulsed. Our new line was consolidated by night, guns were moved forward and preparations were made for the attack of the main Beit Aiessa position on the morning of the 17th.

44. Under cover of an intense bombardment, the 7th and 9th Infantry Brigades advanced at 6-45 A.M. and actually reached the Turkish trenches before our artillery fire lifted. When the bombardment ceased they leapt into the trenches, bayonetted numbers of the enemy and the Beit Aiessa position was soon in our hands. The enemey left 200 to 300 dead in the trenches and 180 prisoners were captured.

These operations, culminating in the capture of Beit Aiessa, reflect great credit on Major-General Keary and the troops under his command. Steady and consistent progress was made day after day in spite of most difficult conditions and often with a shortage of rations which the transport was heavily strained to bring forward.

45. Orders were now issued for the XIII Division to move up in relief of the III Division, after dark, the latter to concentrate on the left rear of the XIII preparatory to further operations next day.

46. At 5 P.M. the enemy's artillery commenced to bombard Beit Aiessa and to establish a barrage in rear of the III Division, sweeping the passage through the swamps along which its communications lay. An hour later a very strong counter-attack came from the south-west. In spite of heavy shelling from our guns the attack was pressed home against the 9th Infantry Brigade, from which a double company had been pushed forward to guard two captured guns which could not be brought in during daylight. In retiring the double company masked our fire ; the 9th Infantry Brigade was pressed and gave ground, exposing the left of the 7th Infantry Brigade which was also forced back. Our troops rallied on the 8th Infantry Brigade which was holding its ground firmly on the left of the line, and on a portion of the 7th Infantry Brigade.

Reinforcements from the XIII Division were already moving forward, but owing to the darkness and boggy ground they were delayed and some hours elapsed before they arrived.

The attack which commenced at 6 P.M. was followed by a series of heavy attacks throughout the night, the 8th Infantry Brigade on the left repelling as many as six such attacks. But our line held firm, and the enemy retreated at dawn, having suffered losses estimated at 4,000 to 5,000 men.

47. In this engagement the following units particularly distinguished themselves by their steadiness and gallantry :—1st Battalion Connaught Rangers, 27th Punjabis, 89th Punjabis, 47th Sikhs and 59th Rifles—also the South Lancs., East Lancs., and Wiltshire Regiments. The 66th and 14th Batteries Royal Field Artillery did good service, also the 23rd Mountain Battery, which expended all its ammunition, and did great execution at close range. Generals Egerton and Campbell, who commanded the brigades most heavily engaged, set a fine example of coolness and gallantry in the hand to hand fighting which took place.

Although the enemy had suffered heavy losses and had failed to obtain any success after their initial rush, they had checked our advance and regained that portion of Beit Aiessa nearest the river which included the bunds controlling the inundations. Its recapture was essential.

48. During the succeeding days some progress in this direction was made by trench fighting and by consolidating positions pushed out towards Sinn Aftar. The boggy nature of the ground made movement difficult, and many of the troops were worn out with fatigue.

Meanwhile on the left bank, although frequently interrupted by floods, the VII Division had been steadily pushing forward saps, and as there were some signs of a weakening of the enemy's forces at Sannaiyat, there appeared to be an opportunity to make another attempt to capture that position. The VII Division was ordered to prepare for an assault on the 20th supported by troops from the right bank. But on the afternoon of the 19th, the wind veered round to the north, water from the marsh flooding their trenches and the ground in front of them; the attack had therefore to be postponed.

49. Throughout the 20th and 21st the Sannaiyat position was bombarded. Arrangements were made for the assault to take place next morning on a front which eventually had to be reduced to that of one brigade, the extreme width of passable ground being only 300 yards. After preliminary bombardment, the VII Division advanced, the 19th Infantry Brigade leading. Besides our artillery on both banks, massed machine guns on the right bank covered our advance. The leading troops carried the enemy's first and second lines in their immediate front, several of the trenches being flooded, but only a few men were able to reach the third line.

50. Large Turkish reinforcements now came up. They delivered a strong counter-attack, which was repulsed. A second counter-attack however succeeded in forcing our troops back, as many men were unable to use their rifles, which had become choked with mud in crossing the flooded trenches, and so were unable to reply to the enemy's fire. By 8-40 A.M., our men were back in their own trenches.

51. By mutual consent parties went out, under the Red Cross and Red Crescent flags, to collect their respective wounded. The Turkish casualties appear to have been heavy as they were evacuating wounded until nightfall. Our casualties amounted to about 1,300.

52. Persistent and repeated attempts on both banks had thus failed, and it was known that at the outside not more than 6 days' supplies remained to the Kut garrison. General Gorringe's troops were nearly worn out. The same troops had advanced time and again to assault positions strong by art and held by a determined enemy. For 18 consecutive days they had done all that men could do to overcome, not only the enemy, but also exceptional climatic and physical obstacles—and this on a scale of rations which was far from being sufficient, in view of the exertions they had undergone, but which the shortage of river transport had made it impossible to augment. The need for rest was imperative.

53. There remained but one chance if the relief of Kut was to be accomplished, and that was the introduction by some means of additional supplies into General Townshend's camp, which would enable him to hold out for a still longer period.

Faint as the chance was, the "Julnar", one of the fastest steamers on the river, had for some days been under preparation by the Royal Navy for an attempt to run the enemy's blockade.

54. At 8 P.M., on April 24th with a crew from the Royal Navy under Lieutenant Firman, R.N., assisted by Lieutenant Commander Cowley, R.N.V.R., the "Julnar" carrying 270 tons of supplies, left Falahiyah in an attempt to reach Kut.

Her departure was covered by all artillery and machine gun fire that could be brought to bear, in the hope of distracting the enemy's attention. She was, however, discovered and shelled on her passage up the river. At 1 A.M. on the 25th General Townshend reported that she had not arrived and that at midnight a burst of heavy firing had been heard at Magasis, some 8½ miles from Kut by river, which had suddenly ceased.

There could be but little doubt that the enterprise had failed, and next day the Air Service reported the "Julnar" in the hands of the Turks at Magasis.

55. The leaders of this brave attempt, Lieutenant H. O. B. Firman, R. N., and his assistant Lieutenant-Commander C. H. Cowley, R. N. V. R.,—the latter of whom had throughout the campaign in Mesopotamia performed magnificent service in command of the "Medjidieh"—have been reported by the Turks to have been killed; the remainder of the gallant crew, including 5 wounded, are prisoners of war.

56. In the hope of prolonging the resistance of Kut for even a day or two the Royal Flying Corps and Royal Naval Air Service had dropped into Kut between April 16th and April 29th approximately 8 tons of supplies, besides fishing nets, medicines and specie.

Although these supplies could not materially alter the course of the siege, it was a performance which is deserving of high praise, for it involved a great strain on the pilots, and the journeys were subject to attacks by enemy aircraft of superior speed and fighting capacity. One of our machines was shot down while engaged on this supply service, another was damaged but brought home safely with great skill.

57. With the failure of the "Julnar" there was no further hope of extending the food limit of the garrison of Kut. Everything that was possible with the means to hand had been attempted. The troops only desisted from their efforts when, through battle losses, sickness and exhaustion, the limit of human endurance had been reached. On April 29th Kut surrendered.

I need not enlarge upon the bitter disappointment felt by all ranks on the Tigris Line at the failure of their attempt to relieve their comrades in Kut. It was mitigated by His Majesty the King's gracious message of May 7th, 1916, in which His Majesty expressed his feeling that his troops had done all that was humanly possible.

58. By the courtesy of the Turkish Commander-in-Chief Major-General Khalil Pasha, I was able to arrange, on April 30th and the following days, that all the more serious cases among the sick and wounded of the garrison of Kut should be handed over to me in exchange for an equivalent number of Turkish prisoners. In this connection I should like to acknowledge my indebtedness to Captain Hon. A. Herbert, M.P., Irish Guards, and Captain T. E. Lawrence, General Staff, Intelligence, Egypt, who greatly assisted me in these negotiations.

59. This report would be incomplete without some reference to occurrences in the other parts of Mesopotamia. During practically the whole period under review, neither the Turks on the Euphrates nor the Arab tribes in the vicinity of that river have given us any trouble. When however in January the advance against the hostile positions in front of Kut took place, it was thought advisable to make a demonstration northwards to a short distance from our advanced post at Nasiriyah, with a view to deferring as many of the hostile tribes on the Hai River as possible from joining forces with the enemy.

60. The major portion of the force at Nasiriyah accordingly moved out at the beginning of January and encamped in the neighbourhood of Butaniyah Lake. Early in February, when the object in view had been attained, the troops returned to Nasiriyah. On the return journey some of the villages, with whom friendly relations had hitherto obtained, apparently mistaking our movement for a retreat, treacherously attacked our rearguard. The attack was beaten off, a party of the Royal West Kents and the 30th Mountain Battery behaving very gallantly. A small force marched out the following morning from Nasiriyah, surprised and destroyed the offending villages in retaliation for their treachery.

Nothing of importance occurred on the Karun Line; that country and the neighbourhood of the Oilfields, as well as the country to the west and the south of Basrah, remaining quiet and undisturbed throughout the period under review.

61. When my predecessor, General Sir John Nixon, submitted his despatch of January 17th, 1916, he had had no opportunity of bringing to notice the names of those officers and men who had distinguished themselves during the actions at Shaikh Saad from 6th to 8th January, and at the Wadi River on 13th January 1916. I have therefore included them in this report.

62. I desire to place on record my appreciation of the services rendered by Lieutenant-General Sir F. Aylmer. Faced by great climatic and other difficulties, and unable, for reasons already referred to, to allow himself the time for reorganisation and preparation which under other circumstances he would have deemed essential, he applied himself to a difficult task with an energy, ability and determination which enabled him twice to defeat a brave enemy at least equal to himself in numbers, and which would in all probability have carried him to success at the Umm-al-Hannah position but for weather conditions which proved an almost insurmountable obstacle.

Major General (temporary Lieutenant-General) Sir G. F. Gorringe has rendered valuable service to the State. As Chief of the Staff to the Tigris column from January 28th, and in command of the column from March 12th onwards he has shown untiring energy, ability and devotion, in dealing with the many difficult situations which he had to face. He is a commander of proved ability in the field.

Major-General C. V. F. Townshend has already shown himself a fine commander of troops in action and a tactician of no mean ability. It was mainly his personal example of cheerfulness, courage and resource which inspired the garrison of Kut to sustain a siege of nearly 5 months, under every sort of trial, until sheer starvation compelled surrender.

Major-General H. d'U. Keary, after commanding his division in France with distinction, has led it with resource and success throughout the operations under review. He could always be depended upon to handle his division with skill in any operation with which he was entrusted.

Colonel (temporary Major-General) H. T. Brooking has displayed much ability in his administration of the Euphrates area, and in the various minor operations which he has conducted.

63. This campaign in Mesopotamia has been one in which the difficulties experienced by the troops in actual contact with the enemy have been all but equalled by those which have had to be faced by the Headquarters and Lines of Communication Staffs and the Departments of the Army, upon whose exertions it depended that their comrades in the fighting line should be fed and supplied with the material they required to enable them to carry out their arduous task.

Major-General M. Cowper, as head of my Administrative Staff, has rendered most valuable service. His energy and ability when things threatened to go wrong and an awkward emergency had to be faced, have more than once saved the situation.

Major-General A. W. Money, as my principal staff officer, has shown himself an exceptionally able Chief of the General Staff. With wide experience and sound judgment, his advice has always been of the highest value to me on all occasions.

Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel W. H. Beach, R. E., has continued to me the valuable assistance which he rendered to my predecessor. As head of my Intelligence Section he has displayed a cool well-balanced judgment of no mean order.

64. To Rear Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., D.S.O., Naval Commander-in-Chief, East Indies, I am indebted for much useful advice and cordial co-operation. Captain Nunn, C.M.G., D.S.O., Commander Wason and the other officers of the Royal Navy have afforded us the able assistance which we have become accustomed to receive from them.

I have referred elsewhere to the daring attempt made by the S. S. "Julnar" to run the gauntlet of the Turkish defences. Knowing well the chances against them, all the gallant officers and men who manned that vessel for the occasion were volunteers, among them Engineer Sub-Lieutenant Lewis Reed, the regular Chief Engineer of the vessel. I trust that the services in this connection of Lieutenant H. O. B. Firman, R.N., and Lieutenant-Commander C. H. Cowley, R.N.V.R., his assistant, both of whom were unfortunately killed, may be recognised by the posthumous grant of some suitable honour.

65. The Air Service, which includes both the Royal Naval Air Service and the Royal Flying Corps, has distinguished itself throughout by hard work and devotion to duty, and the assistance which it has afforded to the other arms has been invaluable. Never fully manned, it found itself, towards the end of the last advance, very short-handed and faced by one or more enemy machines of considerably greater speed and fighting capacity, but its efficient work was nevertheless maintained.

66. The manner in which the Signal Service, only recently organised, and augmented from time to time with but partially trained men, has succeeded in carrying out its duties reflects credit upon both officers and men.

67. None know better than the officers of the Royal Indian Marine how inadequate to meet the ever increasing requirements of this force have been their resources, in personnel, in material, and especially in river craft. Their endeavours to satisfy those requirements have been unceasing, and the measure of success obtained has been highly creditable to all concerned. In addition to the permanent officers I would especially mention the temporary officers in command of the river steamers plying between the Tigris front and the Base, who, working always at high pressure and often under dangerous conditions, have displayed a patriotic devotion to duty worthy of high praise.

68. The energy and devotion to duty shown by the personnel of the Medical Services deserve commendation. Overworked and undermanned as they were during the advance in January—for the greater portion of the medical organisation then in the country had been shut up in Kut, and the medical units of the III and VII Divisions had only begun to arrive—they did their utmost with the means at their disposal to alleviate the sufferings of the sick and wounded. With the arrival in February of the first river hospital ship "Sikkim," and a steady increase in personnel, their power of dealing with the situation was considerably improved, as the action on March 8th showed.

69. No report on the Medical Services would be complete without reference to the splendid services rendered by Mr. T. A. Chalmers of Assam, who brought out, and himself drove, his specially designed motor boat "Ariel." He spent his whole time, frequently under fire, in conveying sick and wounded between collecting stations, field ambulances and river hospital craft, in a manner which no other boat in our possession could have imitated.

70. The Ordnance Services, under Colonel A. P. Douglas, with many serious difficulties to combat, have throughout worked quietly and efficiently to keep the force at the front supplied with the munitions they required.

71. The Supply and Transport Corps have had their establishment seriously reduced from sickness and other causes, and have always worked at high pressure. They have been constantly confronted with the difficulty that sufficient river transport tonnage could not be allotted to them to admit of the full scale of rations being delivered at the front.

72. The Military Works Services, though having to compete with an enormous and ever increasing volume of demands with a staff whose increase was by no means commensurate, has carried through creditably an amount of work the sum total of which can only be realised by those who have seen it actually in progress.

73. The Remount and Veterinary Services, the Telegraph and Postal Departments have all worked very satisfactorily.

74. The Survey Department has performed valuable, if unostentatious work, often under very adverse conditions.

75. The Army Chaplains of all denominations have worked devotedly and given unstinted service to the force. In their ministrations to the wounded they have freely exposed themselves in the front line.

76. I wish to record my appreciation of the valuable work performed by the Officers of General Headquarters and my personal Staff, to whom I am much indebted for their loyal assistance on all occasions.

77. I would express my deep obligation to Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Percy Cox, Mr. Dobbs, I.C.S., and the officers of the Political Department for their valuable advice and assistance freely rendered on every occasion. The remarkably small amount of tribal interruption along our extensive Lines of Communication and the satisfactory condition of internal affairs throughout the occupied territory and adjoining districts are a high testimony to Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Percy Cox's ability, tact and experience.

78. Accompanying this despatch is a list of officers and men whose names I would bring to notice in connection with services rendered during the operations herein reported upon.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

P. LAKE, Lieutenant-General,

Commanding Indian Expeditionary Force "D."

No. 1209.—A despatch by Lieutenant-General Sir P. H. N. Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., on the operations of Indian Expeditionary Force "D" from the 19th January to the 30th April 1916, is published for general information :

No. 168-31-O.

General Headquarters,

I. E. F. "D."

Dated the 12th August 1916.

FROM

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR P. H. N. LAKE, K. C. B., K. C. M. G.,

Commanding Indian Expeditionary Force "D."

To

THE CHIEF OF THE GENERAL STAFF,

Army Headquarters, Simla, India.

SIR,

I have the honour to submit a despatch describing the operations of the Force under my command, from January 19th, 1916, the date of my assuming command, up to April 30th, 1916.

2. Sir John Nixon's last despatches, dated January 17th, referred to General Aylmer's advance from Ali Gharbi; his capture of the Turkish position at Shaikh Saad after severe fighting on the 6th, 7th and 8th January; the battle of 13th and 14th January on the Wadi River, and the retreat of the enemy to an entrenched position across the Umm-al-Hannah defile.

3. The period now under report includes three phases in the further attempt to relieve Kut:—

1st Phase.—19th to 23rd January.—Unsuccessful attempt to force the Hannah defile. Commander—Lieutenant-General Sir F. Aylmer.

2nd Phase.—24th January to 10th March.—A period of rest and reorganisation, followed by the unsuccessful attempt to outflank the enemy's right in the vicinity of the Dujailah Redoubt.

Commander—Lieutenant-General Sir F. Aylmer.

3rd Phase.—11th March to 30th April.—A brief period of preparation, followed by the attack and capture of the Hannah and Falahiyah positions; failure to force the Sannaiyat position; and fall of Kut.

Commander—Lieutenant-General Sir G. F. Gorringe.

4. The general position of affairs on the Tigris front on January 19th, 1916, was that the bulk of General Aylmer's force, after the heavy fighting referred to in paragraph 2, was encamped on the left bank of the Tigris, above the Wadi River; the advanced troops were in touch with the Turks entrenched in their Umm-al-Hannah position. General Aylmer was actively engaged in re-organising his force for a further advance with the least possible delay. He fully realised that an immediate advance must involve some deficiencies in his organisation and fighting strength, but was influenced by the following factors:—

(i) General Townshend's reports as to the limit of his food supplies, and the influence of food supply questions generally on the operations of the relieving column.

(ii) General Townshend's anxiety about the sufficiency of his ammunition supply and the condition of some of his troops.

(iii) The rapidity with which the Turks might be able to reinforce the troops opposed to General Townshend, and the desirability of forestalling them.

It was, I understand, these three considerations that had mainly influenced my predecessor in ordering General Aylmer to advance as early in January as possible with the force which would then be concentrated at Ali Gharbi.

It was not until after the heavy fighting for the Hannah position on January 21st that General Townshend's report of January 25th, 1916—to the effect that as regards food supplies he could hold out for another 84 days—reached General Headquarters.

5. The difficulty experienced in pushing up reinforcements, supplies and munitions of war to the front seriously affected the operations.

The number of steamers available in January, 1916 for river transport purposes was practically the same as when, in June 1915, the first advance up the Tigris took place. Additional river craft had from time to time been demanded as augmentations to the force in Mesopotamia were decided upon, but, owing to the peculiar conditions which vessels intended for the intricate navigation of the Tigris have to satisfy, the provision of these vessels was a difficult problem, necessarily entailing long delays, and the supply was never able to keep pace with the requirements of the force.

In consequence of this, it was never possible during the period now under report either to concentrate at the Tigris front the whole of the forces available in the country, or to equip such forces as could be concentrated there with sufficient transport to make them mobile and enable them to operate freely at any distance from the river.

It was always necessary, therefore, for General Headquarters to balance most carefully the flow of reinforcements and supplies, so that the former should not outrun the latter.

1st Phase. 19th to 23rd January.

6. After the battle of Wadi River, General Aylmer's leading troops had followed the retreating Turks to the Umm-al-Hannah position and entrenched themselves at the mouth of the defile, so as to shut the enemy in and limit his power of taking the offensive.

7. The weather at this period was extraordinarily unfavourable. Heavy rains caused the river to come down in flood, and overflow its banks, and converted the ground on either bank into a veritable bog.

Our bridge across the Wadi was washed away several times, while the boisterous winds greatly interfered with the construction of a bridge across the Tigris, here some 400 yards in width.

8. It was essential to establish artillery on the right bank of the Tigris so as to support, by enfilading fire, the attack of our infantry against the Hannah position.

9. Guns and troops were ferried across, with difficulty, owing to the high wind and heavy squalls of rain; but by the 19th all troops allotted to the right bank had crossed over and were established in the positions from which they were required to co-operate with the main force on the left bank.

10. Meanwhile the leading infantry brigades on the left bank had pushed nearer the enemy. January the 20th was devoted to a systematic bombardment of his position, and during the night the infantry pushed forward their advanced line to within 200 yards of the enemy's trenches.

11. On the morning of the 21st, under cover of an intensive artillery bombardment, our infantry moved to the attack.

On our right the troops got to within 100 yards of the enemy's line but were unable to advance further. Our left column, consisting of the Black Watch, 6th Jats and 41st Dogras, penetrated the front line with a rush, capturing trenches which they held for about an hour and a half. Supports were sent forward, but, losing direction and coming under heavy fire, failed to reach them. Thus, left unsupported, our previously successful troops, when Turkish counter-attacks developed, were overwhelmed by numbers and forced to retire.

12. Heavy rain now began to fall and continued throughout the day. Telephone communication broke down, and communication by orderly became slow and uncertain.

After further artillery bombardment the attack was renewed at 1 p.m., but by this time the heavy rain had converted the ground into a sea of mud, rendering rapid movement impossible. The enemy's fire was heavy and effective, inflicting severe losses, and though every effort was made, the assault failed.

Our troops maintained their position until dark and then slowly withdrew to the main trenches which had been previously occupied, some 1,300 yards from those of the enemy.

13. As far as possible all the wounded were brought in during the withdrawal, but their sufferings and hardships were acute under the existing climatic conditions, when vehicles and stretcher bearers could scarcely move in the deep mud.

14. To renew the attack on the 22nd was not practicable. The losses on the 21st had been heavy, the ground was still a quagmire and the troops exhausted. A six hours' armistice was arranged, in order to bury the dead and remove the wounded to shelter.

15. I cannot sufficiently express my admiration for the courage and dogged determination of the force engaged. For days they bivouacked in driving rain on soaked and sodden ground. Three times they were called upon to advance over a perfectly flat country, deep in mud, and absolutely devoid of cover, against well constructed and well planned trenches, manned by a brave and stubborn enemy approximately their equal in numbers. They showed a spirit of endurance and self-sacrifice of which their country may well be proud.

2nd Phase. 24th January to 10th March.

16. The hurried improvisation of temporary brigades, divisions, etc., with which the force had been obliged to commence its advance from Ali Gharbi was now showing its inherent weakness. Divisions and brigades, the units of which knew each other and had served together in France, had perforce been broken up to meet the difficulties of transport on a long sea voyage. There had been no time on arrival in Mesopotamia to await belated units. In many cases, Field Ambulances had arrived after the combatant units. Brigade and divisional formations had been made up with such units as were first available. This was a severe handicap to the troops, and steps were now taken to reconstitute formations as far as possible in their original condition.

17. Throughout the month of February, preparations were made for resuming the offensive. Reinforcements were pushed up from the Base by steamer and route march; reorganisation and training were carried on at the front. On the left bank our trenches were again pushed forward towards the Hannah position. Frequent reconnaissances were made by land and air on both banks. During this period no severe fighting took place, though several minor operations were undertaken to gain information and to harass the enemy. On February 11th the bridge which had been destroyed by floods on January 14th was replaced.

18. The situation at the end of February was briefly as follows:—

On the left bank, the enemy, having been reinforced, still held the Hannah position in force; further in rear were other defensive lines, at Falahiyah, Sannaiyat, Nakhailat, and along the northern part of the Es Sinn position. All except the last named had been constructed since the battle of Hannah on 21st January. They were all protected on both flanks by the Tigris and the Suwaikieh Marsh respectively. On the right bank, the Es Sinn position constituted the Turkish main line of defence, with an advanced position near Beit Aiessa. The right flank of the Es Sinn position rested on the Dujailah Redoubt, which lay some five miles south of the river and 14 miles south-west of the British lines on the right bank.

19. It was decided to attack the Turkish right flank and Dujailah Redoubt, as the first step towards the relief of Kut before the arrival of the flood season, expected about the middle of March. It was feared that, as soon as the Tigris came down in flood, the Turks would cut the bunds and so flood the country as to render further offensive operations impracticable.

The whole area was so flat that there was hardly any portion of it which could safely be said to be above flood level.

20. General Aylmer made his arrangements accordingly. He decided not to wait for further reinforcements, but to advance with the maximum force for which land transport could be made available with two days' food and water. To conceal his intentions during the period of preparation, our artillery on both banks engaged the enemy's trenches on the left bank, whilst the force in front of the Hannah position displayed great activity.

21. Operations were again interrupted at the beginning of March by adverse weather conditions. This delay was unfortunate, as it gave time to the enemy to construct trenches closing the gap which had hitherto existed between Dujailah Redoubt and the Hai River.

22. On the afternoon of March 7th, General Aylmer assembled his subordinate commanders and gave his final instructions, laying particular stress on the fact that the operation was designed to effect a surprise; and that, to prevent the enemy forestalling us, it was essential that the first phase of the operation, i.e., the captuie of the Dujailah Redoubt, should be pushed through with the utmost vigour.

23. His dispositions were briefly as follows:—

The greater part of a division under General Younghusband, assisted by Naval Gunboats, contained the enemy on the left bank. The remaining troops were formed into two columns, under General Kemball and General Keary, respectively, a reserve of infantry and the Cavalry Brigade being held at the Corps Commander's own disposal. Kemball's column, covered on the outer flank by the Cavalry Brigade, was to make a turning movement to attack the Dujailah Redoubt from the south, supported by the remainder of the force operating from a position to the east of the Redoubt.

24. The night march by this large force, which led across the enemy's front to a position on his right flank, was a difficult operation, entailing movement over unknown ground and requiring most careful arrangements to attain success. Thanks to excellent staff work and good march discipline, the troops reached their allotted positions apparently undiscovered by the enemy, but while Keary's column was in position at daybreak ready to support Kemball's attack, the latter's command did not reach the point selected for its deployment, in the Dujailah depression, until more than an hour later. This delay was highly prejudicial to the success of the operation.

25. In spite of their late arrival the presence of so large a force seems to have been quite unexpected by the Turks, as Dujailah Redoubt was apparently lightly held when our columns reached their allotted positions. Prompt and energetic action would probably have forestalled the enemy's reinforcements. But time was lost by waiting for the guns to register and to carry out reconnaissances, and when, nearly three hours later, Kemball's troops advanced to the attack, they were strongly opposed by the enemy from trenches cleverly concealed in the brushwood, and were unable to make further ground for some time, though assisted by Keary's attack upon the Redoubt from the east.

The southern attack was now reinforced, and by 1 P.M. had pushed forward to within 500 yards of the Redoubt, but concealed trenches again stopped further progress and the Turks made several counter-attacks with reinforcements which had by now arrived from the direction of Magasis.

26. It was about this time that the Corps Commander received from his Engineer officers the unwelcome news that the water supply contained in rain-water pools in the Dujailah depression, upon which he had reckoned, was insufficient, and could not be increased by digging. It was clear therefore that unless the Dujailah Redoubt could be carried that day, the scarcity of water would of itself compel our troops to fall back. Preparations were accordingly made for a further assault on the Redoubt and at 5.15 P.M. attacks were launched from the south and east under cover of a heavy bombardment. The 9th and 28th Infantry Brigades got within 200 yards of the southern face where they were held up by heavy fire, although reinforced. Meanwhile, the 8th Infantry Brigade supported by the 37th had assaulted from the east; the two leading battalions of the former, the Manchesters and 59th Rifles, and some of the 37th Infantry Brigade, succeeded in gaining a foot-hold in the Redoubt. But here they were heavily counter-attacked by large enemy reinforcements, and being subjected to an extremely rapid and accurate shrapnel fire from concealed guns in the vicinity of Sinn Aftar, they were forced to fall back to the position from which they started.

27. The troops, who had been under arms for some 30 hours including a long night march, were now much exhausted, and General Aylmer considered that a renewal of the assault during the night 8th-9th March could not be made with any prospect of success. Next morning the enemy's position was found to be unchanged, and General Aylmer, finding himself faced with the deficiency of water already referred to, decided upon the immediate withdrawal of his force to Wadi, which was reached the same night.

28. The evacuation of our wounded had preceded our retirement. The first parties of wounded reached Wadi at 4 P.M. on March 9th, and the last wounded man was attended to in hospital at that place at 2 A.M., March 10th. The Corps Commander speaks in high terms of the gallantry and devotion displayed by officers and subordinates of the Medical Service and Army Bearer Corps during the fighting. They collected and attended to the wounded under heavy fire in a manner which called forth the admiration of the whole force.

3rd Phase. 11th March to 30th April.

29. No further operations of any importance occurred during March, though minor engagements took place on the right bank, in which enemy trenches were taken and prisoners captured. But rain fell, and the Tigris came down in heavy flood on March 15th, causing extensive inundations which compelled our troops to evacuate their advanced positions on that bank. For the remainder of the month there was a strenuous struggle with the inundations, to prevent the whole country being flooded. Every available man was engaged in digging embankments, and operations were temporarily suspended.

30. On March 12th, Major-General Sir G. F. Gorringe succeeded to the command of the Corps. Fresh troops now began to arrive up-river and it was decided to renew active operations as soon as this reinforcement was complete. Careful investigations were made, meanwhile, as to the feasibility of an advance on Kut by the right bank from Shaikh Saad, but as enquiry showed that the country along this route was not flood proof and would be liable to inundation by the breaking of the bunds on the right bank of the Tigris, which were under Turkish control, it was decided that conditions were more favourable for an attack on the Hannah position, and an advance up the left bank.

Preparations were accordingly made for putting this plan into action.

31. The VII Division had been engaged in sapping up to the enemy's front trenches, continually under heavy fire and hampered by floods. By March 28th, their sap-heads were 150 yards from the Turkish front line.

On April 1st, the XIII Division moved up from Shaikh Saad to relieve them in the front trenches preparatory to the assault. Heavy rain fell, however, on this and the following day, and floods rendered some of the positions of our troops on the right bank untenable. The ground became impassable, and operations had to be postponed.

32. By the evening of April 4th, the ground had dried sufficiently for the assault. At daylight the next morning the XIII Division jumped out of their trenches and rushed the Turkish first and second lines in quick succession. Our artillery and machine guns at once opened on the third and other lines in rear, and by 7 A.M. the whole position was in our hands.

33. The attack on Hannah had been prepared with the greatest care, and was brilliantly executed by General Maude and the XIII Division. The enemy's position was a maze of deep trenches occupying a frontage of only 1,300 yards between the Tigris and the Suwaikieh Marsh, and extending for 2,600 yards from front to rear. Although it was lightly held by the Turks with a few companies and some machine guns, it was a position of great strength.

34. Meanwhile, on the right bank, the III Division had been gaining ground. In the morning the 8th Infantry Brigade, led by the Manchesters, captured the Turkish position on Abu Roman mounds. An attempt by the enemy to recapture this position in the afternoon was beaten off.

During the day the river rose considerably, and it was evident that a fresh flood was coming down. This pointed to the urgency of capturing the Falahiyah and Sannaiyat positions, 3 and 6 miles respectively west of the Hannah position, before the rising river should enable the Turks to flood the country between us, by opening the bunds.

35. After nightfall a heavy bombardment was directed on the Falahiyah position from 7-15 P.M. to 7-30 P.M., after which the XIII Division assaulted and captured a series of deep trenches in several lines. The position was stubbornly held by about 3 battalions of Turks, but by 9-30 P.M. it was completely in our hands and consolidated.

The 38th Infantry Brigade and the Warwicks and Worcesters of the 39th Infantry Brigade did particularly well in this assault. High praise is due to Major-General Maude, his brigade commanders and all under their commands for this successful night attack. The Division suffered some 1,300 casualties during the day.

36. The VII Division, which had hitherto been in support, now moved forward, and passing through the XIII Division, took up a position about two miles east of Sannaiyat, ready to attack the northern portion of these entrenchments at dawn on April 6th. The line of direction was to be maintained by moving with the left flank along a communication trench which joined the Falahiyah and Sannaiyat positions. Previous reconnaissance of the terrain to be traversed had of course been impossible during daylight, as it was then still occupied by the Turks.

37. The passage, however, of numerous and deep cross trenches so hampered the advance that, at dawn, when the assault was to have taken place, the troops were still some 2,300 yards from the enemy's position. This delay was fatal to their chance of success, as the ground was perfectly flat and without any vestige of cover. In these circumstances it would have been wiser to have postponed the attack at the last moment. The advance was however continued with the greatest gallantry under heavy artillery and machine gun fire, to within 700 yards of the Turkish trenches. Here the attacking lines were checked, and eventually fell back on to the supporting 3rd line, where they dug themselves in at about 1,000 yards from the enemy.

38. During the night of 5th-6th April and throughout the 6th the river rose steadily, until at mid-day it reached the highest level of the year. The wind changed to the north and blew the water of the Suwaikieh Marsh southwards across the right of the VII Division; protecting bunds along both the Tigris and the edge of the marsh had then to be constructed under the enemy's fire. Our guns were surrounded by floods, and for some time the position was distinctly critical.

The Marsh continued to encroach so much on the ground occupied by the VII Division that all efforts had to be devoted to securing from the floods the positions already gained. On the right bank the inundations rendered communication most difficult, and threatened to isolate the III Division altogether. On April 8th, in face of many difficulties, a new bridge over the Tigris was completed at Falahiyah.

39. During the night 8th-9th April the XIII Division took the place of the VII Division in the trenches, and at 4-20 A.M. advanced to the assault on Sannaiyat. When within 300 yards of the enemy's front line they were discovered by the Turks, who sent up "Very" lights and flares and opened a heavy rifle and gun fire. The first line, including detachments of the 6th K.O. Royal Lancaster Regiment, 8th Welsh Fusiliers, 6th L. North Lancashire Regiment and 5th Wiltshire Regiment, penetrated the centre of the enemy's front line trench. In the glare of the lights the second line lost direction, wavered, and fell back on the third and fourth lines. Support thus failed to reach the front line at the critical moment, in spite of the most gallant and energetic attempts of officers concerned to remedy matters.

Our troops who had reached the enemy's trenches were heavily counter-attacked by superior numbers and driven back to from 300 to 500 yards from the enemy's line, where brigades dug themselves in.

40. I had been at Wadi in close touch with the Corps Commander since April 6th, and after the failure of this attack we met and discussed the situation together in detail. While it was clearly very desirable to secure the Sannaiyat position with its obvious advantages, yet we had to bear in mind how very short the time at our disposal was if Kut was to be relieved, and the delay which a systematic approach by sapping right up to the position must involve. It was therefore decided that another attempt to force the enemy's right about the Sinn Aftar Redoubt offered prospects of speedier success.

41. General Gorringe accordingly proceeded to make the necessary arrangements for this move. As will be understood, it involved securing the control of the river bunds which were covered by the enemy's advanced position at Beit Aiessa, and establishing communications across the intervening flooded areas which must be traversed before we could reach that position. It should be borne in mind that there is no such thing as a road, in the sense in which we use the word, in this part of the country, and that no road material or metalling of any sort exists ; yet in order to supply the troops with food and ammunition when they should have succeeded in crossing the inundations, some sort of permanent track above flood level, along which transport could work, was essential.

42. The VII Division now again took over and pushed forward the trench work in front of Sannaiyat as far as constant interruptions by floods would permit. The XIII Division was held back near Falahiyah Bridge in reserve.

43. On April 12th, the III Division, advancing across belts of inundation intersected by deep cuts drove in the enemy's piquets east of Beit Aiessa and occupied their outpost line, consolidating their position during the night.

On April 15th and 16th, some of the enemy's advanced trenches were captured and counter-attacks were repulsed. Our new line was consolidated by night, guns were moved forward and preparations were made for the attack of the main Beit Aiessa position on the morning of the 17th.

44. Under cover of an intense bombardment, the 7th and 9th Infantry Brigades advanced at 6-45 A.M. and actually reached the Turkish trenches before our artillery fire lifted. When the bombardment ceased they leapt into the trenches, bayonetted numbers of the enemy and the Beit Aiessa position was soon in our hands. The enemey left 200 to 300 dead in the trenches and 180 prisoners were captured.

These operations, culminating in the capture of Beit Aiessa, reflect great credit on Major-General Keary and the troops under his command. Steady and consistent progress was made day after day in spite of most difficult conditions and often with a shortage of rations which the transport was heavily strained to bring forward.

45. Orders were now issued for the XIII Division to move up in relief of the III Division, after dark, the latter to concentrate on the left rear of the XIII preparatory to further operations next day.

46. At 5 P.M. the enemy's artillery commenced to bombard Beit Aiessa and to establish a barrage in rear of the III Division, sweeping the passage through the swamps along which its communications lay. An hour later a very strong counter-attack came from the south-west. In spite of heavy shelling from our guns the attack was pressed home against the 9th Infantry Brigade, from which a double company had been pushed forward to guard two captured guns which could not be brought in during daylight. In retiring the double company masked our fire ; the 9th Infantry Brigade was pressed and gave ground, exposing the left of the 7th Infantry Brigade which was also forced back. Our troops rallied on the 8th Infantry Brigade which was holding its ground firmly on the left of the line, and on a portion of the 7th Infantry Brigade.

Reinforcements from the XIII Division were already moving forward, but owing to the darkness and boggy ground they were delayed and some hours elapsed before they arrived.

The attack which commenced at 6 P.M. was followed by a series of heavy attacks throughout the night, the 8th Infantry Brigade on the left repelling as many as six such attacks. But our line held firm, and the enemy retreated at dawn, having suffered losses estimated at 4,000 to 5,000 men.

47. In this engagement the following units particularly distinguished themselves by their steadiness and gallantry :—1st Battalion Connaught Rangers, 27th Punjabis, 89th Punjabis 47th Sikhs and 59th Rifles—also the South Lancs., East Lancs., and Wiltshire Regiments. The 60th and 14th Batteries Royal Field Artillery did good service, also the 23rd Mountain Battery, which expended all its ammunition, and did great execution at close range. Generals Egerton and Campbell, who commanded the brigades most heavily engaged, set a fine example of coolness and gallantry in the hand to hand fighting which took place.

Although the enemy had suffered heavy losses and had failed to obtain any success after their initial rush, they had checked our advance and regained that portion of Beit Aiessa nearest the river which included the bunds controlling the inundations. Its recapture was essential.

48. During the succeeding days some progress in this direction was made by trench fighting and by consolidating positions pushed out towards Sinn Aftar. The boggy nature of the ground made movement difficult, and many of the troops were worn out with fatigue.

Meanwhile on the left bank, although frequently interrupted by floods, the VII Division had been steadily pushing forward saps, and as there were some signs of a weakening of the enemy's forces at Sannaiyat, there appeared to be an opportunity to make another attempt to capture that position. The VII Division was ordered to prepare for an assault on the 20th supported by troops from the right bank. But on the afternoon of the 19th, the wind veered round to the north, water from the marsh flooding their trenches and the ground in front of them; the attack had therefore to be postponed.

49. Throughout the 20th and 21st the Sannaiyat position was bombarded. Arrangements were made for the assault to take place next morning on a front which eventually had to be reduced to that of one brigade, the extreme width of passable ground being only 300 yards. After preliminary bombardment, the VII Division advanced, the 19th Infantry Brigade leading. Besides our artillery on both banks, massed machine guns on the right bank covered our advance. The leading troops carried the enemy's first and second lines in their immediate front, several of the trenches being flooded, but only a few men were able to reach the third line.

50. Large Turkish reinforcements now came up. They delivered a strong counter-attack, which was repulsed. A second counter-attack however succeeded in forcing our troops back, as many men were unable to use their rifles, which had become choked with mud in crossing the flooded trenches, and so were unable to reply to the enemy's fire By 8-40 A M., our men were back in their own trenches.

51. By mutual consent parties went out, under the Red Cross and Red Crescent flags, to collect their respective wounded. The Turkish casualties appear to have been heavy as they were evacuating wounded until nightfall. Our casualties amounted to about 1,300.

52. Persistent and repeated attempts on both banks had thus failed, and it was known that at the outside not more than 6 days' supplies remained to the Kut garrison. General Gorringe's troops were nearly worn out. The same troops had advanced time and again to assault positions strong by art and held by a determined enemy. For 18 consecutive days they had done all that men could do to overcome, not only the enemy, but also exceptional climatic and physical obstacles—and this on a scale of rations which was far from being sufficient, in view of the exertions they had undergone, but which the shortage of river transport had made it impossible to augment. The need for rest was imperative.

53. There remained but one chance if the relief of Kut was to be accomplished, and that was the introduction by some means of additional supplies into General Townshend's camp, which would enable him to hold out for a still longer period.

Faint as the chance was, the "Julnar", one of the fastest steamers on the river, had for some days been under preparation, by the Royal Navy for an attempt to run the enemy's blockade.

54. At 8 P.M., on April 24th with a crew from the Royal Navy under Lieutenant Firman, R.N., assisted by Lieutenant Commander Cowley, R.N.V.R., the "Julnar" carrying 270 tons of supplies, left Falahiyah in an attempt to reach Kut.

Her departure was covered by all artillery and machine gun fire that could be brought to bear, in the hope of distracting the enemy's attention. She was, however, discovered and shelled on her passage up the river. At 1 A.M. on the 25th General Townshend reported that she had not arrived and that at midnight a burst of heavy firing had been heard at Magasis, some 8½ miles from Kut by river, which had suddenly ceased.

There could be but little doubt that the enterprise had failed, and next day the Air Service reported the "Julnar" in the hands of the Turks at Magasis.

55. The leaders of this brave attempt, Lieutenant H. O. B. Firman, R. N., and his assistant Lieutenant-Commander C. H. Cowley, R. N. V. R,—the latter of whom had throughout the campaign in Mesopotamia performed magnificent service in command of the "Medjidieh"—have been reported by the Turks to have been killed; the remainder of the gallant crew, including 5 wounded, are prisoners of war.

56. In the hope of prolonging the resistance of Kut for even a day or two the Royal Flying Corps and Royal Naval Air Service had dropped into Kut between April 16th and April 29th approximately 8 tons of supplies, besides fishing nets, medicines and specie.

Although these supplies could not materially alter the course of the siege, it was a performance which is deserving of high praise, for it involved a great strain on the pilots, and the journeys were subject to attacks by enemy aircraft of superior speed and fighting capacity. One of our machines was shot down while engaged on this supply service, another was damaged but brought home safely with great skill.

57. With the failure of the "Julnar" there was no further hope of extending the food limit of the garrison of Kut. Everything that was possible with the means to hand had been attempted. The troops only desisted from their efforts when, through battle losses, sickness and exhaustion, the limit of human endurance had been reached. On April 29th Kut surrendered.

I need not enlarge upon the bitter disappointment felt by all ranks on the Tigris Line at the failure of their attempt to relieve their comrades in Kut. It was mitigated by His Majesty the King's gracious message of May 7th, 1916, in which His Majesty expressed his feeling that his troops had done all that was humanly possible.

58. By the courtesy of the Turkish Commander-in-Chief Major-General Khalil Pasha, I was able to arrange, on April 30th and the following days, that all the more serious cases among the sick and wounded of the garrison of Kut should be handed over to me in exchange for an equivalent number of Turkish prisoners. In this connection I should like to acknowledge my indebtedness to Captain Hon. A. Herbert, M.P., Irish Guards, and Captain T. E. Lawrence, General Staff, Intelligence, Egypt, who greatly assisted me in these negotiations.

59. This report would be incomplete without some reference to occurrences in the other parts of Mesopotamia. During practically the whole period under review, neither the Turks on the Euphrates nor the Arab tribes in the vicinity of that river have given us any trouble. When however in January the advance against the hostile positions in front of Kut took place, it was thought advisable to make a demonstration northwards to a short distance from our advanced post at Nasiriyah, with a view to deterring as many of the hostile tribes on the Hai River as possible from joining forces with the enemy.

60. The major portion of the force at Nasiriyah accordingly moved out at the beginning of January and encamped in the neighbourhood of Butaniyah Lake. Early in February, when the object in view had been attained, the troops returned to Nasiriyah. On the return journey some of the villages, with whom friendly relations had hitherto obtained, apparently mistaking our movement for a retreat, treacherously attacked our rearguard. The attack was beaten off, a party of the Royal West Kents and the 30th Mountain Battery behaving very gallantly. A small force marched out the following morning from Nasiriyah, surprised and destroyed the offending villages in retaliation for their treachery.

Nothing of importance occurred on the Karun Line; that country and the neighbourhood of the Oilfields, as well as the country to the west and the south of Basrah, remaining quiet and undisturbed throughout the period under review.

61. When my predecessor, General Sir John Nixon, submitted his despatch of January 17th, 1916, he had had no opportunity of bringing to notice the names of those officers and men who had distinguished themselves during the actions at Shaikh Saad from 6th to 8th January, and at the Wadi River on 13th January 1916. I have therefore included them in this report.

62. I desire to place on record my appreciation of the services rendered by Lieutenant-General Sir F. Aylmer. Faced by great climatic and other difficulties, and unable, for reasons already referred to, to allow himself the time for reorganisation and preparation which under other circumstances he would have deemed essential, he applied himself to a difficult task with an energy, ability and determination which enabled him twice to defeat a brave enemy at least equal to himself in numbers, and which would in all probability have carried him to success at the Umm-al-Hannah position but for weather conditions which proved an almost insurmountable obstacle.

Major-General (temporary Lieutenant-General) Sir G. F. Gorringe has rendered valuable service to the State. As Chief of the Staff to the Tigris column from January 28th, and in command of the column from March 12th onwards he has shown untiring energy, ability and devotion, in dealing with the many difficult situations which he had to face. He is a commander of proved ability in the field.

Major-General C. V. F. Townshend has already shown himself a fine commander of troops in action and a tactician of no mean ability. It was mainly his personal example of cheerfulness, courage and resource which inspired the garrison of Kut to sustain a siege of nearly 5 months, under every sort of trial, until sheer starvation compelled surrender.

Major-General H. d'U. Keary, after commanding his division in France with distinction, has led it with resource and success throughout the operations under review. He could always be depended upon to handle his division with skill in any operation with which he was entrusted.

Colonel (temporary Major-General) H. T. Brooking has displayed much ability in his administration of the Euphrates area, and in the various minor operations which he has conducted.

63. This campaign in Mesopotamia has been one in which the difficulties experienced by the troops in actual contact with the enemy have been all but equalled by those which have had to be faced by the Headquarters and Lines of Communication Staffs and the Departments of the Army, upon whose exertions it depended that their comrades in the fighting line should be fed and supplied with the material they required to enable them to carry out their arduous task.

Major-General M. Cowper, as head of my Administrative Staff, has rendered most valuable service. His energy and ability when things threatened to go wrong and an awkward emergency had to be faced, have more than once saved the situation.

Major-General A. W. Money, as my principal staff officer, has shown himself an exceptionally able Chief of the General Staff. With wide experience and sound judgment, his advice has always been of the highest value to me on all occasions.

Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel W. H. Beach, R. E., has continued to me the valuable assistance which he rendered to my predecessor. As head of my Intelligence Section he has displayed a cool well-balanced judgment of no mean order.

64. To Rear Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., D.S.O., Naval Commander-in-Chief, East Indies, I am indebted for much useful advice

and cordial co-operation. Captain Nunn, C.M.G., D.S.O., Commander Wason, and the other officers of the Royal Navy have afforded us the able assistance which we have become accustomed to receive from them.

I have referred elsewhere to the daring attempt made by the S. S. "Julnar" to run the gauntlet of the Turkish defences. Knowing well the chances against them, all the gallant officers and men who manned that vessel for the occasion were volunteers, among them Engineer Sub-Lieutenant Lewis Reed, the regular Chief Engineer of the vessel. I trust that the services in this connection of Lieutenant H. O. B. Firman, R.N., and Lieutenant-Commander C. H. Cowley, R.N.V.R., his assistant, both of whom were unfortunately killed, may be recognised by the posthumous grant of some suitable honour.

65. The Air Service, which includes both the Royal Naval Air Service and the Royal Flying Corps, has distinguished itself throughout by hard work and devotion to duty, and the assistance which it has afforded to the other arms has been invaluable. Never fully manned, it found itself, towards the end of the last advance, very short-handed and faced by one or more enemy machines of considerably greater speed and fighting capacity, but its efficient work was nevertheless maintained.

66. The manner in which the Signal Service, only recently organised, and augmented from time to time with but partially trained men, has succeeded in carrying out its duties reflects credit upon both officers and men.

67. None know better than the officers of the Royal Indian Marine how inadequate to meet the ever-increasing requirements of this force have been their resources, in personnel, in material, and especially in river craft. Their endeavours to satisfy those requirements have been unceasing, and the measure of success obtained has been highly creditable to all concerned. In addition to the permanent officers I would especially mention the temporary officers in command of the river steamers plying between the Tigris front and the Base, who, working always at high pressure and often under dangerous conditions, have displayed a patriotic devotion to duty worthy of high praise.

68. The energy and devotion to duty shown by the personnel of the Medical Services deserve commendation. Overworked and undermanned as they were during the advance in January—for the greater portion of the medical organisation then in the country had been shut up in Kut, and the medical units of the III and VII Divisions had only begun to arrive—they did their utmost with the means at their disposal to alleviate the sufferings of the sick and wounded. With the arrival in February of the first river hospital ship "Sikkim," and a steady increase in personnel, their power of dealing with the situation was considerably improved, as the action on March 8th showed.

69. No report on the Medical Services would be complete without reference to the splendid services rendered by Mr. T. A. Chalmers of Assam, who brought out, and himself drove, his specially designed motor boat "Ariel." He spent his whole time, frequently under fire, in conveying sick and wounded between collecting stations, field ambulances and river hospital craft, in a manner which no other boat in our possession could have imitated.

70. The Ordnance Services, under Colonel A. P. Douglas, with many serious difficulties to combat, have throughout worked quietly and efficiently to keep the force at the front supplied with the munitions they required.

71. The Supply and Transport Corps have had their establishment seriously reduced from sickness and other causes, and have always worked at high pressure. They have been constantly confronted with the difficulty that sufficient river transport tonnage could not be allotted to them to admit of the full scale of rations being delivered at the front.

72. The Military Works Services, though having to compete with an enormous and ever-increasing volume of demands with a staff whose increase was by no means commensurate, has carried through creditably an amount of work the sum total of which can only be realised by those who have seen it actually in progress.

73. The Remount and Veterinary Services, the Telegraph and Postal Departments have all worked very satisfactorily.

74. The Survey Department has performed valuable, if unostentatious work, often under very adverse conditions.

75. The Army Chaplains of all denominations have worked devotedly and given unstinted service to the force. In their ministrations to the wounded they have freely exposed themselves in the front line.

76. I wish to record my appreciation of the valuable work performed by the Officers of General Headquarters and my personal Staff, to whom I am much indebted for their loyal assistance on all occasions.

77. I would express my deep obligation to Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Percy Cox, Mr. Dobbs, I.C.S., and the officers of the Political Department for their valuable advice and assistance freely rendered on every occasion. The remarkably small amount of tribal interruption along our extensive Lines of Communication and the satisfactory condition of internal affairs throughout the occupied territory and adjoining districts are a high testimony to Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Percy Cox's ability, taet and experience.

78. Accompanying this despatch is a list of officers and men whose names I would bring to notice in connection with services rendered during the operations herein reported upon.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

P. LAKE, Lieutenant-General,

Commanding Indian Expeditionary Force "D."

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

PUBLIC.

Simla, the 5th October 1916.

RESOLUTION.

The annual reports showing the mortality caused by wild animals and venomous snakes have been received from the local Governments and Administrations.

The number of persons killed by wild animals in British India in 1915 was 1,923. The number killed in the previous year was 1,702. As in 1914 the highest total of deaths in any one province (684) is reported from Bihar and Orissa, where tigers alone killed 376 persons. In the three districts of Angul, Hazaribagh and Singhbhum there were 232 deaths from tigers and the offer of special rewards for man-eaters in parts of these districts is said to have had no effect. Altogether 748 persons were destroyed by tigers in British India, a total which compares unfavourably with the corresponding figure of 646 for 1914. In the United Provinces one man-eating tiger in the Almora district killed 10 persons out of the provincial total of 20; and in the Punjab two deaths are reported which are the first caused by tigers in that province for seven years. The figures for casualties from elephants, bears, leopards, and hyenas require no comment. The unclassified head "other animals" includes figures for pigs and crocodiles or alligators which accounted for 186 and 248 deaths respectively.

2. The total number of deaths from snake-bite among human beings rose from 22,900 in 1914 to 26,385 in 1915. An increase is noticeable in all provinces except Madras and the North-West Frontier Province. As usual the casualties were most numerous in Bihar and Orissa (6,795), the United Provinces (6,629) and Bengal (4,709). The deaths reported from the Punjab under this head amount to 1,590, which is the highest figure yet recorded for that province. Special measures organised in the districts of Gujranwala and Sialkot resulted in the destruction of nearly 10,000 snakes. In the Bombay Presidency nearly 80,000 venomous snakes were destroyed in the Ratnagiri district, where deaths from snake-bite are more numerous than anywhere else in the Presidency. Sir Lauder Brunton's lancets are said to have effected a fair number of cures in cases in which they were used but on the whole the information furnished in these reports is not sufficient for a definite verdict on the efficacy of the instrument.

3. The number of wild animals destroyed during the year under review was 25,036 including 1,582 tigers, 6,623 leopards, 2,775 bears and 2,191 wolves. A sum of Rs. 1,89,409 was paid in rewards. The total number of snakes destroyed was 1,84,663 as compared with 1,18,816 in 1914. Rs. 18,214 were disbursed altogether in rewards for the destruction of snakes.

4. The number of fresh licenses issued under the Indian Arms Act, 1878, in forms XVI, XVII and XVIII was 23,123 as compared with 23,016 in 1914. The total number of licenses in force in the year under review was 175,890 against 176,779 in the preceding year.

5. The compilation of the returns showing the number of cattle destroyed by wild animals and snakes has involved in the past an amount of labour disproportionate to the interest of the subject, and the accuracy of the returns themselves has always been open to question. The Government of India have therefore decided that the submission of these returns should be discontinued.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution (and annexure) be forwarded to local Governments and Administrations * and that it be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information; also that a copy be forwarded to the Director of Statistics.

* Including the Chief Commissioners of the North-West Frontier Province and Ajmer-Merwara and the Resident in Mysore.

S. R. HIGNELL,

Secretary to the Government of India.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Nearly general rain fell in Central India and the west of the United Provinces on the 5th and in the east of the United Provinces on the 6th. Heavy rain fell locally in the Central Provinces on the 5th.

Northwest India.—Scattered falls of rain were reported.

The Peninsula.—There was nearly general rain in Mysore on the 7th and in the Bombay Deccan on the 10th.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 7th October 1916.

Burma.—General rain fell throughout the Province. In Lower Burma it was moderate and in Upper Burma including the dry zone it was good. Agricultural operations for the main rice crop have been completed. Cultivation of the miscellaneous cold weather crops in Upper Burma is proceeding. Harvesting of sesamum, maize and groundnut and plucking of cotton are progressing. Standing crops are generally good. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice has fallen to Rs. 121 per hundred baskets and is normal. The market for white rice is weak.

Assam.—The weather is rainy and cloudy and unfavourable for standing crops in most districts. The rainfall during the week was very heavy in the Surma Valley and moderate in the Assam Valley. Floods have been reported from Cachar and Manipur. Transplantation of winter rice and cutting and steeping of jute are nearly finished. Hoeing, plucking and manufacture of tea and harvesting of autumn rice are going on. Prospects of winter rice are good to fair and those of tea, cotton and sugarcane are generally fair. The average price of common rice is steady. Cattle disease prevails in three districts.

Bengal.—During the week under report moderate to very heavy rain was general throughout the Province. The fall was particularly heavy in the Eastern Districts. In Birbhum another flood of somewhat less intensity occurred during the week further damaging both houses and crops in the tracts previously affected. Adequate relief measures are being taken. Reports of damage to standing crops either by excessive rainfall or floods have been received from several other places of both Eastern and Western Bengal. Harvesting of autumn paddy and jute still continues in places. Weeding of winter rice continues. The prospects of the crop are so far fairly satisfactory. Cattle disease is reported from three districts only. The average price of common rice has risen by about 0·4 per cent as compared with that of the previous week.

The weekly report on famine in Bankura is as follows :—The condition of the affected areas is improving. Harvesting of autumn paddy and of other autumn crops has been almost finished. Prospects of winter paddy are good. The condition of the people on relief works is good. Relief measures are adequate. Prices are stationary. The price of rice is 8¾ seers per rupee. The number of persons on relief works was 8,160 and in receipt of gratuitous relief 20,489, total 28,649. The number of persons relieved on private works was 1,861. The decrease in the number on relief works is due to the gradual closing of works on account of harvest.

Bihar and Orissa.—During the week under report rain was general over the Province, the fall being mostly moderate to heavy. Harvesting of autumn crops continues. Standing crops are on the whole doing well. The average price of common rice has remained almost stationary as compared with that of the preceding week. The supply of fodder is generally sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from ten districts. The attendance of persons on test works in Singhbhum was 6,287 and gratuitous relief was given to 1,116 persons in this district. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good.

United Provinces.—Rain fell throughout the Provinces during the week. Damage from excessive rain and from floods is reported from a few districts but otherwise standing crops are generally doing well. Harvesting of autumn crops, picking of cotton, sowing of gram and preparation of fields for the next spring crop are going on. Prospects are generally good. Agricultural stock is in good condition. Cattle disease is reported from twenty-one districts. Prices are practically stationary.

Punjab.—Light or moderate rain was received in parts of all the reporting districts. It was heavy in parts of a few South Eastern and submontane districts. Rain was generally beneficial to the standing autumn crops and to the sowing of spring crops. Standing crops are in good condition. Picking of cotton and reaping and harvesting of millets and maize are in progress with outturn normal to good. Sowings of gram, barley and oilseeds continue and those of wheat have commenced in a few districts and are generally normal. Cattle are healthy and fodder and water for drinking and irrigation are sufficient. Prices are generally stationary but have a slight downward tendency. In the case of wheat they range between normal and warning rates and in other cases between normal and scarcity rates. Prices of wheat are:—Ambala, Ferozepore, Lahore, Rawalpindi and Lyallpur 10½ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—During the week under report rain fell throughout the Province except in Peshawar. The weather is moderate and clear. The condition of standing crops both on irrigated and unirrigated areas is average throughout the Province Sowing of barley, spring oilseeds and vegetables in some places in Peshawar and that of gram in Bannu are proceeding. In Dera Ismail Khan preparation of land for spring sowings is in progress. Cattle are in good condition. Water and fodder are sufficient. The Paharpur canal is not running. The public health is generally good Prices are high but are stationary in Bannu. Prices of barley, gram and maize in Peshawar and of bajra in Dera Ismail Khan are falling while that of gram in Dera Ismail Khan is slightly rising.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat is selling from 9 to 13 and maize from 12 to 19 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is good. Cattle disease prevails in the Ramnagar and Jasmergarh Tehsils. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—The rainfall during the week was insignificant. Autumn crops are being harvested. Prospects are fair though rice crops have been damaged slightly. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are sufficient. Prices are normal.

Rajputana.—The weather is generally cloudy. The rainfall during the week was general, the maximum fall being 3 inches 15 cents in Jaisalmer. Standing crops are in good condition except in places in Kotah, Alwar and Merwara where some damage is reported by excessive rain Harvesting of autumn crops and preparation of land for spring crops are in progress Prospects are hopeful Agricultural stock is in good condition but for some disease among cattle in Kotah, Tonk and Ajmer. Water and fodder are ample. Prices are generally falling.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general and sufficient everywhere. Autumn crops are being weeded and harvested in Indore and the Southern States. The crops have been retarded owing to excessive rain in Gwalior and Nagod and portions of Baghelkhand. Land for spring crops is being prepared. Standing crops and their probable outturn are fair in Indore and Bhopal and good elsewhere. Crops have been damaged by insects and heavy rains in a few parganas of Gwalior, Ajaigarh and Chhatarpur and by floods in the Bhind pargana of Gwalior. Agricultural stock is good except in some villages of the Karera pargana of Gwalior, Mhow and Depalpur parganas of Indore, Baoni of Bundelkhand and parts of Dhar and Barwani where there is cattle disease. The supply of fodder is sufficient. Prices are normal in Baghelkhand, slightly fluctuating in Indore and are steady elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—Light to heavy rain was received throughout the Provinces but weather is now bright and warm. The largest quantity of rainfall registered at headquarters was 9 inches at Mandla and Narsinghpur. Slight damage from excessive rain is reported in places but the condition of the autumn crops is on the whole satisfactory. Preparation of land and sowing of the spring crops are being delayed by the rain. The supply of fodder and water is adequate and cattle are in good condition. The prices of wheat and grain show a downward tendency; otherwise there are no important variations.

Feudatory States.—The States received moderate to heavy rain. The crops are generally in good condition.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in the Presidency Proper. Standing crops are thriving except for slight damage by locusts in two talukas of Karachi, Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar and Nawab Shah and in three talukas of Larkana, by rats in four talukas of Karachi, by insects and continuous rain in two talukas of West Khandesh and by excessive rain in the eastern talukas of Sholapur. Harvesting of autumn crops continues generally. Sowing of spring crops is progressing. The supply of fodder is adequate. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Drinking water is adequate. Irrigation water is deficient in parts of Panch Mahals and Kaira. Prices of food grains have slightly fallen in Sind and Gujarat; have risen in the Karnatak and are generally steady elsewhere.

The weekly report on scarcity in Kathiawar is as follows:—Public health is good. There is no wandering or emaciation. Gratuitous relief has been discontinued.

Hyderabad.—Little or no rain fell during the week. This has proved beneficial as the standing crops were suffering from incessant rain.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was light in Kolar Hassan and Chitaldrug and nil elsewhere. The price of rice has fallen in Kolar and that of ragi has risen in Shimoga. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in good condition. Ragi, sugarcane and paddy are being harvested. Rain is wanted in the greater part of the State. Prospects of the season are good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—The rainfall during the week was one inch eight cents. The rice crop is in good condition. Picking of cardamom continues and reaping of dry crops in North Coorg has commenced. Prices of food grains are rising. Public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was light or nil in Kurnool, Bangalore, Bellary, Anantpur, Nellore, Chitoor, Ramnad, Tinnevelly, South Canara and Travancore, fair in Guntur, Cuddapah, Coimbatore, Malabar and Cochin, heavy in South Arcot and good elsewhere. Standing crops are fair to good generally but are suffering from want of rain in one district. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding normally with outturn fair to normal generally. Sowing of paddy and dry crops is proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The supply of water is insufficient in parts of Ganjam, the Carnatic, the central parts except Coimbatore and Trichinopoly and the southern parts except Tanjore and sufficient elsewhere. Pasture is generally sufficient. Fodder is generally available. Prices are steady.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 14th October 1916.

Burma.—Moderate rain fell in Lower Burma and in the dry zone the fall was light. Elsewhere in Upper Burma good rain fell. Transplantation of the main winter rice has been practically completed. Harvesting of maize, autumn rice, sesamum and groundnut and plucking of cotton are progressing. Cultivation of miscellaneous crops in Upper Burma is proceeding. Crop prospects are good. Livestock is healthy. The price of unhusked rice has fallen further to Rs. 120 per hundred baskets and is slightly below normal. The market for white rice is firm.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable and generally favourable to standing crops except in Cachar and Sylhet where incessant rain in the previous week has caused severe floods. In the Silchar and Karimganj sub-divisions and in the Jaintia pargana the floods have done serious damage to standing crops. Water is subsiding. Harvesting of jute and transplantation of winter rice have been nearly finished. Hoeing, plucking and manufacture of tea, steeping of jute, harvesting of autumn rice and sowing of pulses are still in progress. Prospects of tea are good to fair and of winter rice, cotton and sugarcane fair. The price of common rice has risen in two districts. Cattle disease is reported from three districts.

Bengal.—During the week light to moderate rain fell almost throughout the Province. Some damage has been done to paddy by heavy rain at Chittagong and by floods in parts of the Tippera and Noakhali districts. The condition and prospects of the winter rice crop are good except in these tracts and in the flood affected areas of Murshidabad, Burdwan, Birbhum and Bakarganj. Harvesting of autumn paddy has been practically finished. Steeping and washing of jute still continue. Lands are being prepared for spring crops. Sowing of pulses has commenced. Cattle disease is reported from five districts. The average price of common rice for the Province remained almost stationary as compared with that of the previous week.

The weekly report on famine in Bankura is as follows:—The state of affairs in the affected areas has improved. Harvesting of autumn paddy still continues. Prospects of winter paddy are good. The condition of the people on relief works is good. Prices are falling. The price of rice is 9 seers per rupee. The number of persons on relief works was 9,037 and on gratuitous relief to weavers 1,217, total 10,254.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light to moderate rain was fairly general over the Province. Harvesting of autumn crops is still in progress. Preparation of lands for spring crops has commenced in some districts. Standing crops are, on the whole, doing well. The average price of common rice has remained almost stationary as compared with that of the preceding week. The supply of fodder is generally sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from several districts. The attendance of persons on test works in Singhbhum was 5,020 and gratuitous relief was given to 912 persons in this district. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good.

United Provinces.—During the week showers were received in the Himalayan and eastern districts. Harvesting of autumn crops, picking of cotton and preparation of land for winter crops are in progress and sowing of winter crops has begun in places. Standing crops are doing well and their prospects continue to be good. The harvest generally promises to be normal. Agricultural stock is in good conditions but cattle disease is reported from parts of thirty districts. Fodder and water are ample. Markets are full. Prices are almost stationary.

Punjab.—There was no rain of importance during the week. Standing autumn crops are in good condition. Picking of cotton and harvesting of rice, millets and maize are in progress with outturn normal to good. Sowings of gram, barley, toria and other oilseeds continue and of wheat have commenced in certain western districts. The extent of the sowings is normal. Germination of the crops sown is good. The condition of cattle is good and fodder and water for drinking and irrigation purposes are sufficient. Prices are falling and range generally between normal and warning rates. Those of autumn food grains have in some cases fallen below normal rates. Price of wheat:—Lahore 10, Ambala, Ferozepore and Rawalpindi 10½ and Lyallpur 11 seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—No rain fell during the week except 1·31 inches on Sheikh Budden in the Dera Ismail Khan district. Rain is wanted all over the Province. The weather is moderate and clear. The condition of the irrigated and unirrigated standing crops is average throughout the Province. Sowing of spring crops and harvesting of autumn crops are proceeding. The outturn is reported to be average. The condition of cattle is good. Water and fodder are sufficient throughout the Province. The Paharpur canal is not running. The public health is generally good. Prices are high but stationary in Peshawar with the exception of those of barley which are falling. Prices of gram and wheat in Dera Ismail Khan are also falling. In Bannu the prices of all food grains are rising.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 9 to 13 and maize from 12 to 19 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is good. Cattle disease prevails in the Ramnagar, Jasmergarh and Ranbirsinghpura tahsils. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—No rain fell during the week. Autumn crops are being harvested. Agricultural operations for spring crops are in progress in Anantnag, where the autumn harvest has been finished. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are sufficient. Prices are normal.

Harvesting of autumn crops and preparation of land for spring crops continue. Prospects are satisfactory. Agricultural stock is in good condition generally. Water and fodder are ample. Prices are generally falling.

Central India.—The rainfall during the week was general in Gwalior, Malwa and the Southern States, partial in Indore and Bhopal and sufficient everywhere. Autumn crops are being weeded and harvested. Harvesting of late rice and of minor autumn crops is in progress. Picking of cotton has commenced in places. Preparation of land for spring crops continues and sowing has commenced in places. Fodder and water are sufficient. Agricultural stock is in good condition. The price of wheat continues to fall in the principal wheat districts. Other fluctuations are unimportant.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week throughout the Presidency. Standing crops are thriving except for slight damage by locusts in four talukas of Sukkur, by insects in three talukas of Thar and Parkar and by excessive rain in parts of Sholapur. Harvesting of autumn crops continues generally. Cotton picking is progressing in Thar and Parkar, Khandesh and Nasik. Sowing of spring crops continues. The fodder supply is adequate. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Drinking water is adequate. Water for irrigation is deficient in parts of the Panch Mahals and Kaira. CHIEF COMMISSIONER, DELHI.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Delhi the, 2nd October 1916.

No. 6669-Military.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 30 of the Punjab Military Transport Act, 1916 (I of 1916) as applied to the Province of Delhi by the Government of India's Notification No. 1038-C., dated the 22nd March 1916. The Chief Commissioner, Delhi, is hereby pleased to make the following rules :—

RULES UNDER THE PUNJAB MILITARY TRANSPORT ACT, I OF 1916.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF TRANSPORT INSPECTION OFFICERS AND OF TRANSPORT ASSISTANTS.

1. Subject to the general control of the Deputy Commissioner, the Transport Inspection Officer may inspect all animals and things liable to impressment within the area in which he exercises his powers under the Act.

2. Every Transport Inspection Officer will send to the Deputy Commissioner a programme of the tour of inspection which he proposes to make.

3. Every Transport Inspection Officer may issue such orders as he may deem necessary for the due discharge of his duties under the Act to any Transport Assistant in his circle; but orders for the collection of animals or things for inspection shall ordinarily be sent by him direct to the Zaildar Transport Assistants and not to the Tahsildar. The term Zaildar Transport Assistant includes a person appointed Transport Assistant by name under section 4(1) of the Act.

4. Every Transport Assistant shall obey to the best of his ability all orders which he may receive from the Transport Inspection Officer.

5. Every Zaildar Transport Assistant shall render all reasonable aid to the patwaris of his zail in the biennial enumeration of camels and mules made under these rules.

6. Every Zaildar Transport Assistant shall keep a memorandum of the number of bullocks fit for military transport available in each village in his zail.

7. It shall be the duty of every Transport Assistant receiving a requisition for the supply of animals or things for military transport to see that only fit animals or things are sent to the collecting centre.

ENUMERATION OF MULES AND CAMELS.

8. During the first week of August in every alternate year commencing from the year 1917 every patwari shall make a count of all mules and camels present in his circle, and shall enter in a register to be known as the Patwari's Military Transport Register the total number of mules, the total number of male camels of 6 years of age and over, the total number of male camels under 6 years of age, and the total number of female camels. In the case of mules and camels which do not belong to his circle, he shall make a note showing the principal areas or districts from which they come and the gross number from each such area or district. The Register shall be in Form 1 appended to these Rules.

9. Every owner or person in charge of any mule or camel and every lumbardar shall be bound to give to the best of his ability any information which the patwari may require to fill up the entries in his Register, and every owner or person in charge shall be bound if so required to produce such animal or camel for enumeration at such time and place within the limits of his village as the patwari may fix.

10. The patwari shall be bound to produce his Register for inspection by the Transport Inspection Officer whenever the latter may so order.

11. The patwari shall take or send his Register to the Tahsil not later than the 15th of August for the purpose of filling up the entries in the Tahsil Military Transport Register, which shall be in Form 2 appended to these Rules. The Patwari's Register shall be returned to the patwari not later than the end of August. Before the 15th of September the Tahsil Register shall be send to the District headquarters for the purpose of filling up the entries in the District Military Transport Register, Form 3. The Transport Inspection Officer may examine any of these Registers.

12. In municipalities and in notified areas the Deputy Commissioner may require the committee to have the enumeration of camels and mules carried out as aforesaid by servants of the municipal committee or notified area. The committee shall send its returns to the office of the Deputy Commissioner and they shall be entered in the District Register, but it shall not be necessary for the Committee to maintain a Register of its own. In other respects the above rules shall apply in the case of this agency equally as in the case of the patwari.

INSPECTIONS.

13. When a Transport Inspection Officer wishes to hold an inspection of any animals or things liable to impressment, he shall give notice in good time to the Deputy Commissioner of his intended visit, and shall also send an intimation to the Transport Assistant concerned, stating what animals or things he wishes to inspect and the places and times at which he will inspect them.

14. The Transport Assistant shall on receipt of this intimation take all necessary steps to ensure the presence of the animals or things at the times and places appointed. He will ordinarily cause a notice of the inspection to be proclaimed in each village or town where such inspection is to take place, and may in such notice call upon any owner or person in charge of animals or things then present in the town or village to produce them at the time and place appointed, and may also require any person owning land or resident in the village to bring in for inspection any animals or things belonging to him which may be in the neighbouring villages.

15. Every lumbardar and village watchman shall be bound to give the Transport Inspection Officer and the Transport Assistant all reasonable aid in procuring the presence of the said animals or things.

16. Every owner or person in charge of any animal or thing shall be bound to give the Transport Inspection Officer such information as he may require regarding the fitness of the animal or thing for purposes of military transport, and shall in the case of camels and mules state if required their permanent abodes and the places where they usually ply for hire.

DISTRIBUTION LIST FOR PURPOSES OF REQUISITION.

17. The Collector in consultation with the Transport Inspection Officer shall prepare a distribution statement (Form 4) showing the number of bullocks which are available for requisition for purposes of military transport from his district the figures being given by tahsils. This statement shall be entered in the District Military Transport Register. Similarly the Tahsildar shall prepare a distribution statement (Form 5) for his tahsil giving the figures by zails, and entering the figures in his Tahsil Military Transport Register. The zaildar shall keep a memorandum showing the number of bullocks available from each village in his zail.

The distribution statements shall be revised from time to time, as may be necessary. Copies of the original statements and of the revised statements shall be forwarded by the Chief Commissioner of Delhi.

25. The person appointed by the Collector to be in charge of the depôt shall maintain a register of deposits in Form 7 appended to these Rules, and such other records as may be prescribed by the Collector.

26. A receipt in Form 8 shall be given by the person in charge of the depôt for all goods deposited in the depôt.

27. The person in charge of the depôt shall cause a number to be marked in clear figures on each separate article or package to enable it to be readily identified.

28. Any person depositing any goods in a depôt shall draw the attention of the person in charge of the depôt to any goods of a perishable nature among those deposited by him, and the person in charge shall without delay obtain the orders of the Collector regarding their sale or disposal.

29. Subject to the provisions of section 25 (4) of the Act, goods deposited in a depôt shall be returnable to the person making the deposit or to the consignee declared by the person making the deposit.

30. The Collector shall in the notice to the consignee in which he calls upon him to take delivery warn him that if delivery is not taken within three months the goods will be sold by auction.

31. Auction sale shall be held by a person deputed for this purpose by the Collector.

32. No goods shall be deposited in a depôt except goods taken from an animal or things purchased or hired under this Act for active service or for an occasion of grave emergency. The depôt shall not be available for the deposit of goods taken from animals or things hired in times of peace, or from animals or things before they are approved for hire or purchase by the officer appointed under section 11.

33. No fees shall be chargeable in respect of the deposits of goods in a depôt or for their sale by auction.

Appendix I.

H.—CARRIAGE.

I.—The following are the Military Rules on this subject—vide Appendix VII, Army Regulations, India, Volume X, edition 1904:—

[Correction Slip 44 S. O., dated January 1911.]

1. Requisition on the civil authorities for hired carriage required for the movements of troops or stores should be prepared on I. A. F. S. 1675, giving full details of requirements, and sent so as to reach the District or Political Officer concerned, if possible, not less than fifteen days (one month in Gwalior State) before the carriage is required.

[Correction Slip 44 S. O., dated January 1911.]

2. Hired carriage will not ordinarily be required to proceed beyond the limits of the next civil district on the route, but will be exchanged, if possible, at such stations therein as may be fixed by the local civil authorities. It will be paid for at the authorized local hire rate from the date on which it is engaged by the civil officer for the march to the date of its discharge, both inclusive, but if taken double marches, double rates will be paid for each such march. Return hire will only be admissible when the carriage is necessarily taken beyond the nearest exchanging station, when half the full hire rate will be paid for each route book or other recognized stage on the return journey, without any allowance for halts. When circumstances render it necessary to collect the carriage before the date on which it is required, the civil authorities will always notify to the intending officer the time required for collection prior to the start, and the probable extra expense that will be incurred. Similarly, any carriage indented for which may be found in excess of final requirements and discharged before the march commences, will be paid for at the full hire rate, for each day or part of a day for which it is retained. If carriage is declared unserviceable by a committee of officers (which should include a civil officer), it will not be paid for. When chaudhris are engaged to collect carriage, their fees at local rates will be paid by the owners and not by the Military Department.

3. On engagement of the carriage, the civil or political officer will advance to the owners half the estimated hire for the full journey, and will then send the carriage to the place required in charge of a tahsil or darbar official, who will hand to the requisitioning officer a detail of the composition of the carriage, authorised loads, hire rates, owners' names, amount advanced and receipts for the same, and intimation as to the station at which the carriage should be exchanged (See I. A. F. S. 1675). The amount advanced will be at once repaid to the civil officer by the Supply and Transport Corps.

4. The civil officer supplying the carriage will at the same time warn the civil officer at the first exchanging station of the transport requiring exchange, and the date and place at which it will be required. The latter will then proceed as in paragraph 3 and warn the next exchanging station. Similar action will be taken at each exchanging station on the route.

5. Should any change be required en-route in the original quantity and description of transport supplied, the Officer Commanding the troops must give the civil officer at the exchanging station concerned as much notice as possible.

6. Carriage breaking down between exchanging stations should be replaced on the spot in communication with the local civil officials, and paid off. If the advance received has not been liquidated, the owner must refund the amount then due.

7. On arrival at an exchanging station or at destination, the carriage should be at once released and paid off by the Supply and Transport Officer if there is one, otherwise by a British Officer of the marching unit in the presence of the civil official attached to the troops, the acquittance roll being signed by both and countersigned by the Officer Commanding. Any disputes will be referred to and settled by the district civil officer at the place at which the transport is released.

[Correction Slip 44 S. O., dated January 1911.]

8. If carts are brought from a distance and detained at a camp of exercise, etc., the full rate of hire will be paid for each day for such detention. Carriage should not, however, be detained at a camp which lasts for five days or over, except in very special circumstances.

9. When carriage is discharged, a certificate in English and the Vernacular should be given by the civil officer to the exchanging station or by the civil officer accompanying the troops, to each person in charge thereof, to protect the carriage from being taken for the use of troops while on its return journey, unless such troops are marching in the direction of the owner's home. If so employed, the full hire rate will be paid.

[Para. 219, Army Regulations, India, Volume X.]

10. The Officer Commanding will be responsible that animals are not overladen nor ill-treated, and that on arrival at destination or an exchanging station all carriage is released as early as possible. Animals must always be unloaded when crossing rivers in boats. Hired transport establishments not being amenable to Military discipline, any serious misbehaviour on their part must be dealt with in communication with the civil authorities.

II.—The following supplementary rules are issued by the Financial Commissioner with the approval of the Local Government:—

1. The responsibility for the supply of carriage for the movement of troops or for individuals in Military employ, authorised to travel at the public expense, or for stores, rests in the first instance, with the Supply and Transport Corps. It is only when that Corps is unable to meet the demand that a call will be made on the civil authorities.

2. A copy of Form I. A. F. S. 1675, referred to in rule I (1) is given as Appendix A to this standing order; the exchanging stations referred to in Rule I (2) are detailed in Appendix B and the local hire rates in Appendix C.

3. The cost of return hire for carriage taken beyond an exchanging station [Rule I (2)] will be a charge against the Military Department if the Commanding Officer of the regiment has failed to give due notice of his requirements, or if a relief has been provided by the civil officer responsible but has not been taken up by the regiment or detachment for which it is supplied. If such relief has not been provided in spite of due notice to the civil officers the excess payment will ordinarily be a charge against the Civil Department. The District Officer should report to the Commissioner each case in which he has declined to furnish a relief, assigning reasons for the same. The Commissioner will notice any cases in which the reasons are not satisfactory; for much of the hardship entailed under existing arrangements upon owners of cattle is owing to the rules regarding relief not being attended to.

[Correction Slip 44 S. O., dated January 1911.]

4. For carriage employed in any part of the Punjab during the rainy season or between the 1st of June and 1st of October, an additional charge will be made equivalent to 25 per cent. on the hire that would be leviable according to the local rates. This rule is subject to the special provisions of the Simla rules, which allow half rates for halts and back hire in certain cases, and dispense with the additional charge of 25 per cent. This rule does not apply to the Gurdaspur, Attock and Rawalpindi districts, rates for which are specially provided.

5. Ordinarily chaudhris will arrange with the owners of carriages as to the scale of fees to be paid, but in the absence of any special engagement, they will be entitled to 6 pies or half-an-anna per rupee on the total hire due for carriage from the station at which it is engaged to the station at which it ought to be relieved. In the case of coolies and bearers the chaudhri's fees will be 6 pies or half-an-anna per man.

6. An exception to the Military Rule, which lays down that chaudhri's fees will be paid by the owners, exists in the Simla District, where chaudhri's fees are added to the rates of hire fixed by the Local Government, and are therefore paid by the hirers of carriage.

7. (i) The civil officer furnishing the carriage is bound to see that the advance referred to in Rule I (8) is made before the carriage is made over to the applicant. He is also bound, before granting the passport referred to in Rule I (8) and formally discharging the carriage, to satisfy himself that the owners have been paid in full according to the prescribed rates.

(ii) This advance will be drawn from the Treasury on a simple receipt, and on its being recouped by the Supply and Transport Corps, will be refunded into the Treasury.

8. The owner of carriage should be supplied with a copy of the requisition filled up in English and Urdu characters.

9. All tolls will be payable by the hirer of carriage in cash or by free pass.

10. The rules and tables of rates should be hung up in dâk bungalows, serais, tahsils, thanas and other public places.

11. Monthly rates, when not specified, will be determined by mutual agreement.

12. For the purpose of calculating remuneration for carriage, a part of a stage must be treated as equivalent to a whole stage.

13. The authorised loads, except in the Rawalpindi, Attock and Gurdaspur districts, and the Kulu Sub-Division of the Kangra District, are as follows :—

SHIPPING.

The following table shows the number and tonnage of vessels, which entered and cleared with cargoes at ports in British India during September, 1916, as compared with August, 1916, and September, 1915, 1914 and 1913:—

In the month of September, 1916, there were 211 arrivals* and 565 sailings † with cargoes in and from India. As regards tonnage, if a comparison be made with September, 1913, the corresponding pre-war month, it will be seen that there is a decrease in the tonnage of vessels cleared with cargoes of 111,601 tons or 18 per cent. The clearances from Sind in September, 1916, showed an increase of 33 per cent as compared with September, 1913; while Bengal recorded a decrease of 19 per cent, Bombay of 34 per cent, Madras of 33 per cent, and Burma of 21 per cent. The decrease in the entries (with cargoes) amounted to 212,670 tons or 40 per cent.

The shipping clearances with cargoes in foreign trade from the ports of British India in the six months, April to September, 1916, as compared with the corresponding period of 1913, i.e., before the war broke out, show the present position of the freight market as follows:—

	TONNAGE CLEARANCES IN THE SIX MONTHS, APRIL TO SEPTEMBER.
	1913 Peace conditions.	1916 War conditions.
British ships (including British Indian)	3,227,915	2,425,820
Foreign ships	890,443	494,340
TOTAL	4,118,358	2,920,160

Under war conditions, the total tonnage clearances have declined 29 per cent. Under peace conditions, the British (including British Indian) tonnage was 78 per cent and foreign tonnage 22 per cent of the total, while under war conditions, the British (including British Indian) tonnage is 83 per cent and foreign tonnage 17 per cent.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN SELECTED ARTICLES IN AUGUST, 1916.

The object of the tables below is to show the quantities of the principal staples of agricultural produce imported from the various provinces, etc., and from foreign countries into the ports of Calcutta, Bombay, Karachi, and the Madras ports during the month of August, 1916, and for the five months April to August, 1916, as compared with the corresponding periods of 1915. The statistics include foreign sea-borne and coasting trade as well as inland (rail and river-borne) trade. They have been furnished by Collectors of Customs, Steamer Companies, Railway Audit Officers, the Commissioners for the Port of Calcutta, etc.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN AUGUST 1915 AND 1916.

It will be seen from Table I, that the imports by rail, river and sea in August, 1916, as against the corresponding month of 1915, show (in round numbers) a decrease of—

42 per cent in tea

(28,625,000 lbs as against 49,535,400 lbs last year.)

35 per cent in jute.

(418,800 bales as against 644,600 bales last year.)

31 per cent in gram and pulse.

(24,300 tons as against 35,300 tons last year.)

26 per cent in raw cotton.

(87,800 bales as against 118,000 bales last year.)

23 per cent in rice (including paddy).

(84,800 tons as against 110,100 tons last year).

The imports of wheat (excluding wheat flour) by rail, river and sea into ports show an increase of 445 per cent (206,100 tons as against 37,800 tons last year) due mainly to larger exports from the Punjab and the Central Provinces and Berar. The increase of 103 per cent (34,900 tons as against 17,200 tons last year) in the imports of linseed is accounted for by larger exports mainly from Bihar and Orissa and the United Provinces. The imports of rape and mustard seed show a rise of 5 per cent (12,400 tons as against 11,800 tons last year) owing mainly to larger exports from the United Provinces.

It will be seen from Table IV (wheat, excluding wheat flour) that the principal sources of the imports in August, 1915, were the Punjab, the United Provinces and Sind and British Baluchistan. During the corresponding month of 1916, the Punjab sent by far the largest quantity, namely, 77 per cent of the total. Table XI shows the exports out of India of wheat (including wheat flour) month by month during the last five years.

NOTE.—One bale of cotton or jute is equivalent to 400 lbs.
One maund is equivalent to 82⅐ lbs.
One maund of paddy is taken as equivalent to 25 seers of rice

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN FIVE MONTHS ENDING AUGUST 1915 AND 1916.

The five months' figures in table I show (in round numbers) a decrease of—

53 per cent in jute.
(928,300 bales as against 1,965,800 bales last year.)

10 per cent in gram and pulse.
(177,800 tons as against 198,300 tons last year.)

Imports of linseed by rail, river and sea into ports show an increase of 66 per cent (215,900 tons as against 130,100 tons last year) mainly on account of larger exports from the United Provinces, Bihar and Orissa and the Central Provinces and Berar. The increase of 24 per cent (92,700 tons as against 74,500 tons last year) in rape and mustard seed is accounted for by larger exports from up-country into the ports mainly from the United Provinces.

TRADE FLUCTUATIONS IN AUGUST 1916 AS COMPARED WITH THE PREVIOUS MONTH.

As compared with July, 1916, the imports in August 1916 into the ports referred to above show (in round numbers) an increase of—

200 per cent in jute.
(418,800 bales as against 139,700 bales previous month.)

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, OCTOBER 18, 1916.

First INDIGO FORECAST, 1916-17.

This forecast is based upon reports received from six provinces, which contain practically the whole area under indigo in British India.

The total area sown is estimated at 625,900 acres as against 258,100 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 142 per cent, which is generally attributed to the high prices of indigo owing to the war. As compared with the final figures of last year (314,300 acres), the present estimate shows an advance of 99 per cent. All the provinces show an increase in the area sown, the largest increase being in the United Provinces and Madras.

The season has, on the whole, been favourable, except in Madras and the eastern districts of the United Provinces. In those tracts the crop has been adversely affected by heavy rainfall.

Details for the provinces are given below. Estimates of yield are not ordinarily made at this stage; but provisional estimates have been made, as in last year, in view of the importance of the crop brought about by the war, and are shown below :—

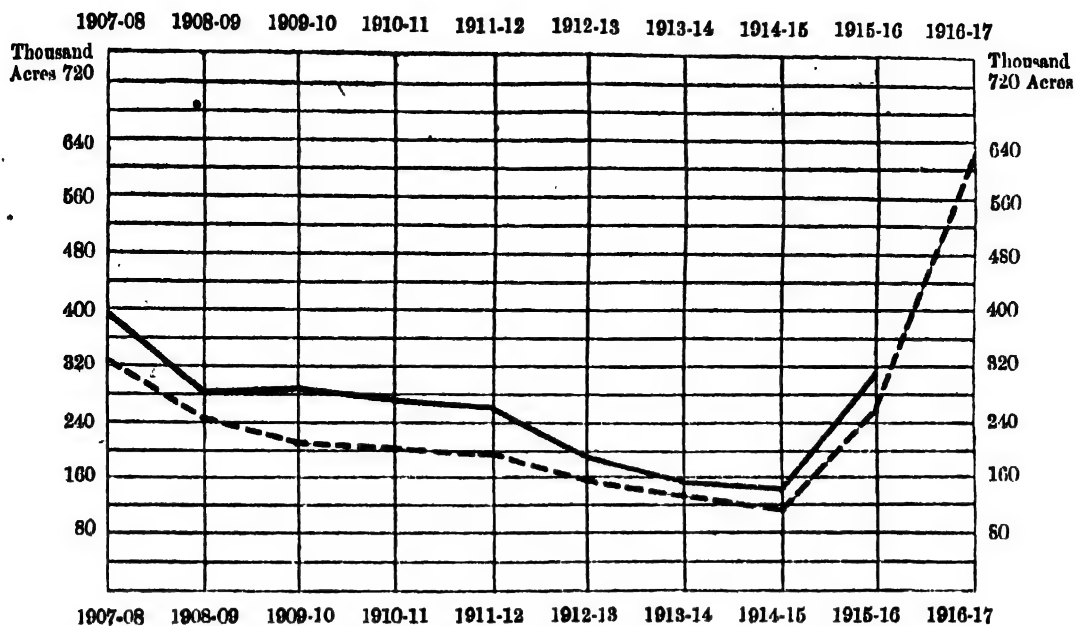
Province	Area (First forecast)		Provisional estimate of yield
	1916-17	1915-16	1916-17	1915-16
	acres	acres	cwts	cwts
Bihar and Orissa	76,500	60,800	10,800	7,300
Madras	344,300	126,000	40,000	24,000
Punjab	44,900	18,500	7,000	1,800
United Provinces	150,300	46,500	16,000	4,000
Bombay and Sind (including Native States)	7,700	4,700	1,200	1,200
Bengal	2,200	1,600	200	200
TOTAL	625,900	258,100	75,200	38,500

The provincial reports are summarised below :—

Bihar and Orissa (37·9 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The area sown this year is estimated at 76,500 acres against 60,800 acres reported in the corresponding forecast of last year, or an increase of 26 per cent. The increase is due to the great rise in the price of indigo on account of the war. The season has been, on the whole, favourable, although some of the factories suffered from drought in May and June, and the floods during July did some damage. The Sumatrana variety has been a disappointment in growth of the plant and the produce, probably owing to the seed being gathered from plant which has deteriorated. A larger area would have been put under the Java-Natal indigo, had there been a sufficiency of seed. The yield is provisionally estimated at 79 per cent of the normal, which amounts to 10,800 cwts against 7,300 cwts estimated at this date last year. The trade estimate for the province (including the Nadia district of Bengal) amounts to 10,600 cwts.

Madras (33·4 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The total area now reported for the current year is 344,300 acres, against 126,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 173 per cent. Owing to large profits made last year, there has been a very high increase in the area placed under the indigo crop in the current year. Good seed has been generally available, although the price has ruled very high. The increase is specially noticeable in Kistna, Guntur, Nellore, and Kurnool. The season has so far been generally favourable. The yield is roughly estimated at 40,000 cwts as against 24,000 cwts estimated at this time last year. Latest reports state that the heavy rains in September badly damaged the crop.

Punjab (15·1 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The total area up to the end of September is estimated at 44,900 acres as against 18,500 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 143 per cent. The increase is due to the abnormally high prices of dyes owing to the war. The indigo crop is sown on irrigated lands and the deficient rainfall prior to the middle of July did not therefore affect sowings appreciably. The rainfall in the second half of July and in August immensely benefited the standing crop, and the outturn is expected to be good. The total yield is provisionally estimated at 7,000 cwts, as against 1,800 cwts estimated at this time last year.



United Provinces (11·4 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The total area is roughly estimated at 150,300 acres as against 46,500 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 223 per cent. Of this, the area under indigo irrigated from canals amounts to 117,400 acres as compared with 38,200 acres last year. The condition of the crop varied greatly. In the western districts, wherever canal water was available for early sowings, it did well; but in consequence of low supplies in the canals, much of it was sown late. The rains, however, set in shortly afterwards, and continuous wet weather retarded the growth of the crop. In the eastern districts, where it is sown without irrigation, it germinated well; but subsequently the crop suffered from heavy rainfall and floods. The total yield of dye is roughly estimated at 16,000 cwts as against 4,000 cwts, the corresponding estimate of last year.

Bombay and Sind (1·7 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The total area sown is reported to be 7,700 acres (5,100 acres being in the Khairpur State), which is 64 per cent above the corresponding estimate of last year. The expansion is ascribed to high prices fetched by the product since the outbreak of war. Inundation has been favourable, and the crop is doing well. The outturn is roughly estimated at 1,200 cwts.

Bengal (0·5 per cent of the total area under indigo in British India).—The area placed under the crop is estimated at 2,200 acres as against 1,600 acres last year. A normal outturn is expected and the total yield is estimated at about 200 cwts, the same as in last year.

Chart.—The chart below illustrates the variations in the preliminary estimates of the last ten years as compared with those in the final figures.

DEPARTMENT OF STATISTICS, INDIA

CALCUTTA, OCTOBER 21, 1916

Second COTTON Forecast, 1916-17.

This forecast is based on reports furnished by provinces, which comprise the entire cotton crop of India. It relates generally to sowings made up to the 1st October.

The total area so far reported this year amounts to 18,169,000 acres, as against 16,253,000 acres on this date last year, or an increase of 12 per cent.

The increase is most noticeable in Ajmer-Merwara (94 per cent), the United Provinces (29 per cent), Bombay (28 per cent), Central India (12 per cent), Hyderabad and the Central Provinces and Berar (8 per cent each), and Burma (3 per cent). On the other hand, the North-West Frontier Province shows a decrease of 51 per cent, Bengal of 16 per cent, the Punjab of 14 per cent, and Madras of 4 per cent.

The present condition of the crop is reported to be generally from fair to good, although the crop was adversely affected by excessive rain, especially in parts of the Bombay Deccan, the Central Provinces and Berar, the United Provinces, and Hyderabad.

The detailed figures for the provinces and States are given below :—

The provincial reports are summarised below :—

Bombay and Baroda (30·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown up to the 1st October with both early and late varieties of cotton is reported at 5,029,000 acres (2,206,000 acres being in the Native States), which is 28 per cent above the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. The increase is general, and is attributed partly to high prices obtained last year and partly to favourable rains at sowing time. In Gujarat early rains were deficient in the north and in Kathiawar, and continuous heavy rains later on necessitated resowing in parts of the south; the condition of the crop is reported to be generally good at present. In the Deccan excessive rains in September turned the crop yellow in parts of Khandesh, Nasik, Ahmednagar, and Sholapur; but at present the crop is on the whole doing well. In the Karnatak sowing still continues in places, and the condition of the seedlings is reported to be satisfactory.

Central Provinces and Berar (19·9 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 4,435,000 acres (3,089,000 acres being in Berar), which is 8 per cent in excess of the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. All the important cotton growing districts except Yeotmal have contributed towards this increase, which is attributed partly to favourable climatic conditions at sowing time and partly to the high price obtained last year. Good and generally well distributed showers were received all over the provinces in June. Moderate to heavy rain fell in July and August and continued during September. Sowings were generally successful and germination was good. Some resowing was necessary in parts of Jubbulpore, Wardha, and Yeotmal, while heavy and continuous rain retarded weeding operations and damaged the crop and stunted its growth on heavy soils in parts of several districts. The production in the Central Provinces and Berar is at present estimated at 4 and 12 per cent, respectively, less than that of last year; but fine weather in October may increase the outturn considerably.

Madras (10·3 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown up to the end of September is estimated at 1,227,000 acres, or 4½ per cent below the area at the corresponding date last year. The decrease is mainly due to heavy rains having delayed the sowings of "Cocanadas." Cotton is also being replaced this year to some extent by the indigo and groundnut crops in the north. The present figures, however, are no indication of the probable ultimate area, since in the south "Tinnevellys" are mainly sown in October. Sowings of "Salems" show an increase, due to the spread of "Cambodias."

Punjab (7·3 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area under cotton is reported to be 934,000 acres (82,000 acres being in Native States), as against 1,090,000 acres reported at this date last year, or a decrease of 14 per cent. It may, however, be noted that the corresponding forecast of last year was an over-estimate. The rainfall in July and August was beneficial, although the crop in low-lying lands suffered slightly in a few districts. The heavy rainfall in the latter half of July stimulated late sowings in the unirrigated areas of certain districts. The season has been very favourable for the maturing of the crop, which is in

(a) Includes Hyderabad (3,126,000 acres)
(b) Includes 51,000 acres in Mysore for which trade descriptions have not been received good condition everywhere. The yield on both irrigated and unirrigated areas is expected to be good.

United Provinces (5·7 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area is roughly estimated at 1,100,000 acres, which is 29 per cent above the area estimated at the corresponding date last year. The rainfall during August was heavy and above normal in all parts of the provinces. A break during the early part of September benefited the crop. This was, however, followed by heavy rain accompanied by high winds, which caused serious damage to the early sown cotton. In the Agra and Bundelkhand divisions, where the rainfall has been the lightest, the crop is a fair one and the outturn is estimated at 90 per cent of the normal. Elsewhere the estimate varies between 60 and 80 per cent. For the province as a whole, the crop is at present estimated at 80 per cent of the normal.

Sind (1·3 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown is estimated at 234,000 acres, as against 233,000 acres reported at the corresponding date last year. Water supply was sufficient at the sowing time, and the condition of the crop is reported to be fair to good.

Burma (1 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area is estimated at 227,000 acres, which is 3 per cent in excess of the area estimated at this date last year. The condition of the crop is generally satisfactory, and a normal outturn is expected.

Bihar and Orissa (0·4 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area sown up to date with both early and late crop is estimated at 67,000 acres, which is 1 per cent less than the area reported at this date last year. For both the varieties the weather conditions have been generally favourable. The present condition of the early crop is reported to be fair to good, but some damage has been done to the late crop by floods in Saran and Muzaffarpur. In Cuttack and Balasore sowings of the late crop have not yet commenced.

Bengal (0·3 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown up to date with both early and late cotton is reported to be 72,000 acres, which is 16 per cent short of the area estimated at this date last year. The decrease is attributed to unfavourable weather conditions at sowing time. Since the issue of the first forecast in August last conditions have been favourable to the growth of the early crop in Bankura, and the present condition in the other districts is reported to be fairly satisfactory except in parts of Hill Tippera, where a poor outturn is apprehended owing to insufficiency of rain in the earlier stages. The condition of the late crop is fair in Midnapore. In Bankura sowings of the late crop have not yet begun.

North-West Frontier Province (0·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The area sown up to the end of September is estimated at 25,000 acres, which is 51 per cent below the area estimated at this time last year. The decrease occurs both in the irrigated and unirrigated areas in all the districts and agencies except the Tochi and Kurram, but is chiefly noticeable in Peshawar and Dera Ismail Khan. The contraction in the former district is due to the area in the corresponding forecast having been over-estimated and in the latter it is attributed to insufficient rain at sowing time and absence of water from hill torrents. The prospects of the crop are so far satisfactory on the whole, and an average outturn may be expected.

Assam (0·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The estimated area under the crop is 32,000 acres, being the same as reported at the corresponding date last year. The prospects of the crop continue to be good except in Sibsagar and the Garo Hills, where they are reported to be fair. The prospects appear to have improved in Sylhet since the issue of the first forecast.

Ajmer-Merwara (0·2 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area as now reported is 35,000 acres (Ajmer 18,000, Kekri 12,000, and Merwara 5,000) which is 94 per cent above the area reported at the corresponding date of last year. Prospects are reported to be fair to good.

Hyderabad (14·6 per cent of the total area under cotton in India).—The total area is estimated at 3,126,000 acres, as against 2,888,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 8 per cent. The increase is shared by all the districts, except Aurangabad and Nizamabad, where heavy and continuous rainfall damaged the crop and necessitated resowing with rabi (spring) crops. The condition of the crop is reported to be generally fair to good.

The detailed figures are as follows :—

Cotton crop in foreign countries.—The latest information published by the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, regarding the cotton crop of 1916 in foreign countries may be summarised as follows :—In the United States of America the area and yield of cotton are estimated at 35,979,000 acres and 15,402,000 bales (of 400 lbs each) as against 31,399,000 acres and 13,345,000 bales in 1915, or an increase of about 15 per cent both in area and in yield. In Egypt the area under cotton is estimated at 1,718,000 acres as compared with 1,231,000 acres in the preceding year, or an increase of about 40 per cent.

Second SUGARCANE FORECAST, 1916-17

This forecast is based upon reports furnished by provinces, which contain, on an average, 99 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India.

The area so far reported this year amounts to 2,354,000 acres, as against 2,508,000 acres reported at this date last year, or a decrease of 6 per cent. The United Provinces, which contain over half the area under sugarcane, are mainly responsible for the decrease. As reported in the August forecast, conditions at sowing time were unfavourable in those provinces owing to deficient winter rains and a low supply of water in canals.

In the Rohilkhand, Gorakhpur and Benares divisions of the United Provinces the crop has been damaged by excessive rainfall and floods. Elsewhere, the present condition of the crop is generally reported to be from fair to good.

The detailed figures for the provinces are as follows :—

Second Forecast, October

Central Provinces and Berar . . .	22,000	20,000	+ 2,000
Total .	2,354,000	2,508,000	—154,000

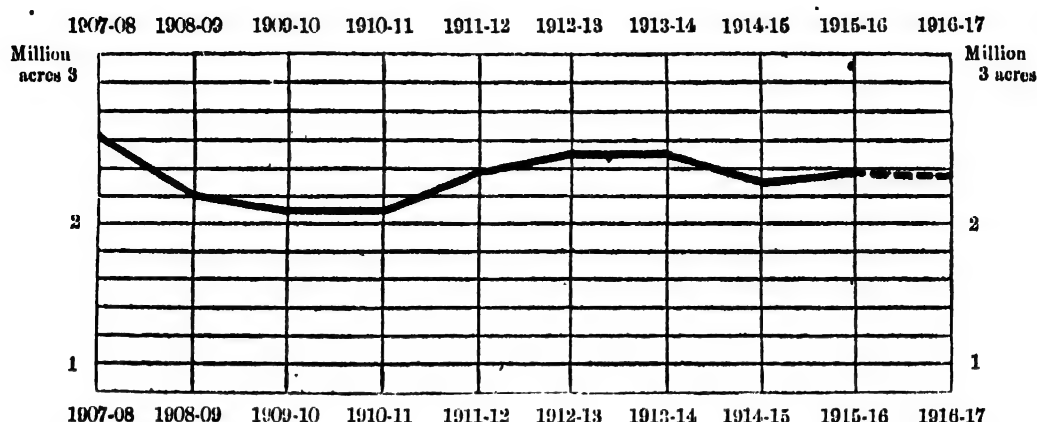
The provincial reports are summarised below :—

United Provinces (53·2 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India).—The total area planted was roughly estimated in August last at 1,220,000 acres, as against 1,390,000 acres at the corresponding time last year, or a decrease of 12 per cent. No modification has been made since the publication of the first forecast in August. During August the rainfall was heavy and above normal in all parts of the provinces. There was a short break in the beginning of September. The monsoon then set in again, and there was continuous rain till the first week of October. The rainfall was very heavy in the Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur divisions, causing serious damage in low-lying areas. The condition of cane in the Rohilkhand division is generally unfavourable, the crop having suffered from insect pests in its early stages and later on from excessive rain; and the outturn is not expected to exceed 80 per cent of the normal. In the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions, the crop on low-lying areas has suffreed from flooding, and the outturn will be indifferent; on higher lands its condition is fair. Elsewhere prospects are more favourable. For the province as a whole, the average outturn is estimated at 85 per cent of the normal.

Punjab (15·3 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India).—The revised estimate of area up to the end of September amounts to 358,000 acres as compared with 354,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 1 per cent. The area now estimated is less than the first forecast by about 2,000 acres. The season has been favourable, and the condition of the standing crop and the expected yield are stated to be good.

Bihar and Orissa (11 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India), Bengal (9·4 per cent), and Assam (1·5 per cent).—No reports are furnished by these provinces in October. The figures reported in the August forecast were 270,000 acres in Bihar and Orissa, 223,000 acres in Bengal, and 35,000 acres in Assam. From the provincial weather and crop reports it appears that the condition of the crop is generally good.

Madras (3·8 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India).—The estimated area under sugarcane is 99,000 acres, as against 85,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 16 per cent. The increase is partly due to better reporting from the Zamindari areas and is chiefly confined to the Central districts and South Arcot. Sowings took place at normal times, and the condition of the crop is from fair to good.



Bombay and Sind (2·7 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India).—The total area is reported to be 95,000 acres, which is 7 per cent above the corresponding estimate of last year. The increase is general, and is due to the high prices of sugar since the outbreak of war, and also to ample supply of water in wells and tanks at the planting season. In Ahmednagar and Nasik the new Godavari canal afforded facilities for extended cultivation of the crop. The season, on the whole, has been favourable, and the crop is doing well everywhere, except in parts of Dharwar and the Southern Maratha Country States, where its condition is only fair owing to insufficient water-supply. In Sind the crop is good.

North-West Frontier Province (1·3 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India).—The total area sown up to the end of September is estimated at 32,000 acres, which is practically the same as reported in the corresponding forecast of last year. The Peshawar district shows an increase in area, which is due to the high prices of gur. On the other hand, a decrease occurs in Hazara and Bannu and is apparently due to unfavourable conditions at sowing time. The prospects of the standing crop are good.

Central Provinces and Berar (0·9 per cent of the total area under sugarcane in British India).—The total area planted is estimated at 22,000 acres, which is 10 per cent above the area reported at this date last year. The increase is mainly attributed to good rainfall. The conditions at sowing time were generally favourable and germination was successful. Good rain was received in June, and it was generally well distributed. Moderate to heavy rain fell in July and continued to date of report. The crop is generally in good condition, and an yield of 113 per cent of the normal (as against 111 per cent last year) is expected. [Normal=2,369 lbs. per acre.]

AREA OF SUGARCANE
(In million acres)

Sugarcane crop in foreign countries.—From the latest information published by the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, it appears that in Mauritius the yield of sugar from sugarcane in 1916 is estimated at 217,000 tons as against 214,000 tons in 1915. The present estimate shows a reduction of 42,000 tons as compared with the estimate made in May of this year. The area planted with sugarcane in the Union of South Africa in 1915-16 is estimated at 160,000 acres from which the probable yield of cane is expected to be 3,992,000 tons. The weather conditions are reported to be favourable. In Cuba the weather has been favourable, and the crop generally promises well.

From unofficial sources it appears that in Mauritius the probable reduction of the crop, due to the cyclone of May, is now placed at from 10 to 30 per cent., according to locality. In Hawaii the crop has been adversely affected by abnormal rains early in the year. In the United States of America the yield is estimated at 1,755,000 tons against 1,452,000 tons in 1915-16. In Cuba conditions have been generally favourable and the 1916-17 estimate is put at 3,200,000 tons against 2,990,000 tons in 1915-16. The Java crop for 1916-17 is at present estimated at 1,500,000 tons as against 1,264,000 tons last year.

Second SESAMUM FORECAST, 1916-17

This forecast is based upon reports received from eight provinces, which contain, on an average, 78 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India. The returns in this forecast exclude estimates for the "mixed" crop of the United Provinces and for the late crop of Bengal. The Final Memorandum, which will be published in January, will, however, include, as usual, returns of these areas.

The total area so far reported for the present season is 3,152,000 acres, as against 3,169,000 acres at this time last year, or a decrease of 0·5 per cent. Details of the area by provinces are stated below :—

Second Forecast, October.

Provinces	1916-17	1915-16	Increase + or Decrease —
United Provinces (unmixed crop)	286,000	323,000	—37,000
Central Provinces and Berar	839,000	940,000	—101,000
Madras	646,000	846,000	—200,000
Bombay (including Native States)	793,000	526,000	+267,000
Bengal (early crop)	185,000	194,000	—9,000
Bihar and Orissa	176,000	(a)186,000	—10,000
Punjab	160,000	107,000	+53,000
Sind (including Native States)	39,000	44,000	—5,000
Ajmer-Merwara	28,000	3,000	+25,000
Total	3,152,000	(a)3,169,000	—17,000

(a) Revised figure.

Heavy and continuous rain adversely affected the crop in some of the most important sesamum-growing districts of the United Provinces, and also in parts of the Central Provinces, Madras, Bihar, and the Bombay Presidency. The present condition of the crop is reported to be, on the whole, from fair to good.

The provincial reports are summarised below :—

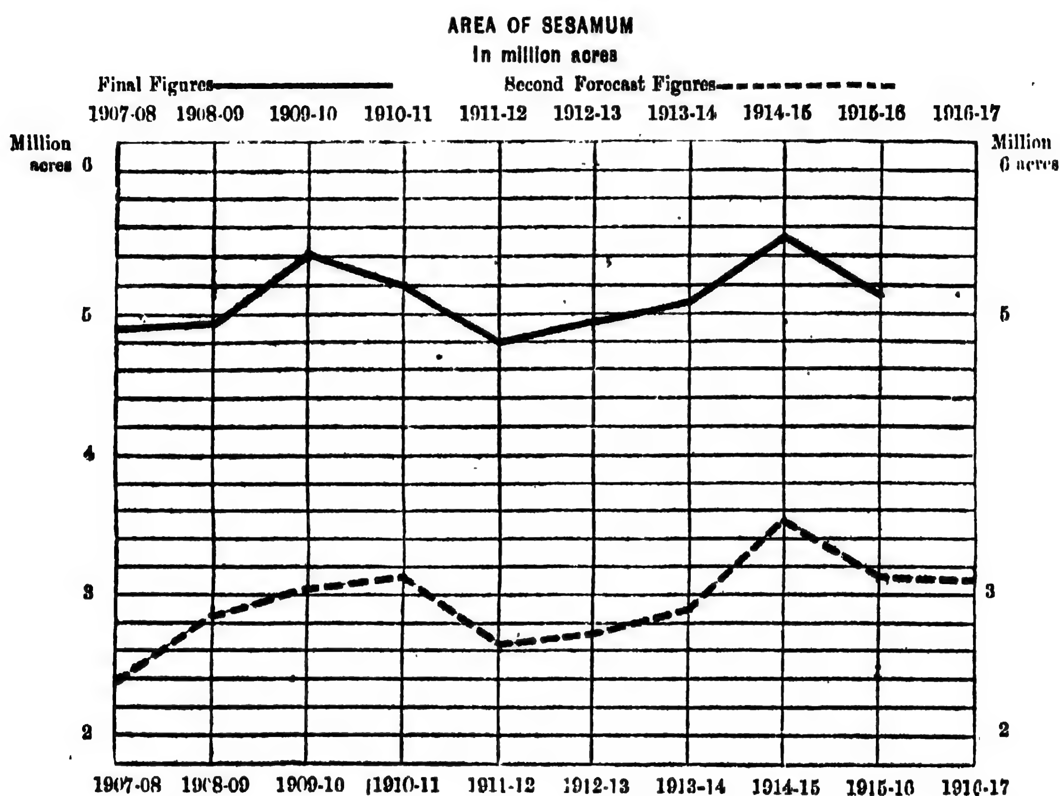
United Provinces (24·6 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area sown with the "unmixed" crop is estimated at 286,000 acres, as against 323,000 acres reported at the corresponding date last year, or a decrease of 11 per cent. No estimate is available at present of the area sown with the "mixed" crop, which usually constitutes over two-thirds of the total area under sesamum in these provinces. Rainfall in August was heavy and was followed by a short break in early September; rain then again set in and continued to the end of that month. In the Agra and Jhansi divisions, where rainfall has been the lightest, the crop escaped serious injury and the outturn is at present estimated at 80 to 95 per cent of the normal. In the rest of the provinces excessive and continuous rain caused serious damage to the crop, and the estimate of outturn varies between 50 and 75 per cent of the normal. [Normal=280 lbs. per acre.]

Central Provinces and Berar (16·9 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The total area is now estimated at 839,000 acres (91,000 acres being in Berar), which is 11 per cent smaller than the area reported at the corresponding date last year. The shrinkage in area is due mainly to continuous and heavy rain at sowing time in certain districts of the Central Provinces. The climatic conditions were favourable at sowing time in Akola and Yeotmal. Good showers were received all over the provinces throughout June and the rainfall was generally well distributed. Moderate to heavy rain fell in July and August and continued up to the date of report. The crop suffered from excessive rain in several districts and its growth was stunted. The average outturn for the whole province is, however, estimated to be 99 per cent of the normal. [Normal=224 lbs. per acre.]

Madras (16·3 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The total area sown up to 1st October is estimated at 646,000 acres, which is 24 per cent short of the area reported at this time last year. The decrease is due partly to heavy rains in the Circars, and partly to the replacement of sesamum by indigo and groundnut in other tracts. The decrease, however, in the Centre and South is not altogether real, as it is partly accounted for by a too favourable estimate having been made last year. A considerable area still remains to be sown in these tracts. The condition of the crop is reported to be fair to good.

Bombay (5·6 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The total area sown is estimated to be 793,000 acres (569,000 acres being in Native States), which is 51 per cent above the area reported at this time last year. In Gujarat the crop was sown to a larger extent than last year owing to more favourable rains, but continuous heavy rains later on did not permit a full area being placed under the crop. In the Deccan the cultivation was restricted in places as greater attention was paid to the growth of the more paying crop of cotton and of food and fodder crops. In parts of both these tracts the crop is reported to have suffered from continuous heavy rains in the middle of the season, but it has improved by subsequent breaks, and its condition is, on the whole, fairly satisfactory. In the Karnatak the area is about the same as in last year; the crop is doing well in Bijapur and in the eastern part of Belgaum; elsewhere it is only fair. In the Konkan the area shows an increase due to rotation of crops, and the crop is in good condition.

Bengal (5·3 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—No report is furnished by the province in October. The figure reported in the August forecast for the early crop was 185,000 acres, as against 194,000 acres for the corresponding period of last year.



Bihar and Orissa (4·2 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The total area sown with both early and late crops is reported to be 176,000 acres, as against 186,000 acres (revised figure) at this time last year, or a decrease of 5 per cent. Sowings of the late crop continued at the date of report in Saran, Champaran, Angul, and Sambalpur. The weather conditions have been generally favourable for the crop except in parts of Saran, Champaran, and Bhagalpur, where some damage has been done by excessive rain and floods. The average outturn for the whole province is estimated at 105 per cent of the normal. [Normal=350 lbs. per acre.]

Punjab (3 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The area is estimated at 160,000 acres as against 107,000 acres reported at the corresponding date last year, or an increase of 49 per cent. The season has been favourable, and the condition and prospects of the crop are reported to be generally good.

Sind (1·4 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The total area is estimated at 39,000 acres, which is 11 per cent below the area reported at this time last year. Copious rains in the desert tract brought about larger sowings in Karachi, Larkana, and Thar and Parkar; but the increase has not been sufficient to make up the deficit in Upper Sind where insect attacks and low prices have made the crop unpopular. The condition of the crop is reported to be good in Hyderabad and Upper Sind Frontier; elsewhere it is fair.

Ajmer-Merwara (0·4 per cent of the total area under sesamum in British India).—The total area placed under the crop is estimated at 28,000 acres (Ajmer 12,000 acres, Merwara 3,000 acres, and Kekri 13,000 acres), as compared with 3,000 acres reported at the corresponding date last year. The prospects of the crop are fair to good.

Chart.—The chart below illustrates the variations in the second estimates of acreage in the last ten years as compared with those in the final figures. The second estimates exclude the "mixed" crop (sesamum grown in combination with other crops) of the United Provinces for which no estimate is made at this stage.

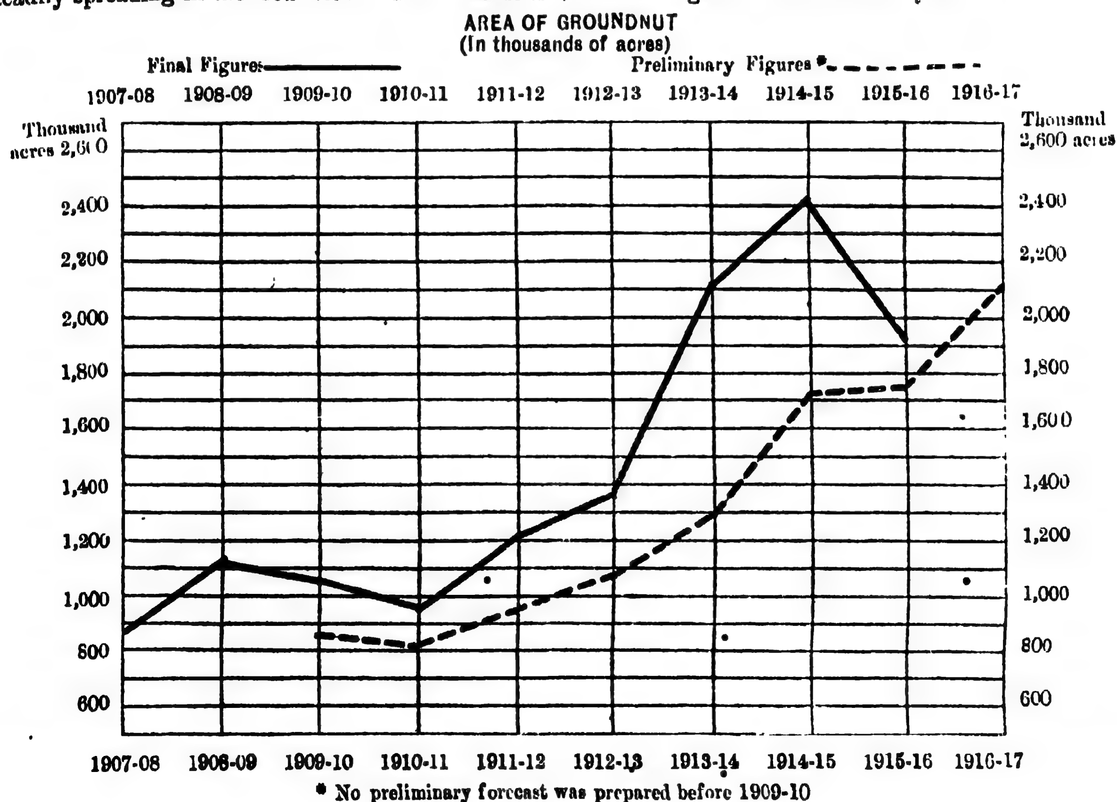
First GROUNDNUT Forecast, 1916-17

This forecast is based upon reports received from the three provinces of Madras, Bombay, and Burma, which comprise 99 per cent of the entire groundnut area of British India.

The total area sown in the present season in these provinces is estimated at 2,109,000 acres, as against 1,742,000 acres estimated at this time last year, or an increase of 21 per cent. The season has on the whole been favourable. The details for the provinces are given below :—

First forecast, October

Provinces	1916-17	1915-16	Increase + or Decrease –
	Acres	Acres	Acres
Madras	1,663,000	1,278,000	+ 385,000
Bombay (including Native States)	201,000	197,000	+ 4,000
Burma	245,000	267,000	–22,000
Total	2,109,000	1,742,000	+ 367,000



The provincial reports are summarised below :—

Madras (72·1 per cent of the total area under groundnut in British India).—The total area sown is estimated at 1,663,000 acres, which is 30 per cent above the area reported at this time last year. The increase is marked in the Deccan and the Central districts. The groundnut crop is replacing cotton to some extent in the black cotton soils, and is steadily spreading in the red soils. The extension of cultivation has been stimulated by the steadily rising prices that ruled during the past year. The season so far has been favourable to the crop.

Bombay (15·1 per cent of the total area under groundnut in British India).—The total area under the crop is estimated at 201,000 acres (55,000 acres being in the Native States), as against 197,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 2 per cent. South Deccan districts show some decline in area, due partly to insufficiency of rain at sowing time and partly to rotation of crops; but this decline has been made good by extended cultivation in other districts. The season since sowing has generally been favourable, and the crop is everywhere in thriving condition.

Burma (11·7 per cent of the total area under groundnut in British India).—The total area sown is estimated at 245,000 acres, which is 8 per cent short of the area reported at this time last year. The Pakokku and Sagaing districts continue to show an expansion of area under this crop; Meiktila also shows a small increase. The Myingyan district, on the other hand, shows a very large contraction, and Magwe also returns a reduced area. The district reports indicate that the prospects of the crop are good and that a normal outturn may generally be expected.

Chart.—The chart below shows the variations in the preliminary estimates as compared with those in the final figures of the last few years.

Heavy rain and floods have adversely affected the crop in parts of Bihar, Assam, the United Provinces, and northern Bengal; otherwise the present condition and prospects of the crop are reported to be generally from fair to good.

The provincial reports are summarised below :—

Bengal (26·6 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—(i) The area sown with autumn (aus) rice is reported to be 5,232,000 acres, as against 5,287,000 acres reported at this time last year, or a decrease of 1 per cent, owing to want of timely rains at sowing time, and the extended cultivation of jute in some districts. In the district of Backerganj, however, the decrease is attributed to the fact that last year there was an abnormal increase in area under bhadoi (autumn) paddy, owing to the failure of winter rice in the preceding year. Sowings progressed slowly till the middle of April when general rain facilitated matters. The early sown crop suffered from deficient rain in May, but the rainfall in June enabled further sowings to be made in the western districts and greatly helped the growth of the standing crops in east Bengal. The heavy rain in July did considerable damage to the crops on low lands in the northern districts, and the sudden rise of the rivers caused slight damage in some eastern districts. For the province as a whole, the average outturn is estimated at 78 per cent (against 86 per cent last year) of the normal. [Normal=823 lbs. per acre.]

(ii) The area under winter (aman) rice, which is the main crop, is estimated at 15,492,000 acres, as against 14,974,000 acres estimated at the corresponding date last year, or an increase of 3 per cent, which is mainly due to comparatively favourable weather during the transplanting period. Up to March the rainfall was very inadequate for the ploughing of fields for the winter rice crop. The rainfall in April, however, was sufficient and facilitated the sowings of the broadcast paddy. This was again followed by defective rainfall in May, and in consequence the crop suffered to some extent. In June, general rain fell throughout the province and transplanting commenced at the usual time. The progress of the operation was, however, somewhat retarded in some of the western districts owing to insufficiency of rain in July, while, on the other hand, the excessive rainfall and floods in the northern districts caused some damage to the crop in places on low lands. The rainfall in August greatly helped the growth of the standing crop. On the whole the season has been favourable. For the province as a whole, the average outturn is estimated at 92 per cent of the normal against 87 per cent estimated at this time last year. [Normal=987 lbs. per acre.]

(iii) An area of 405,000 acres was reported in March last to be under summer (boro) rice, as against 375,000 acres for last year. The outturn is estimated at 82 per cent of the normal, which amounts to 164.500 tons, as against 160,100 tons last year.

Bihar and Orissa (21·4 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—(i) The area under autumn rice is estimated at 3,655,000 acres, as against 3.812,000 acres reported at this time last year, or a decrease of 4 per cent. In parts of Orissa and Chota Nagpur weather conditions were unfavourable in the beginning, but the rainfall in August and September has been generally beneficial. Heavy rain and floods have, however, caused some damage to the crop in parts of Bihar. On the basis of district reports, the average outturn is at present estimated at 88 per cent of the normal, as against 86 per cent estimated at this date last year. [Normal=823 lbs. per acre.]

(ii) The area under winter rice is estimated at 12,509,000 acres against 12,371,000 acres at the corresponding period last year, or an increase of 1 per cent, which is due to favourable weather conditions early in the season. Transplantation was late in parts of Orissa and Chota Nagpur, owing to defective rainfall in the beginning of the season; but the rainfall in August and September has been generally beneficial. Heavy rain and floods have, however, caused some damage to the crop in parts of the Tirhut Division, and in Monghyr, Bhagalpur, and Purnea. The average outturn is at present estimated at 95 per cent of the normal, as against 85 per cent last year. [Normal=1,234 lbs.]

(iii) An area of 53,000 acres was reported in March last to be under summer rice, which is 32 per cent above the area of last year. The outturn was estimated at 18,400 tons, as against 12,500 tons last year.

Madras (13·8 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—The total area sown up to the 1st October is estimated at 8,508,000 acres, which is about 1 per cent greater than the area reported at this date last year. The early sowing rains have been good and plentiful, and the increase in acreage this year is really larger than the figures would indicate, last year's estimate having been somewhat too optimistic in the Carnatic and the Central tracts. In the Carnatic, Central, and Southern districts there is still, as usual at this time of the year, a very considerable area which depends on the north-east monsoon and is therefore not yet sown. There is also a considerable area of the second crop to be sown later. The general condition of the crop is good.

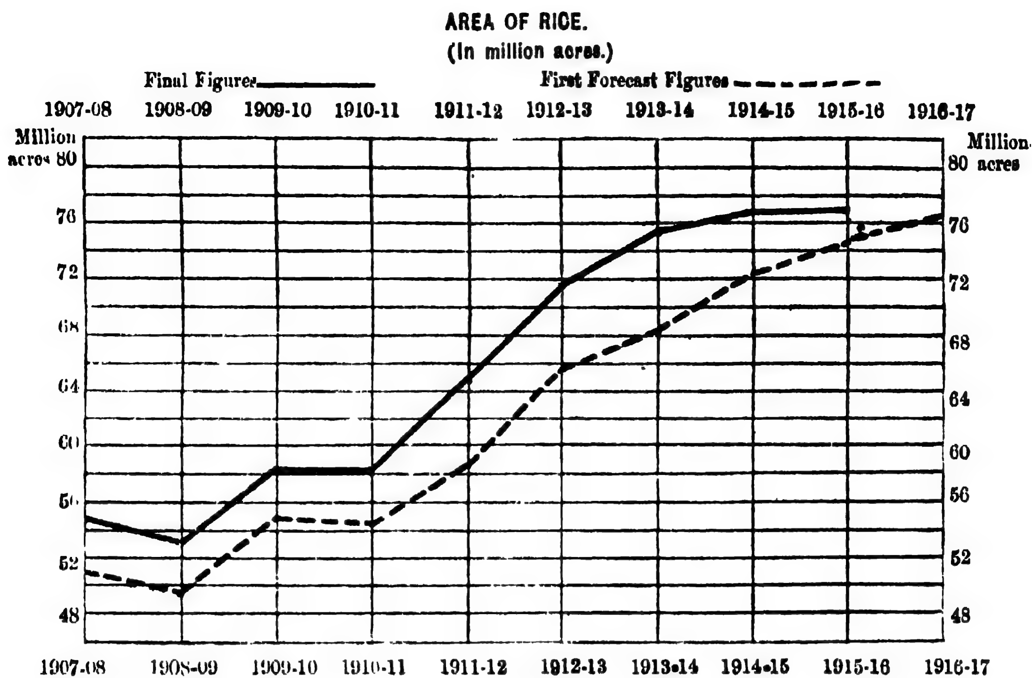
Burma (13·2 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—The total area sown is estimated at 10,458,000 acres, which is slightly below the revised estimate on corresponding date last year. In Lower Burma early and middle rains were favourable, although Pyapon reports that long breaks in the middle rains adversely affected the crop on high lands. In June floods partially damaged seedlings in Thaton. Sowings commenced in good time and continued normally. Prospects of the crop are reported as favourable. In six Upper Burma districts seasonal conditions have not been so favourable. Early rains being late in Katha, Shwebo, and Mandalay, transplanting operations were late in these districts. In Minbu, Kyaukse, and Yamethin, on the other hand, the season has been better and prospects may be considered as fair to good. For tracts, for which conventional forecasts are made, the season has been fair. Late rains are now of primary importance. At present prospects in the sixteen chief rice-exporting districts are good, and fair in the remainder of the province.

United Provinces (7·8 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—(i) The area sown is roughly estimated at 7,200,000 acres, as against 7,025,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 2 per cent. The monsoon commenced somewhat earlier than usual and there was good rain in the second and third weeks of June when sowing of rice began. The rainfall in July and August was heavy and well distributed. There was a short break in the first week of September, after which rain again set in and continued during the early part of October. The rainfall was very heavy in the Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur divisions, and serious damage to crops is reported in low-lying lands. The season, on the whole, has been favourable to the rice crop which is in good condition. Harvesting of early rice is in progress, and the yield is reported to be well above the normal except in a few districts in the eastern divisions, where the estimate varies between 80 and 90 per cent of the normal. Prospects of late rice are very favourable, except in the flooded areas in the east.

(ii) In addition to the above, the area under hot weather rice was 23,000 acres and the outturn was estimated at 10,500 tons.

Central Provinces and Berar (6·3 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—The total area placed under rice is estimated at 5,069,000 acres, as against 4,974,000 acres at this time last year, or an increase of 2 per cent. In parts of Bilaspur sowings were delayed by heavy rains in the beginning of the season. Good showers were received throughout the month of June and the rainfall was generally well distributed. Moderate to heavy rain fell in July and August, and continued during September. Conditions at sowing time were generally favourable and germination was successful. Transplantation and thinning operations were, however, hampered by short rainfall in parts of Balaghat, Bhandara, Drug, and Raipur. Prospects of the crop are at present generally good, but more rain would be welcome in Damoh, Balaghat, and Drug.



Assam (6 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—(i) The area sown with autumn rice is estimated at 776,000 acres, as against 631,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of 23 per cent. This large increase is due to the fact that sowings were restricted last year, owing to heavy floods in many districts, notably in Sylhet and Cachar. There were heavy rain and floods in all districts in the Brahmaputra valley at the time of sowing, while the season was unusually dry in parts of the Surma valley. These adverse circumstances affected the crop in its early stages. Insect pests also did some damage to the crop in Sylhet and Kamrup. The average outturn is estimated at 70 per cent of the normal, as against 83 per cent last year. (Normal =672 lbs per acre.)

(ii) The area under winter rice is estimated at 3,106,000 acres, as against 3,080,000 acres reported at this time last year, or an increase of about 1 per cent. In most districts the weather was not favourable at the time of sowing, the months of May and June being drier than usual and the total rainfall of these months much below normal. The subsequent favourable weather, however, tended to increase the area under cultivation, particularly for the transplanted varieties in all districts, except Sibsagar and Lakhimpur where floods occurred. The absence of heavy rain and consequently of floods in July and August was very beneficial to the crop and greatly improved its prospects. The outturn is estimated at 94 per cent of the normal, which works out to 1,314,000 tons as against 862,000 tons last year. This estimate is, however, subject to revision as heavy floods have since the date of report been reported in several districts.

(iii) An area of 250,000 acres was reported in March last to be under summer rice, which is 14 per cent above the area reported at this time last year. The weather was exceptionally dry and unfavourable for the growth of the crop and insects also did some damage. The total outturn was estimated at 84,000 tons, as against 99,000 tons last year.

Bombay and Sind (3·8 per cent of the total area under rice in British India).—The area sown in British districts is estimated at 2,848,000 acres (1,215,000 acres being in Sind), which is 15 per cent above the corresponding estimate of last year. Native States report a total area of 697,000 acres, as against 597,000 acres reported at this date last year. The information is, however, still incomplete. The increase in area is general and is mainly due to favourable sowing rains in the Presidency and to good inundation in Sind. Deficient rain in July delayed transplantation in Gujarat and Deccan and affected the early varieties in the Konkan. Subsequent rains, however, have been favourable, and the crop is doing well everywhere, except in parts of Dharwar and the Southern Maratha Country States, where more rain is required for its proper development. In the Konkan the early varieties are nearly ripe for harvest. In Sind the crop is thriving everywhere, owing to a plentiful water supply.

Chart.—The chart below illustrates the variations in the preliminary estimates of area as compared with those in the final figures of the last ten years. It should, however, be borne in mind that the large increase during 1911-12 to 1913-14 was largely due to the addition of reporting tracts from year to year.

Rice crop in foreign countries.—From the latest information published by the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, it appears that in the United States of America the area and yield of rice sown in 1916 are 911,000 acres and 682,000 tons, as against 844,000 acres and 521,000 tons at the corresponding date last year. The area sown in Italy is estimated at 356,000 acres, as against 361,000 acres at this time last year.

From unofficial sources it would appear that rains were experienced throughout the rice belt in the United States of America in the beginning of August and that the crop is expected to be a little late. The rainy season in Japan had not its usual development, and, with a deficiency of water in certain localities, rice planting has been delayed. The Java rice crop has been very seriously damaged through continuous drought, and a considerable shortage is expected.

The Regulations of the Benares Hindu University.

CHAPTER I.

The Senate.

1. Meetings of the Senate shall be Ordinary, Special, or Extraordinary.

2. The Ordinary Meetings shall be held in October and March of each year, on such dates as the Vice-Chancellor may appoint.

3. The Special Meetings of the Senate shall be such as are convened by the Vice-Chancellor, either of his own motion or at the request of the Syndicate, for the disposal of urgent business.

4. The Extraordinary Meetings of the Senate shall be convened by the Vice-Chancellor, on the written request of any twelve members.

5. Any member who wishes to propose a resolution at an Ordinary Meeting of the Senate, shall forward the terms of the resolution to the Registrar, so as to reach him not later than three weeks before the date fixed for the Meeting. When any twelve members forward a written request to the Vice-Chancellor to convene an Extraordinary Meeting of the Senate, they shall at the same time forward the terms of the resolution or resolutions which it is intended to propose, and also the name of the proposer of each resolution.

6. The Syndicate shall consider each such resolution of which notice has been given in accordance with the foregoing regulation, and shall cause it to be placed on the agenda paper of the meeting at which its discussion is intended by the proposer: provided that the Syndicate may exclude from the agenda paper any proposed resolution (a) which deals in whole or in part with any decision of the Senate adverse to its terms which has been arrived at in any meeting of the Senate held within one year previous to that at which its discussion is intended, or (b) which is repugnant to the Act and the Statutes.

The Registrar shall inform the proposer in each such case of exclusion, and the Syndicate shall report the fact of exclusion at the meeting at which the discussion of the resolution was intended, or if there be no other business for that meeting, at the next meeting of the Senate.

7. No resolution, proposal, or other matter of business which has not been submitted to the Syndicate shall be brought before the Senate at any meeting, except as provided for in clause 15.

8. The Registrar shall, not less than 15 days previous to each Ordinary or Extraordinary Meeting of the Senate, issue to each member a notice stating the time and place of meeting; and this notice shall be accompanied by an agenda paper showing the business to be brought before the meeting, and, except as provided for in clause 15, or by special permission of the Chairman, no resolution, proposal, or other matter of business which is not entered on the agenda paper shall be brought before the meeting: provided that the Syndicate may, for reasons of urgency, bring any business before any meeting of the Senate, without notice being given in the agenda paper.

9. In the case of Special Meetings, the Registrar shall give such previous notice of the time and place of meeting as the circumstances in each case may permit, but, except in regard to this particular, the provisions of regulation 8 shall apply to such meetings.

10. At any Special Meeting of the Senate, any member may bring forward any amendment without previous notice being given.

11. At the time fixed for a meeting of the Senate, the Vice-Chancellor, or, in his absence the Pro-Vice-Chancellor, shall take the chair and shall ascertain whether a quorum is present or not. If a quorum be present, he shall declare the meeting constituted, and shall proceed with the business of the meeting. If a quorum be not present, he shall wait for fifteen minutes after the time fixed for the meeting, and if no quorum be then present, he shall declare the meeting dissolved. Every such dissolution shall be recorded by the Registrar, and the record shall be signed by the Chairman. If neither the Vice-Chancellor or the Pro-Vice-Chancellor is able to attend, the members present, in the event of there being a quorum, shall elect one of themselves as Chairman for the meeting and shall proceed with the business.

12. All questions considered at meetings of the Senate shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present. If the votes be equally divided, the Chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

13. Every motion shall be affirmative in form and shall begin with the word 'that.' It shall be open to discussion on being moved and seconded.

14. Not more than one motion and one amendment thereto shall be placed before a meeting at the same time.

15. A motion—

(a) for change in the order of business as stated in the agenda paper,
(b) for the adjournment of the meeting or discussion,
(c) that the meeting pass to the next business on the agenda paper,
(d) for dissolution of the meeting,
(e) for directing the Syndicate, a Faculty, or any Committee to report at a subsequent meeting of the Senate,

(f) for appointment of a Committee to inquire into and report on any matter before the Senate, may be made at any time, as a distinct question, but not as an amendment, nor whilst a member is speaking, and no previous notice shall be necessary.

16. Any motion made under regulation 15 shall take precedence of any question that may be before the meeting, and, if not withdrawn, must be disposed of before such question.

17. A motion for the adjournment of a meeting or of a debate on any particular question may be made at any time, but shall not be made so as to interrupt a speech. If a motion for the adjournment of the meeting be carried, the meeting shall thereupon adjourn to the time specified in the motion. If a motion for the adjournment of the debate be carried, the debate shall thereupon be adjourned to the time specified in the motion. The meeting shall thereupon pass to the next business, if any, on the agenda paper. If either of such motions be negatived, the business of the meeting or the debate, as the case may be, shall be resumed.

18. A motion for the adjournment of a meeting shall be in the form, 'that this meeting do now adjourn to,' followed by words indicating the day and hour proposed for the adjourned meeting. A motion for the adjournment of a debate shall be in the form, 'that the debate on this question be now adjourned to,' followed by words indicating the day and hour. Ordinarily, a meeting or debate shall only be adjourned to the day following the meeting.

19. No amendment shall be proposed to a motion for adjournment of the meeting or of the discussion, except one substituting a time other than that proposed for such adjournment. A meeting or discussion continued on adjournment shall be deemed one with that preceding the adjournment.

20. A motion to pass to the next business shall be in the form, 'that this meeting do now pass to the next business on the agenda paper,' and may be moved at any time, but not so as to interrupt a speech. If the motion be carried, the motion under discussion, together with any amendments to it, shall drop.

21. A motion for the dissolution of the meeting shall be in the form, 'that this meeting do now dissolve,' and may be made at any time, but not so as to interrupt a speech. If such a motion be carried, the business still before the meeting shall drop, and the Chairman shall declare the meeting dissolved.

22. A motion directing the Syndicate, a Faculty or any Committee to review or to consider its decision or recommendation, may be made at any time during the discussion on any such decision or recommendation, but shall not be made so as to interrupt a speech. The motion shall clearly specify the matter thus referred back to the Syndicate or the Faculty for review or reconsideration, and may also indicate generally the sense or direction in which the mover desires alteration in such decision or recommendation. The motion may also include an instruction that the Syndicate or the Faculty shall report at the next or at some other meeting of the Senate.

23. A motion for the appointment of a Committee to consider any question before the Senate at the time, shall state the purpose for which the Committee is to be constituted and the names of its members.

Amendments.

24. Save as provided in regulation 10 of this chapter notice of every amendment to be brought forward for the consideration of the Senate, shall be given by the proposer not less than three clear days before the date fixed for the meeting. Such notice shall state the precise term of the amendment intended to be proposed. The Registrar shall circulate the notice to the members and, except with the special permission of the Vice-Chancellor or the Chairman of the meeting, no amendment, of which such notice has not been given, shall be considered by the meeting.

25. No amendment shall be proposed which would reduce a motion to its negative or opposite form.

26. No amendment shall be proposed which substantially raises a question already disposed of by the meeting, or is inconsistent with or adverse to any resolution already passed by the meeting.

27. The order in which amendments to a motion are to be brought forward shall be determined by the Chairman, and only one amendment shall be proposed at one time.

28. An amendment must be seconded in the same way as a motion : otherwise it shall drop.

29. When an amendment has been moved and seconded, it shall, unless ruled out of order, be stated from the chair, and the debate may then proceed on the motion and the amendment together.

30. No motion or amendment shall be withdrawn from the decision of the meeting, without its unanimous consent : but this consent shall be presumed if the mover state his wish to withdraw the motion or amendment, and the Chairman, after an interval during which no dissent is expressed, announce that it is withdrawn.

31. Any motion or amendment standing in the name of a member, who is absent from the meeting, or who declines to move it, may be moved by any other member. If no member comes forward to move it, the motion or amendment shall drop.

32. The member who first rises to speak at the conclusion of a speech has the right to be heard. In cases of doubt, the Chairman shall decide who is in possession of the meeting.

33. A member having spoken to a motion or amendment, is not at liberty to speak again to such motion or amendment.

34. In so far as the question raised by an amendment is one to which he has not previously spoken, any member may speak to that question, though he has spoken to the original question or to a previous amendment.

35. The Chairman has the same right of moving or seconding or speaking to a motion or amendment as any other member, but he shall, save as provided under regulation 39, vacate the chair while so engaged, and the chair shall during such time be taken by a member nominated by the Chairman. Without leaving the chair, the Chairman may, however, at his discretion or at the request of any member, explain to the meeting the scope of any motion or amendment.

36. Any member may, with the permission of the Chairman, even whilst another is speaking, rise to explain any misconception of expressions used by him but he shall confine himself strictly to such explanation.

37. Any member may call the Chairman's attention to a point of order even whilst another is speaking, but no speech shall be made on such point of order.

38. The Chairman shall be the sole judge of any point of order, and may call any member to order, and shall have power to take such action as may be necessary to enforce his decision.

39. Proposals relating to the conferring of Honorary Degrees, votes of thanks, messages of congratulation or condolence, addresses, and other matters of like nature, may be moved from the chair.

40. The meeting of the Senate held in October shall be deemed the Annual Meeting of the Senate.

CHAPTER II.

The Syndicate.

1. Of the fifteen elected members of the Syndicate not less than ten shall be University Professors or Principals or Professors of constituent colleges. The Senate shall at its first meeting proceed first to elect ten such members and then proceed to elect to the remaining vacancies. At each subsequent election, similar procedure shall be followed mutatis mutandis.

2. Any elected member, who has been absent for a period exceeding three months, may be declared by the Vice-Chancellor to have vacated his seat.

3. In the event of a casual vacancy owing to death, resignation or otherwise, the members of the Syndicate shall, subject to the provisions of section 12 of the Act as to the proportion of the members who must be University Professors or Principals and Professors of constituent Colleges, appoint a member of the Senate to the vacant membership, to act as a member of the Syndicate, until the next ensuing meeting of the Senate at which such vacancy can be filled up.

4. Any Faculty or member of the Senate shall be at liberty to submit any question to the Syndicate for its consideration and subsequently to bring before the Senate the decision of the Syndicate thereon, with a view to its modification or annulment.

5. The Syndicate shall meet, ordinarily, once a month, except during the vacation, and at other times when convened by the Vice-Chancellor, or, in his absence, by the Pro-Vice-Chancellor.

6. At all meetings of the Syndicate the Chairman shall have a vote, and, in case of an equality of votes, a second or casting vote.

7. Not less than 7 days' notice of a meeting of the Syndicate shall be given by the Registrar, who shall along with such notice forward to each member the agenda of the business proposed to be brought forward.

8. In emergent cases, the Vice-Chancellor may dispense with the condition laid down in regulation 7.

9. Save when otherwise provided for by these Regulations, any one or more of the powers conferred and duties imposed on the Syndicate may, subject to its supervision, control and approval, be exercised and performed by a Sub-Committee appointed by the Syndicate for the purpose.

His Majesty the KING has been graciously pleased to award the Victoria Cross to the undermentioned officers, non-commissioned officers and men :—

No. 1605 Naik Shahamad Khan, Punjabis.

For most conspicuous bravery. He was in charge of a machine gun section in an exposed position, in front of and covering a gap in our new line, within 150 yards of the enemy's entrenched position. He beat off three counter attacks and worked his gun single-handed after all his men, except two belt-fillers, had become casualties.

For three hours he held the gap under very heavy fire while it was being made secure. When his gun was knocked out by hostile fire he and his two belt-fillers held their ground with rifles till ordered to withdraw.

With three men sent to assist him he then brought back his gun, ammunition, and one severely wounded man unable to walk. Finally, he himself returned and removed all remaining arms and equipment except two shovels.

But for his great gallantry and determination our line must have been penetrated by the enemy.

Burma.—Slight rain fell in Lower Burma except in the Tavoy and Mergui districts. In the dry zone the fall was light. Ploughing for miscellaneous crops has commenced in the upland ya tracts. Sowing of island crops is progressing. Reaping of autumn rice, gathering of groundnut and plucking of cotton are proceeding. The condition of standing crops is generally good. Livestock are healthy. The price of unhusked rice is easy at Rs. 121 per hundred baskets and is normal. The market for white rice is easy.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable and favourable to standing crops. Flood water has not completely subsided in lowlying tracts of Cachar. Agricultural loans and gratuitous relief are still being given in Nowgong and Cachar. Ploughing of land for and sowing of mustard have commenced. Manufacture of tea, harvesting of jute and sowing of pulses are still going on. Prospects of tea, winter rice, sugarcane and cotton are fair. Floods have caused some damage to winter rice in parts of Sylhet. Cattle disease and insufficiency of fodder are reported from three districts. The price of common rice has risen slightly in one district and fallen in two.

Bengal.—During the week rain fell almost throughout the Province. Sowings of spring crops have been somewhat retarded in parts of western Bengal owing to excessive rainfall. Steeping and washing of jute still continue. Weeding of winter rice is practically over. The condition and prospects of this crop are on the whole good. Fodder is insufficient in parts of Jessore, Dinajpur and Tippera. Cattle disease is reported from five districts. The average price of common rice for the Province has fallen by one per cent as compared with that of the previous week.

The weekly report on famine in Bankura is as follows :—The state of affairs in affected areas has improved. Prospects of standing crops are good. The condition of the people on relief works is good. Relief measures are adequate. Prices are stationary. The price of rice is 9 seers per rupee. The number of persons on relief works was 1,737 and on gratuitous relief to weavers 1,204, total 2,941. Only seven works remained open during the week.

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall during the week was general over the Province, the fall being very heavy in Orissa and light to moderate in the rest of the Province. Preparation of lands for and sowings of spring crops continue, but the operations are being retarded in some districts on account of rain. Standing crops are on the whole doing well. The average price of common rice has fallen as compared with that of the preceding week. The supply of fodder is generally sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from sixteen districts. The attendance of persons on test works in Singhbhum was 778. Gratuitous relief was given to 45 persons in this district. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is good.

United Provinces.—The week was practically rainless. Harvesting of autumn crops, picking of cotton, sowing of winter crops and preparation of land for poppy are in progress. Standing crops are doing well and their prospects are good. Agricultural stock is in good condition and less cattle disease is reported. Fodder and water are sufficient. Markets are well supplied. Prices remain practically stationary.

Punjab.—The weather remained dry. Picking of cotton and harvesting of rice, millets and maize are in progress with outturn normal to good. Standing cotton and sugarcane crops are in good condition. Sowings of wheat, barley, gram and oilseeds continue and are normal to above normal. Crops are germinating well. Cattle are healthy and fodder and water for drinking and irrigation purposes are sufficient. Prices of wheat have risen slightly. Generally the prices range between normal and warning rates. Those of autumn food grains have in some cases fallen to below normal rates. Price of wheat :—Lahore 9¾, Lyallpur 10, Ferozepore and Rawalpindi 10¼ and Ambala 10¼ seers per rupee.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was rainless. Rain is required for autumn sowings on unirrigated areas in the Peshawar district. The weather is becoming cold. The condition of the standing irrigated and unirrigated crops is average in the Province. Sowings of spring and harvesting of autumn crops are proceeding. The outturn is reported to be average. The condition of cattle is good. Fodder and water are sufficient. The Pabarpur canal is not running. The public health is generally good. Prices are high but stationary in Bannu. In Peshawar prices of wheat, barley and maize are rising and in Dera Ismail Khan those of bajra are falling.

Central India.—The rainfall was general in Bhopal, Malwa and the Southern States, partial in Indore and Baghelkhand and sufficient everywhere. Land for spring crops is being prepared everywhere and sowings have commenced in Gwalior, Bundelkhand and Malwa. Standing crops and their probable outturn are good except in portions of Gwalior and Bhopal where crops have been damaged by excessive rain. Agricultural stock is in good condition except for some cattle disease. The fodder supply is sufficient. Prices are steady.

Central Provinces.—The weather continues to be warm and cloudy. Nearly all the districts received rain, ranging from 18 cents to 3¼ inches. Unseasonable rain has caused further damage to cotton and juar in Nagpur, Wardha and Berar and has retarded the harvesting of autumn and sowing of spring crops except for cotton and juar. Prospects are satisfactory. Fodder and water are sufficient and cattle are in good condition. Variations in prices are unimportant.

Feudatory States.—Light to moderate showers were received in the States. Standing crops are in good condition.

Bombay.—The rainfall during the week was general but harmful to standing crops in parts of Surat, Thana, Kolaba, Khandesh, Sholapur, five talukas of Poona and one taluka and one petha of the Panch Mahals. Harvesting of autumn crops generally continues. Plucking of cotton is progressing in Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar, Nawabshah, Khandesh and Ahmednagar. Sowing of spring crops generally continues. Water for irrigation is deficient in parts of the Panch Mahals and Kaira. Prices of food grains have fallen slightly in the Karnatak, have risen in Sind and the Deccan and are generally steady elsewhere.

Hyderabad.—During the week rain fell throughout the dominions. The highest fall was 5 inches 30 cents in Manvi. The average fall was 1 inch 83 cents. Autumn crops are being harvested. They have been damaged somewhat by rain. Cotton crop also has suffered by rain. Autumn crops have been damaged by locusts in parts of the Raichur district. The early rice crop is in fair to good condition and is being harvested. It has suffered by rain and has been damaged by blight in parts of the Nalgonda district. Lands for spring crops are being sown. Cattle disease prevails in fifteen talukas, variations in prices of grains are insignificant. Coarse rice is selling at 9 and white juar at 15 seers per rupee in Hyderabad city. The highest price of juar in districts is 10½ seers per rupee in Karimnagar and the lowest 25 seers per rupee in Mahbubnagar.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was good in Bangalore, Kolar, Tumkur, Kadur and Chitaldrug and light elsewhere. The price of ragi has fallen in Kolar. Markets are well supplied. Standing crops are in good condition. Ragi and sugarcane are being harvested with outturn fair. Prospects of the season are good. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—Rainfall 3 inches 86 cents. Rice is in good condition. Picking of cardamoms continues. Reaping of dry crops in north Coorg has been completed. Prices of food grains are rising. The public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall during the week was nil or light in Coimbatore, Trichinopoly, Madura, Ramnad and Tinnevelly, fair in Tanjore, Pudukkottai and the Nilgiris, very heavy in Ganjam and Banganapalli, heavy in the Vizagapatam littoral, Kistna, Guntur, Kurnool, Nellore, Chingleput, South Canara and Cochin and good elsewhere. Standing crops are in fair to good condition but more rain is wanted in parts of one district. Harvesting of paddy, sugarcane and dry crops is proceeding normally with outturn fair to normal generally. Sowing of paddy and dry crops are proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water-supply is insufficient in parts of Anantapur, South Arcot, Chittoor, North Arcot and the southern parts except Tanjore and sufficient elsewhere. Pasture is sufficient. Fodder is generally available. Prices are steady.

Nepal.—Report for the quarter ending 15th October 1916.—The rainfall for the period was 25·25 inches against 30·56 inches for the corresponding period of last year.

July and August 1916.—Rice was transplanted in the Terai. Pears and apples were gathered in Nepal and the outturn was good.

September 1916.—Chillies, Indian corn and early rice were harvested in the hills and in the Nepal valley. The outturn was satisfactory.

October 1916.—Potatoes for the 1st crop, mustard and early winter vegetables commenced to be sown in Nepal. Millets and autumn rice are being harvested in the hills and valleys, and the sowing of garlic and onions is in progress. Lands are being prepared for the sowing of wheat, barley and peas for the spring crop. Market is well stocked but the prices of foodstuffs are high. The health of livestock is reported to be good.

ANNUAL REPORT

ON

THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS OF INDIA

FOR THE YEAR

1915-16.

With a review of the progress of the Department for the quinquennial period 1911-12 to 1915-16.

No. 991^{s}-B.P., dated Simla, the 26th October 1916.

FROM—THE HON'BLE SIR WILLIAM MAXWELL, K.C.I.E., M.V.O., I.C.S., DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS,

TO—THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

I have the honour to submit the Annual Report on the Posts and Telegraphs of India for the year 1915-16. In accordance with the instructions of Government conveyed in the Finance and Commerce Department's letter No. 1830-S. R., dated the 11th April 1901, the report contains a review of the progress of the Department during the period from 1911-12 to 1915-16 and a comparison with the preceding quinquennial period.

2. The administration was in my hands up to the 26th June 1915 when I went on leave, and Mr. C. H. Harrison held charge for the rest of the year. Cha

POSTS—GENERAL REMARKS.

3. At the close of 1915-16 there were 95,746 postal officials, 19,328 post offices and 157,657 miles of mail lines. During the year 1,051 million articles, including 25½ million registered articles, were posted; stamps worth R 2 crores 91 lakhs were sold for postal purposes; over 32 million money orders of the total value of R 58½ crores were issued; a sum of nearly R 13 crores was collected for Gen tradesmen and others on value-payable articles; more than 3 million insured articles valued at nearly R 7½ crores were handled; customs duty aggregating over R 10 lakhs was realised on parcels and letters from abroad; pensions amounting to nearly R 35 lakhs were paid to Indian military pensioners; 16,136 lbs. of quinine were sold to the public. On the 31st March 1916 there were 1,660,424 Savings Bank accounts with a total balance of nearly R 15⅓ crores and 25,808 Postal Life Insurance policies with an aggregate assurance of nearly R 3 crores 58 lakhs. The total revenue and expenditure for the year, after making the various administrative adjustments, amounted to R 3 crores 82 lakhs and R 3 crores 50 lakhs, respectively.

4. The whole internal administration of the Department was largely affected by the War but there was no dislocation of work. The services rendered to the public were not restricted to any extent despite the fact that a large postal staff was deputed to the various Expeditionary Forces nor was there any appreciable lessening of efficiency notwithstanding the exercise of strict economy in all directions.

The Savings Bank withdrawals which were so heavy at the beginning of the War have gradually decreased and, though there was a set back last winter, the deposits during the year as a whole exceeded the withdrawals and are now approaching normal conditions. For the first time the help of the Post Office was utilised by the Government of India in the floating of a loan and a sum of nearly R 50 lakhs was subscribed through the Post Office towards the 4 per cent. loan of 1915-16.

In consequence of the adoption of the new land-route viâ Talai-mannar for the transmission of mails between India and Ceylon from the 1st June 1915 the mail steamer service between Tuticorin and Colombo was abolished, resulting in a reduction of R 58,000 a year in the subsidy paid to the British India Steam Navigation Company.

Soon after the outbreak of hostilities, the overland route viâ Brindisi was closed, and all mails travelled by the all-sea route viâ Gibraltar. This arrangement continued until the beginning of June 1915, when the overland route viâ Marseilles was adopted for the exchange of letter mails with the United Kingdom and of both letter and parcel mails with France, the parcel mails for and from the United Kingdom continuing to travel viâ Gibraltar.

Two of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's mail steamers, viz., the "Persia" and the "Maloja," were sunk on their way to India. The "Persia" had on board the letter mails of the 24th December 1915 as well as the parcel mails of the 17th December 1915 from London, and the mail matter lost consisted of 8,464 ordinary parcels, 1,173 insured parcels and 2,338 letter bags. The "Maloja," which went down in the English Channel on the 27th February 1916, carried 763 bags of letters, 4,415 ordinary parcels and 1,071 insured parcels, all of which were lost. On the 24th March 1916, the cross channel steamer "Sussex" conveying mails from London for India was torpedoed but a considerable portion of the mails was subsequently recovered.

The Cunard liner "Lusitania" which was torpedoed and sunk off the south coast of Ireland on the 7th May 1915 had on board two mail bags containing letters for India which were lost.

Although a large number of the best steamers of the British India Steam Navigation Company were taken over by Government, that Company carried on the following services with regularity:—

1. Calcutta-Rangoon, weekly service ... ... (16 knots).
2. Calcutta-Rangoon " " ... ... (14 ").
3. Bombay-Karachi " " ... ... (15 ").
4. Karachi-Busra " " ... ... (13 ").
5. Rangoon-Mergui " " ... ... (10 ").
6. Bombay-Karachi " " ... ... (10 ").
7. Bombay-Durban, service once in 4 weeks ... ... (10 ").

Of these the first four are the most important. The less important lines were necessarily dislocated owing to the shortage of steamers, the sailings of vessels being fewer and at more or less irregular intervals on those mentioned below :—

1. Calcutta-Rangoon, weekly service	...	...	(12 knots).
2. Chittagong-Rangoon „ „	...	...	(12 „).
3. Madras-Rangoon „ „	...	...	(14 „).
4. Rangoon-Penang „ „	...	...	(12 „).

Owing to the same cause, the sailings of steamers on the remaining contract lines, as noted below, were discontinued from different dates :—

1. Karachi-Busra, weekly service ...	...	...	(10 knots).
2. Rangoon-Maliwun, fortnightly service	...	...	(9 „).
3. Moulmein-Penang „ „	...	...	(9 „).
4. Chittagong-Rangoon, weekly „	...	...	(12 „).

The subsidiary Persian Gulf service between Karachi and Busra was entirely suspended from the 15th November 1915. It was arranged, however, that the few ports on the Gulf which were thus deprived of a regular service should receive their mails by Government transports and private steamers. The Rangoon-Maliwun and Moulmein-Penang services were discontinued from the middle and end of August 1915, respectively, but in these cases also arrangements were made to serve the ports affected as often as possible by private vessels. One of the two weekly contract services between Chittagong and Rangoon was practically suspended throughout the year, there being only 5 sailings on the inward trip.

During the whole of the year the sorting of the inward and outward foreign mails was carried out in the Bombay General Post Office. That office also performed an enormous amount of work in connection with mails to and from the various Expeditionary Forces with which troops from this country were employed.

In consequence of the outbreak of War with Bulgaria all mail communication between India and that country was suspended. The letter mail service with the Bismarck Archipelago, Samoa (Apia), and the territory formerly known as German South-West Africa which had been under suspension was resumed after their conquest by our Forces. The insured letter, parcel and money order services to several countries had to be suspended, while other such services which had been under suspension were resumed.

The number of Postal officials on field service rose during the year from 539 to 787.

When the Indian Army Corps was in France the work of the Indian Field post offices attached to it was very heavy and for many months of 1915 about 23,000 letters and 2,000 parcels were conveyed daily to the troops. Arrangements were made to ensure prompt delivery and newspapers reached the soldiers at the front on the day of publication in England. On my way home in July 1915 I had an opportunity of seeing the working of these offices and on all sides there was nothing but praise for their efficiency. I regret to record that Mr. E. G. Bullard, Assistant Director, Postal Services, a very popular and capable officer, was killed by shell fire on the 1st August 1915, a few days after he had accompanied me to the Field offices.

Detailed information has not reached me regarding the operations of the Field post offices in East Africa. From the fact, however, that Mr. K. A. Appleby, Deputy Director, Postal Services, Indian Expeditionary Force "B," has been placed in charge of the postal arrangements of all the forces, British, South African and Indian, in that region there is every reason to believe that the work of the staff there has been satisfactory. I must here acknowledge the cordial assistance which has been readily given by Mr. Gosling, Postmaster-General, British East Africa.

The Postal Service in Mesopotamia was maintained with efficiency in spite of the great difficulties which had to be encountered. The length of the line to be served, the prevalence of sickness among the staff and the enormous bulk of the mails were factors which rendered the task of the Post Office more complicated but on the whole the arrangements were adequate.

The Indian Post Office served the units of the Indian Army in Egypt and for a great part of the year they also worked for other forces including units from Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom and even for a time the Egyptian Camel Corps. Mr. Hughes, Deputy Director, Postal Services, in charge of Force "E" has brought to my notice the great help he invariably received from H. E. Borton Pasha, Postmaster-General, Egypt.

During the Dardanelles operations Indian Field post offices were opened at Mudros Bay, Cape Helles, Suvla Bay and Anzac. The General Officer Commanding the 29th Infantry Brigade wrote with warm appreciation of the work of our men in Gallipoli, carried on as it frequently was under shell fire and in circumstances of great discomfort.

Field offices were also supplied to Aden, Salonika, etc., and for the operations on the North-West Frontier last summer.

The officer in charge of the postal arrangements of each of the Indian Expeditionary Forces has been mentioned in despatches and it is beyond doubt that the prestige of the Department has been greatly enhanced by the good work done in the different spheres of operations.

Special comforts, provided almost entirely from subscriptions within the Department to the "Post and Telegraph Comforts Fund," were sent to the members of the staff on service and were greatly appreciated.

pay. 5. Increases of pay were granted during the year to 4 head postmasters, 5 deputy postmasters, 139 sub-postmasters, 399 branch postmasters, 451 clerks and sorters, 2,388 postmen and village postmen 1,[illegible]87 runners and 646 other inferior servants.

The following table shows the number of officials of the classes noted above whose pay was raised during the last five years:—

Head postmasters	61
Deputy and assistant postmasters	35
Sub-postmasters and deputy sub-postmasters	1,957
Branch postmasters	2,308
Clerks and sorters	2,646
Postmen and village postmen	10,910
Runners	7,627
Other inferior servants	3,858

the ct. 6. The War necessarily affected the Peninsular and Oriental Company's mail service in many ways, but considering the difficulties of the situation India has every reason to be satisfied with the manner in which the contract was carried out as 103 out of 104 scheduled sailings were actually accomplished. All of the nine mails despatched from the United Kingdom during April and May and the three preceding mails were conveyed by the all-sea route and were due to arrive in Bombay early on Friday. Of these, 10 arrived up to time, one was a day in advance and one a day late.

The overland route via Marseilles was adopted for the letter mails in June 1915, Saturday being the due day of arrival of the mail steamer at Bombay. The first mail steamer which brought mails despatched by this route sailed from London on the 5th June and arrived at Bombay on the 26th June. Of the 40 mails due at Bombay under this arrangement, 5 arrived on the due date and 34 after some delay, while those sent by the "Persia" were lost with that steamer in the Mediterranean. In consequence of the sinking of the "Maloja" which left London on the 26th February 1916, a supplementary despatch of mails was made from London by the "Arabia" on the 3rd March 1916 and reached Bombay on the 24th idem. Thus during the whole year out of 53 mails for India only 2 were lost and 16 of the remainder were received at the appointed time. The regular arrival of the weekly foreign mail during a period when the Germans were making their utmost endeavours to sink British ships has brought home to the people of this country as nothing else could the real meaning of England's supremacy at sea.

As regards the sailings from Bombay, Saturday was the due date of departure until the end of June 1915 and 13 mails were despatched on that day From the beginning of July 1915 the sailings of the Homeward mail steamers were fixed for Sunday and of the 39 mails which were despatched under that arrangement 25 left on the due day, 12 a day late and 2 mails two days late.

The following table has been compiled from the particulars available as to the time occupied in the transit of the mail between England and Bombay in both directions :—

The number of offices in charge of school-masters and other extra-departmental agents rose from 12,532 to 12,654. Post offices a[nd] letter-boxes. (Appendix I, p[age] 32.)

Growth of offices and facili[ties] for rural deliv[ery] since 1905-06.

There were 37,107 letter-boxes in 1905-06, 46,884 in 1910-11 and 49,684 in 1915-16.

The number of village postmen fell from 8,376 in 1905-06 and 8,380 in 1910-11 to 8,225 in 1915-16 but the decline is due to the substitution of postmen for village postmen. The total number of postmen and village postmen taken together was 23,279 in 1905-06, 25,651 in 1910-11 and 26,921 in 1915-16.

9. The length of all mail lines by road, rail, river or sea was 157,657 miles, representing a net increase of 984 miles, as detailed below :— Postal commu[ni]cations. (Appendix I, 32.)

	Runners and boats.	Railway.	Mail carts, horses, camels, etc.	Steamers.	Motor cars.	Total.

10. The length of postal lines of all classes taken together was 151,871 miles in 1905-06 and 157,657 miles in 1915-16. The greatest development was in respect of railway mail lines which rose from 27,683 to 34,577 miles or by about 25 per cent. As might have been expected, the expansion of Growth of postal communications since 1905-06.

the railway system and the substitution of mail cart and motor services have caused a reduction in the total length of runner and boat lines from 95,891 miles in 1905-06 to 90,465 miles in 1915-16. Mail cart lines, which include horse and camel posts, have increased from 8,845 miles in 1905-06 to 11,797 miles in the year under report. The figure 586 represents an annual travel of about six hundred thousand miles by motor car.

The diagram on the adjoining leaf shows graphically the growth of postal traffic in its principal branches since 1879-80.

Growth of inland correspondence since 1905-06.

12. It will be seen from the figures given in the statement on the next page that the estimated number of letters dealt with which was 320,866,443 in 1905-06 and 413,677,573 in 1910-11 rose to 448,404,286 in 1915-16. The number of postcards which was 324,260,499 in 1905-06 and 418,437,773 in 1910-11 reached 478,456,743 in 1915-16, while the number of "registered" newspapers which was 40,200,838 in 1905-06 and 49,252,161 in 1910-11 increased to 59,581,349 in the year under review. Altogether the Indian Post Office handled 1,051 millions of articles, excluding money orders, during 1915-16 which means that more than $3\frac{1}{2}$ million articles were carried on each working day.

Growth of inland parcel traffic since 1905-06.

13. The figures relating to parcels in the statement referred to in the preceding paragraph, which are not mere estimates but actuals, show that the number of inland parcels, which was 4,955,379 in 1905-06 and 6,861,927 in 1910-11, has now risen to 12,890,909. This latter figure, however, includes value-payable unregistered packets, which are treated as value-payable unregistered parcels for the purpose of the returns, as they are dealt with in the Parcel branch.

Delivery work.

14. It is computed that out of the total of 1,083 million articles and money orders which were posted 99·78 per cent. were actually delivered or paid as compared with 99·80 per cent. out of a total of 1,078 millions in the preceding year and 95·09 per cent. out of a total of about 754 millions ten years ago.

15. The following details show the work done by Dead Letter Offices :—

	1914-15.	1915-16.
Postal articles received in Dead Letter Offices-total number	9,838,119	10,134,834
Redirected to addressees	40 per cent.	40 per cent.
Redirected to senders	39 per cent.	39 per cent.
Finally treated as undeliverable	2,190,840	2,319,718

In Bengal, Madras and Bombay alone 132 articles without address, many containing money or valuables, were posted every day on an average. In articles opened by the five larger Dead Letter Offices, cheques, hundis, currency notes, bills of exchange, coins and other property of the nominal value of about 11 lakhs of rupees were found and the great majority of these were successfully redirected to the addressees or the senders.

f Dead Letter since 1905-

16. A comparison of the results of the year under report with those of 1910-11 and 1905-06 shows that the percentage of the number of articles consigned to the Dead Letter Offices on the total number given out for delivery by post offices was ·96 in 1915-16, ·94 in 1910-11 and ·87 in 1905-06. In the matter of the number of articles disposed of by Dead Letter Offices by redirection to the addressees, the percentage on the total number received in the Dead Letter Offices was 39·98 in 1915-16 as compared with 33·47 in 1910-11 and 26·13 in 1905-06 which is satisfactory. As a further indication of progress, it may be observed that the percentage of the number of articles returned to the Dead Letter Offices as finally undeliverable on the total number issued by them for delivery to the addressees or senders, which was 7·31 in 1905-06 and 7·07 in 1910-11, fell to 2·53 in 1915-16.

17. As the entire foreign mail service was dislocated on account of the War, statistics of correspondence sent to and received from foreign countries during the year would have been of little value and were, therefore, not kept.

eign parcels.

18. The total number of parcels despatched by the foreign post from this country was 440,709 as compared with 356,161 during the previous year, and the total number of parcels received was 570,513 as compared with 437,572 in 1914-15. There was thus an increase of 23·74 per cent. in the number of export parcels and of 30·38 per cent. in the number imported.

The parcels sent to and received from the United Kingdom numbered 164,989 and 436,893 as compared with 118,056 and 314,838, respectively, during 1914-15. Besides 1,248 parcels were sent and 166 were received through the medium of the P. and O. Company.

rowth of foreign parcel post since 1905-06.

19. During the last ten years there has been a steady development of the foreign parcel post. The total number of foreign parcels received in India from all parts of the world rose from 289,070 in 1905-06 and 430,109 in 1910-11 to 570,513 in 1915-16, while the total number despatched increased from 235,408 in 1905-06 and 315,731 in 1910-11 to 440,709 in 1915-16.

In addition to postage stamps, non-judicial and court-fee stamps are sold in many post offices, but except in Burma, postmasters act as private vendors of these stamps, which do not form part of the Post Office balance. In Burma where such stamps are kept by postmasters in the same way as postage stamps, the sales during the year amounted to R90,955 as against R79,016 in 1914-15.

Growth of insurance business since 1905-06.

23. In no branch of the Department has there been such an expansion of business as in the case of insured letters and parcels and this steady development indicates, among other things, the confidence with which the Post Office is regarded by the people.

The total number of insured letters and parcels was 550,770 in 1905-06, 1,169,428 in 1910-11 and 3,086,354 in the year under review.

The number of insured letters was 199,679 in 1905-06, 621,416 in 1910-11 and 2,377,448 in 1915-16. The average amount for which each letter was insured was R 232 in 1905-06, R 216 in 1910-11 and R 246 in 1915-16.

The number of parcels insured was 351,091 in 1905-06, 548,012 in 1910-11 and 708,906 in 1915-16, representing a percentage of 7·09 in 1905-06, of 8·00 in 1910-11 and of 5·97 in 1915-16 on the total number of parcels of all kinds posted. The average amount for which each parcel was insured fell from R 283 in 1905-06 and R 245 in 1910-11 to R 216 in 1915-16.

Claims for compensation.

24. The number of claims for compensation received in respect of insured articles was 335 of which 140 were admitted as well-grounded. The total amount paid as compensation was R 32,835 as against R 27,251 in 1914-15. Recoveries to the extent of R 13,924 were, however, made, so that the net loss to the Department was R 18,911 as compared with R 11,697 in the preceding year.

Value payable bus ness.

25. The total number of value-payable articles posted advanced from 9,632,787 to 9,653,213 or by ·21 per cent. and the aggregate amount specified for recovery rose from ₨ 12,54,09,275 to ₨ 12,92,58,531.

Progress of valu payable busine since 1905-06.

The number of articles sent by the value-payable post was 5,716,000 in 1905-06, 7,355,000 in 1910-11 and 9,653,000 in 1915-16. There was an increase over the previous year of 6·70 per cent. in number and of 4·61 per cent. in value. These figures afford the most eloquent tribute of the people's confidence in our triumph over our enemies.

Telegraphic mon orders. (Appendix V (b) page 37).

30. The number of telegraphic money orders issued rose from 773,777 to 866,970, while their total value increased from ₨ 5 crores 64 lakhs to ₨ 5 crores 76 lakhs. The commission realised was ₨ 5,95,726 as compared with ₨ 5,82,956 in the preceding year.

The total number of inland orders issued was about 19½ millions in 1905-06, about 24¾ millions in 1910-11 and is now over 31¼ millions.

The number of money orders sent by telegraph rose from 216,597 in 1905-06 and 409,830 in 1910-11 to 866,970 in 1915-16. The increase for the five years ending with 1915-16 was 457,140 as compared with 193,233 for the preceding quinquennial period. The advantages afforded by this system for remitting money expeditiously have always been more fully appreciated in Burma than elsewhere. In 1905-06 the number of telegraphic money orders issued from that province was 95,520 or 44·10 per cent. of the total number of such orders. For 1910-11 the corresponding figures were 180,006 and 43·92, while for 1915-16 they were 393,838 and 45·43, respectively.

The average amount of an inland money order was R16-14 both in 1905-06 and in 1910-11 and now stands at R 17-3.

32. In the sterling exchanges which are in force with the United Kingdom and British Dominions and with foreign countries generally, the total number of money orders sent and received was 170,765 of the aggregate value of £1,170,444 as against 170,940 orders for £1,148,258 in the preceding year.

Foreign rupee money orders which are exchanged with Ceylon, the Portuguese Settlements in India and countries and places in East Africa and the Far East rose from 452,324 to 507,672 in number and from R 2 crores 8 lakhs to R 2 crores 19 lakhs in amount.

Remittances to India exceeded those from this country, the balance in India's favour being about £327,000 on sterling money orders and R 1,86,00,000 on foreign rupee orders. In the case of the sterling money order exchanges the largest amounts were received from the United Kingdom (£215,4[illegible]6), Union of South Africa (£205,439), Italy (£134,311), Egypt (£72,360) and New South Wales (£2[illegible],272), and in the case of the rupee exchanges from Ceylon (R 106 lakhs), the Federated Malay States (R37 lakhs), the Straits Settlements (R 27 lakhs) and British East Africa (R15 lakhs).

In 1905-06 direct money order exchanges were in existence with 34 countries and money could be remitted by post to 112 other countries. In spite of the War, there are now direct exchanges with 33 countries and money orders can also be sent to 98 other countries or places.

) With the United Kingdom.

The most important exchange has always been that with the United Kingdom. The number of money orders issued by India for payment in the United Kingdom was 104,001 in 1905-06, 106,149 in 1910-11 and 91,237 in 1915-16, the amounts being £339,886, £360,812 and £382,386, respectively. The number of money orders received from the United Kingdom for payment in India was 27,414 in 1905-06, 40,536 in 1910-11 and 35,745 in 1915-16 and the sums remitted amounted to £110,152, £344,178 and £215,496, respectively. These issues and payments were supplemented by the sale and payment of British postal orders, particulars of which are given in a separate paragraph. The decrease in the number of money orders issued by this country for payment in the United Kingdom and in the number and value of money orders received from the United Kingdom for payment in this country is due to the popularity of British postal orders for small remittances.

(2) With other countries.

Excluding the United Kingdom, the countries on which the greatest numbers of money orders are now drawn in India are Portuguese India and Ceylon, while in the matter of remittances to India the lead is taken by Ceylon, the Federated Malay States and the Straits Settlements. Details of the money orders exchanged between India and these countries during the years 1905-06, 1910-11 and 1915-16 are given in the following statement :—

The balance of the fund was R11,48,772.

...plaints by the ...blic.

41. The total number of complaints made by the public was 72,929 as against 71,184 in 1914-15. Of the complaints received 38 per cent. were found to be justified as compared with 37 per cent. in 1914-15, while 32,413 or 44 per cent. proved to be groundless. In the remaining cases, either no definite conclusion could be arrived at or the investigation had not been completed by the end of the year.

...pensation for un...ured registered ...icles.

42. Compensation amounting to R1,861 was paid during the year in respect of inland uninsured registered letters, packets and parcels lost or damaged in course of transmission by post.

...ces by postal ...cials. (...endix VIII, ...ge 42.)

43. The number of postal officials dealt with for criminal offences was 491, of whom 288 were convicted in court and the remainder punished departmentally as against 476 offenders and 264 convictions in the preceding year. The defalcations and losses amounted to R93,288 as compared with R1,21,244 in 1914-15. The heaviest amount stolen was a sum of R39,000 taken from a safe in the Bombay General Post Office but the offender was speedily detected and the stolen money recovered in full. By the end of the year adjustments had been effected to the extent of R80,371 of which only R2,729 was written off.

...ces by other ...sons.

44. The offences against the Post Office committed by persons not belonging to the Department, included 14 cases of money order fraud, involving a sum of R826 and 6 cases of fraudulent withdrawal from the Savings Bank of sums amounting to R1,488. There were 121 cases of theft of Government money from mails and post offices, in addition to highway robberies which are dealt with in the next paragraph. The total amount stolen was R9,060 of which R3,812 was recovered and R1,562 written off as finally lost, R3,686 remaining unadjusted at the close of the year.

45. There were 28 cases of highway robbery, three of which were attended with the murder of the mail carriers.

A runner in the Malabar district was done to death while in charge of the mails. The mail bag was cut open and a remittance of R150 which it contained carried off. The robbers were not traced.

A runner carrying mails on the Murree to Kehror line in the Rawalpindi district was murdered and the contents of the mail including R518 in cash and stamps taken away. The Police succeeded in recovering everything except R500 in cash but no trace of the criminals could be found. An extraordinary pension of R3 a month was granted to the eldest son of the deceased runner.

A runner carrying mails from Khajuri Kach to Murtaza in the Wano Agency was shot dead by outlaws who removed the whole mail which, however, contained nothing of value.

In two other cases which occurred in the Chagai district of the Baluchistan Agency the raiders carried off not only the mails but also the sowars who were conveying them together with their camels. The sowars were subsequently released unhurt.

Of the total number of attacks 23 occurred in British Territory and 5 in Native States. The mail was entirely recovered in 4 and partly in 16 cases, the ultimate loss to Government amounting to R2,734. Convictions were obtained in four out of the eight cases in which prosecutions were instituted.

46. There were several accidents to mail runners in Kashmir. One fell over a precipice on the Kargil-Skardu line and was killed, another was buried in an avalanche on the Zojila, while a third was severely injured by an avalanche on the Gilgit line. Of other postal servants who met their death on duty one was drowned, one was bitten by a snake, one died from the effects of a carriage accident and one was run over by a train at a level crossing. Other casualties.

47. On the 31st March 1916 the total number of postal officials was 95,746 as compared with 95,433 at the close of 1914-15 and 93,062 at the close of 1910-11. The figure includes 266 pensioned soldiers of the Indian Army and 109 women of whom 96 were Europeans or Eurasians. Post Office staff.

The number of officials dismissed was 518 against 471 in the previous year. Of this number 261 were postmen or village postmen.

48. The most important building completed during the year was the Administrative Office at Lucknow, and among other projects finished were the post offices at Chittagong, Bhagalpur, Delhi Cantonment and Bareilly and quarters for the postal staff at Aden. Buildings.

49. The revenue obtained from post offices situated in the Kashmir and Jammu State was R2,47,919 as compared with R2,40,773 in 1914-15 and R2,51,278 in 1913-14, while the expenditure amounted to R2,80,124 as against R2,59,689 in 1914-15 and R2,41,406 in 1913-14, the actual deficit during the year being R32,205. The growth in expenditure was chiefly owing to the increase in the subsidy for the Murree-Srinagar tonga line. Financial results working the pо in Kashmir.

The average annual deficit for the five years ending with 1915-16 was R15,092.

NON-POSTAL BRANCHES OF THE POST OFFICE.

50. There were 1,676 new Life Insurance and Endowment Assurance policies of the aggregate value of R20,86,352 as against 1,864 for R26,15,393 in 1914-15. The number taken by pure Asiatics was 1,556, and one was obtained by a woman making 29 female policy holders in all. Post Office Insurance Fund. (Appendices IX (a), IX (b) and X, pa 43, 44 and 45.)

Three new contracts for monthly allowances were entered into, the amount secured being R15-8-0.

One Life Annuity was also purchased from the Post Office under Article 807 of the Civil Service Regulations.

The total sum realised on account of premia on old and new policies taken together amounted to R14,37,346 as compared with R14,17,975 representing the revised figure for the previous year. 53. The number of men of the Indian Army whose pensions were paid through the agency of the Post Office in the Punjab and North-West Frontier Province was 54,965 as compared with 43,000 in 1914-15, the amount disbursed being R34,78,496 against R31,65,381 in the previous year. FINANCIAL RESULTS OF THE POST OFFICE.

54. The Post Office Accounts show the following results :— Financial position of the Post Office. (Appendix page 46.)

	R	R	R
1914-15	3,52,14,962	3,10,00,069	42,14,893
1915-16	3,67,63,238	3,16,53,791	51,09,447

After allowing for the sum of R6,81,325 charged against the Post Office in the Finance and Revenue Accounts of the Government of India and after making the usual adjustments, notably in connection with free services rendered by or to the Department, the net surplus was R32,11,264 as compared with R29,73,847 representing the revised figure for the previous year. This amount is exclusive of any credit for the maintenance of unremunerative post offices and lines required for military or political purposes.

55. In 1905-06, the receipts, as shown in the Post Office Accounts, amounted to 2 crores and 47½ lakhs of rupees. By 1910-11, they had risen to 2 crores and 99½ lakhs and for the year that ended on the 31st March 1916 they amounted to 3 crores and 67½ lakhs. There was thus a total increase in revenue of 52 lakhs during the period ending with 1910-11 and of 68 lakhs during the last five years. Review of the financial position for last ten years.

The expenditure of the Department, as shown in the Post Office Accounts, was 2 crores and 7½ lakhs in 1905-06, 2 crores and 84 lakhs in 1910-11 and 3 crores and 16½ lakhs in 1915-16.

TELEGRAPHS—GENERAL REMARKS.

56. At the close of the year under review the total number of telegraph officials was 10,756 of whom 150 were women. There were 10,482 telegraph General survey.

offices including 8,592 which were open to the public. The latter comprised 196 departmental offices, 3,288 combined post and telegraph offices, 5,084 railway and 24 canal offices. The number of departmental offices fell from 280 in 1905-06 to 279 in 1910-11 and 196 in 1915-16. This gradual reduction is principally due to conversions to combined post and telegraph offices with a view to the reduction of working expenses.

The total number of telegrams transmitted over the lines of the Department rose from 11,578,870 in 1905-06 to 13,335,058 in 1910-11 and to 18,129,748 in 1915-16.

The number of signalling operations entailed in the despatch of all telegrams from the office of origin to the office of destination was 56,048,978 in 1905-06, 67,031,378 in 1910-11 and 88,983,206 in 1915-16.

The telegraph system was extended by 1,943 miles of line and 7,687 miles of wire and cable, these figures representing increases of 2·31 and 2·33 per cent., respectively, on the totals of the preceding year.

On the 31st March 1906 the system consisted of 64,730 miles of line and 243,840 miles of wire. During the quinquennial period ending with 1910-11 there was an increase of 10,098 miles of line and 48,161 miles of wire, while the last five years showed increases of 11,239 and 45,719 miles, respectively. This development is largely due to the growth of the telephone system.

The number of instruments of all kinds rented from the Department was 29,877 of which 6,693 were on railways, 1,512 on canals and 21,672 on private lines, including telephones. The numbers rented at the end of 1905-06 and 1910-11 were 13,048 and 20,690, respectively. The increase during the quinquennial period ending with 31st March 1911 was thus 7,642 and during the past five years 9,187.

The total receipts of the Telegraph Department were ₨1 crore 86 lakhs against working charges amounting to ₨1 crore 42 lakhs. The chief items of revenue were fees on telegrams ₨ 1,36,68,000, claims from railways and canals ₨ 29,85,000; claims from guarantors ₨1,00,000, rent for telephone connections ₨10,28,000 and royalties from telephone companies ₨ 1,01,000.

Statistics maintained by 75 of the principal offices showed that 33 per cent. of the telegrams handed in were transmitted within 10 minutes of acceptance and 52 per cent. within 20 minutes, also that 69 per cent. of the telegrams received for delivery were sent out to the addressees within 10 minutes of receipt.

57. The amalgamation of the Post Office and the Telegraph Department referred to in paragraph 42 of the Report for 1914-15 has worked satisfactorily on the whole and there is no doubt that the complete separation of the Engineering and Traffic duties has resulted in greater efficiency. The fact that both services are under a common head and that the departmental telegraphists as well as the postal signallers are all under the orders of the Postmasters-General has undoubtedly facilitated the temporary transfer of postal officials to telegraph offices, thus rendering it possible to comply with the heavy demands from the field for experienced telegraph operators with the minimum amount of inconvenience to the general public and without the delay which would necessarily have been caused by the inter departmental references incidental to transfers of staff between two separate administrations. No reorganisation could have been subjected to a more severe test than that imposed by the War on the scheme for amalgamating the postal and telegraph services and, although a number of minor points relating to the exact degree of responsibility and control to be exercised by the telegraph engineers still remain to be settled, it is certain that the amalgamation will prove a success from an administrative point of view. The different branches of the service now co-operate in a manner which would be impossible with two separate administrations and no serious difficulties have arisen with regard to the general system of organisation. The subordinate staff of the Telegraph service have just begun to realise that the new system affords greatly improved prospects of promotion to the more capable men both in the Traffic and in the Engineering branch and that the number of higher appointments which can be filled from their ranks will increase gradually as the scheme comes into fuller operation.

With effect from the 1st December 1915 a reduction of twelve annas a word was made in the rate for both State and Private telegrams exchanged between India and Mesopotamia and of two annas a word in the rates for similar telegrams between India on the one side and Persia and the Persian Gulf on the other. From the 15th idem a new rate of three annas a word was introduced for the exchange of Press telegrams between India and Mesopotamia.

Certificates in telegraphy were granted to 42 soldiers and 483 post office clerks.

The Central Telegraph Office at Bombay was moved into the old General Post Office building in March without any dislocation of traffic.

The Co-operative Credit Societies at various Central Telegraph Offices have as a whole continued to do useful work and show steady progress. A Society was started at Karachi in November 1915 which has also progressed well. The formation of a junior Co-operative Society in the Bombay Telegraph Office for the benefit of the delivery peons and line staff is under contemplation.

The sum of R60,864 was disbursed to the members of the signalling establishment as overtime allowance for disposal of work outside the ordinary hours of duty, as compared with R 33,017 in the preceding year. The increase was caused by the expansion of traffic and the shortage of staff. It is interesting to note that the telegraphists of the Ootacamund telegraph office refused to claim the overtime allowance to which they were entitled, and asked that this might be taken as their contribution to the need of the country during this time of war.

The sum of R 1,55,156 was earned by telegraphists as "pie-money" or remuneration for messages disposed of in excess of certain standards as compared with R 1,34,598 in the preceding year and R 1,26,526 in 1910-11.

The Telegraph Branch of the Department had additional work thrown upon it in nearly every section in consequence of the War. In effect its main activities related to War work, either directly in supplying personnel and material for employment in connection with the various Expeditionary Forces that have been despatched from this country, or indirectly, in dealing with the very large amount of State traffic, both foreign and inland, or in providing additional lines and telephones. The numbers of telegraph officials who were on field service in Mesopotamia and British East Africa at the end of the year are shown below :—

Superior officers	10
Deputy superintendents, telegraph masters, inspecting telegraphists, telegraphists, clerks and telephone operators. ...	320
Sub-inspectors, linemen and workmen	1,750

All of these with the exception of the workmen are permanent employees of the Department and it will be easily realised that the deputation of such large numbers from cadres which are just sufficient for peace time requirements resulted in a heavy strain being thrown upon the rest. It may be mentioned, however, that every single demand from the Field was complied with. In addition, a number of men were lent to the Indo-European Telegraph Department.

The total value of telegraph stores issued during the year was R12,18,000 and this included large quantities supplied for military telegraph purposes. Mr. Thompson, Superintendent of the Telegraph Workshops, who undertook the manufacture of munitions, etc., on a considerable scale, has reported that over 40 gentlemen gave their help in running machines at night until workmen could be obtained in sufficient numbers to keep the machines going continuously night and day. At this juncture it is not possible to enter into details regarding the actual work performed in the various fields of military operations but I am satisfied that everywhere our staff rose to the occasion and efficiently met all demands made on them. Both in Mesopotamia and East Africa climatic conditions were extremely severe and there was necessarily a great deal of sickness among the working parties. The officials of all ranks, however, displayed great devotion to duty and the excellence of their work is shown by the fact that a considerable number of them have been mentioned in despatches from the General Officers Commanding. I cannot speak too highly of the way in which the staff, both traffic and engineering, in this country have carried out their duties. The shortage of telegraphists and the volume of work which had to be dealt with rendered it necessary to resort to overtime and it was not possible to grant leave freely yet there was little or no grumbling and all the staff did their utmost to keep the service efficient.

INLAND TELEGRAMS.

58. The inland telegrams dealt with show an increase over the preceding year of 1,158,289 or about 8 per cent. in number and of 5,89,473 or about 6 per cent. in value.

[G]rowth of inland [tele]grams since [1905]-06.

59. During the last ten years there has been a steady expansion in the number of these telegrams although the deferred telegram was abolished with effect from the 1st January 1909. The number rose from 9,354,283 in 1905-06 to 11,673,131 in 1910-11 and to 16,077,308 in 1915-16, while the value fell from R 69,30,551 in 1905-06 to R 67,52,194 in 1910-11 but rose to R 1,05,32,295 in 1915-16 partly as the result of the abnormal increase in the value of State telegrams owing to the War.

State telegrams increased by 5 per cent. in number but their value decreased by 1 per cent. during 1915-16. During 1905-06 the number of such telegrams dealt with was 857,606 with a value of R 16,01,954 as against 989,459 and R 8,78,675 in 1910-11 and 1,737,901 and R 23,39,430 during the year under review. The abnormal increase over the figures of 1910-11 is mainly due to the large number of lengthy messages necessitated by the War.

The number of private telegrams increased by 7 per cent. during 1915-16 and their total value by 8 per cent. During 1905-06 the number of such telegrams dealt with was 8,452,806 with a value of R 52,11,797 as against 10,541,418 and R 57,19,954 in 1910-11 and 13,996,050 and R 79,25,254 during 1915-16. The outbreak of War checked the normal growth of this class of traffic, but the check was only temporary, and the total number of inland private telegrams is not appreciably less now than it would have been in ordinary circumstances.

The number of press telegrams showed an increase of 4 per cent. during 1915-16 and their value rose by 3 per cent. During 1905-06 the number of such telegrams was 43,871 with a value of R 1,16,799 as against 142,257 and R 1,53,565 in 1910-11 and 343,357 and R 2,67,612 during 1915-16. The growth is due partly to the War and partly to the normal expansion of newspaper activities.

The average value of a state telegram was R 1·877 in 1905-06, R 0·888 in 1910-11 and R 1·346 in 1915-16; of a private telegram R 0·616 in 1905-06, R 0·542 in 1910-11 and R 0·566 in 1915-16; and of a press telegram R 2·662 in 1905-06, R 1·079 in 1910-11 and R 0·778 in 1915-16.

Inland telegraphic money orders. (Appendix XV (2), page 54.)

60. There has been a rapid growth in inland telegraphic money order business. The number of such orders increased from 214,004 in 1905-06 and 370,885 in 1910-11 to 880,483 in 1915-16, while the telegraph charges realised on them amounted to R 2,00,232 in 1905-06, R 1,91,288 in 1910-11 and R 4,04,033 in 1915-16.

61. Steady progress has been made in mechanical high speed Telegraph systems during the past five years. There has been a considerable expansion of the Baudot system and Duplexed Baudot has been successfully worked. In the Wheatstone system keyboard perforators have been introduced and their use has been extended whenever possible. Creed Receivers and Creed Printers, which mechanically transcribe the received Wheatstone signals, have also been installed in some of the important offices and have proved very successful. Apparatus.

62. The total number of combined post and telegraph offices open on the 31st March 1916 was 3,288 with a staff of 4,833 signallers as compared with 3,199 offices and 4,815 signallers at the close of the previous year. The net increase in the number of combined offices was 89 as against 52 in 1914-15. Combined po[st and] telegraph offices.

Excluding free messages, the number of telegrams sent from combined offices increased from 9,775,672 to 10,619,964 or by 8 per cent. The revenue rose from R 56,10,106 to R 59,34,410 or by 5 per cent., while the working charges were R 16,04,602 as against R 15,66,180 in 1914-15 or an increase of 2 per cent. The number of telegrams delivered by such offices was 8,923,738 as against 8,215,825 in the preceding year.

63. The statement below shows the development of the combined office system during the last ten years. There was an increase of 1,259 in the number of such offices accompanied by an increase of more than 11 millions in the number of telegrams dealt with by them. The cost of maintenance increased by R 7,28,120, while the revenue collected rose from R 29,20,347 in 1905-06 to R 35,24,830 in 1910-11 and R 59,34,410 in 1915-16. Development [of] the combined system since 190[5].

Year.	Number of combined offices open on 31st March.	Number of messages (sent, received and transit) dealt with by combined offices.	Total approximate cost of working combined offices.	Revenue realised.
1905-06	2,029	10,823,667	8,76,482	29,20,347
1910-11	2,577	13,354,418	12,11,159	35,24,830
1915-16	3,288	21,914,142	16,04,602	59,34,410

64. In addition to the messages sent and received from combined post and telegraph offices, 79,011 telegrams were accepted by other post offices for transmission by post to telegraph offices and the revenue realised on them was R 41,444. The corresponding figures for 1914-15 were 77,625 and R 43,771. Postal rec[eiving] offices.

The total number of telegrams received at post offices in the Persian Gulf for the Indo-European Telegraph Department was 495 as against 320 during 1914-15 and fees to the amount of R 6,678 were levied as compared with R 2,821 in the previous year.

FOREIGN TELEGRAMS.

65. The total number of foreign telegrams dealt with rose from 1,271,347 containing 19,219,818 words in 1914-15 to 1,465,580 containing 25,838,649 words in 1915-16, there being an increase of 15 per cent. in the number of telegrams and of 34 per cent. in the number of words. The total value was R 30,52,939 as compared with R 25,81,245, an increase of 18 per cent. Foreign tele[grams] generally. (Appendix X, page 55.)

State foreign telegrams advanced by 74 per cent. in number, 96 per cent. in words and 84 per cent. in value.

Private foreign telegrams paid at full rates showed an increase of 2 per cent. in number, 17 per cent. in words and 2 per cent. in value. The slight increase was mainly due to the tendency of trade to return to normal conditions.

Private foreign telegrams at deferred (half) rates increased by 180 per cent. in number, 200 per cent. in words and 192 per cent. in value. The abnormal increase is mainly due to the more extensive use by the mercantile community of this cheaper class of telegrams owing to the restrictions imposed on the use of private commercial codes.

Week-end telegrams at one-fourth rates exchanged with soldiers, sailors and nurses serving with the Allied forces numbered 10,872, contained 158,628 words and represented a value of R 6,352.

Press foreign telegrams showed an expansion of 4 per cent. in number, 7 per cent. in words and ·68 per cent. in value.

bwth of foreign ams since 1905-[illegible]

66. During the past ten years there has been a marked development in the foreign telegraph traffic. In 1905-06 the number of foreign telegrams was 1,106,834 containing 11,965,675 words and the receipts amounted to R 23,15,802. In 1910-11 there were 1,417,094 telegrams with 13,726,563 words and a value of R 25,01,601 while in 1915-16 the number was 1,465,580 comprising 25,838,649 words and representing a value of R 30,52,939. The increase during the last ten years was confined almost entirely to state foreign telegrams which increased from 15,963 containing 393,951 words with a value of R 73,426 in 1905-06 to 16,986 telegrams containing 469,370 words with a value of R 63,529 in 1910-11 and to 62,307 telegrams containing 2,961,778 words with a value of R 4,98,560 during 1915-16.

In the case of private foreign telegrams there has been practically no increase in the receipts since 1913-14, but there was a remarkable expansion prior to the outbreak of War and the number of such telegrams rose from 1,082,937 containing 5,863,176 words with a value of R 22,00,853 in 1905-06 to 1,385,363 telegrams containing 7,339,228 words with a value of R 24,02,704 in 1910-11. In 1915-16 the number of telegrams declined to 1,381,182 but the number of words rose to 21,302,305 and the value increased to R 25,24,380. The growth, which would undoubtedly have been greater if there had been no War, is mainly attributable to the various reductions in the charges for foreign telegrams effected during the past ten years. The most important of these were :—

(1) The reduction, from the 1st August 1905, in the rate for private foreign telegrams between India and Europe from R 1-14 to R 1-8 a word.

(2) Reductions of from 7 annas to 13 annas a word in the charges for telegrams between India and China from the 1st June 1905.

(3) The introduction of deferred foreign telegrams at half the rates for private foreign telegrams from the 1st January 1911.

(4) The reduction, from the 1st September 1912, in the rate for private telegrams between India and Ceylon from 8 annas a word to the rate for Indian inland express telegrams.

(5) The reduction in the rate for private telegrams between India and the United Kingdom from R 1-8 to R 1-4 a word, from the 1st May 1914.

(6) The introduction of week-end telegrams from the 1st May 1914. This service has been temporarily suspended except in the case of telegrams sent to or by soldiers, sailors and nurses.

The total number of press foreign telegrams increased from 7,931 containing 589,437 words with a value of R 41,523 in 1905-06 to 14,745 of 1,261,153 words and a value of R 35,368 in 1910-11 and 22,091 telegrams comprising 1,574,566 words and representing a value of R 30,000 in 1915-16. The gradual decrease in value is explained by the following reductions in foreign press telegram charges during the ten years:—

(1) The reduction in the rate between India and the United Kingdom from 12 annas to 9 annas a word from the 1st August 1909.

(2) The reduction in the rate between India and the United Kingdom viâ the Eastern Telegraph Company's lines from 9 to 4 annas a word from the 1st October 1912.

(3) The reduction of 2 annas a word in the rates between India and the United States of America from the 1st May 1914.

(4) The reduction of 4 annas a word in the rates between India and Australia, Tasmania and New Zealand from the 16th March 1915.

Telegrams and telegraphic money order advices exchanged with Ceylon.

67. The number of telegrams originating in India for delivery in Ceylon and vice versâ was 243,339, an increase of 7 per cent. over the previous year.

The number of telegraphic money order advices exchanged with Ceylon was 42,661 as compared with 36,421 in the preceding year, an increase of 17 per cent. The advices exchanged during 1905-06 and 1910-11 numbered 20,854 and 18,455, respectively.

Mixed postal and telegraph service with the United Kingdom.

68. The mixed postal and telegraph service between India and the United Kingdom was temporarily discontinued in January 1916.

Interruptions to telegraphic communication with foreign countries.

69. The cable communication with Europe viâ Suez was maintained without any interruption throughout the year. The routes to Europe viâ Teheran and viâ Turkey have remained interrupted since the 31st July 1914 and the 2nd November 1914, respectively.

Communication with Siam over the Moulmein-Bangkok line viâ Kanburi was interrupted beyond the Indian frontier for 395 hours as compared with 104 hours in the previous year, and within the Indian frontier for 434 hours as against 208 hours in 1914-15. The route viâ Raheng was interrupted for 816 hours beyond India and 146 hours within India as against 381 and 8 hours, respectively, in the foregoing year.

The Bhamo route to China was interrupted beyond India for 619 hours as against 1,201 hours in the preceding year, and within India for 47 hours as against nil in 1914-15.

There was no interruption of communication with Australia viâ Madras.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Progress in wireless system.

70. The number of wireless stations in India and Burma has increased from 9 in 1910-11 to 19 in 1915-16.

The number of messages dealt with by the nine coast stations rose from 54,123 in 1910-11 to 83,719 in 1915-16.

Working of wireless stations.

71. There were no serious breakdowns and all stations continued to work satisfactorily except during periods of atmospheric disturbance.

TELEPHONES.

Progress in provision of telephonic communication.

72. The expansion of the telephone business has been maintained in spite of the War.

New public exchanges were opened at Asansol and Amritsar; and non-departmental systems were installed at Bilaspur, Dewan, Dhubri and Mirzapur. Refitting and overhauling were carried out at Cuttack, Loyabad, Ootacamund, Ranchi and Rangoon. A new Central Battery switchboard of the latest type was installed at Madras, and the Darjeeling system was also improved.

One hundred extra lines were provided for in the Simla automatic exchange, which has developed very rapidly and a further extension is already required urgently.

Telephone statistics.

73. The gross rental of all telephones provided by this Department, excluding those supplied to railways and canals, was R 9,75,983 in the calendar year 1915, against R 8,54,435 during the preceding year and R 5,37,045 in the year 1910, an increase of over 81 per cent. in five years. There are now 226 telephone exchanges owned and maintained by Government of which 61 are worked by this Department, and the number of connections at the end of 1915 was 4,556. The total number of telephones owned by Government and rented to various departments and to the public was 8,115 at the end of 1915, representing an increase of 11 per cent. over the previous year and of 93 per cent. over 1910.

Telephone exchanges established by companies.

74. The systems managed by licensed companies have also progressed greatly. There are now 13 main exchanges with 10,766 connections, the corresponding figures at the end of 1914 being 11 and 9,710, respectively. The increase for the year was 9·2 per cent. and for the last five years 105 per cent. The rental of these systems rose from R 11·1 lakhs in 1910 to R 19·5 lakhs in 1915.

CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE.

Line construction and maintenance.

75. The only important new works carried out during the year were the erection of lines for train control purposes between Allahabad and Tundla and between Bandel and Burdwan for the East Indian Railway and from Sara to Santahar for the Eastern Bengal Railway.

Considerable inconvenience was caused in the Aligarh district of the United Provinces and in the vicinity of Calcutta by frequent thefts of copper wire.

The chief feature in connection with telegraph and telephone line work during the past five years has been the substitution of underground cable for overhead wires. The cable wire mileage which was 628 in 1905-06 and 4,062 in 1910-11 rose to 10,354 in 1915-16.

TELEGRAPH STORES AND WORKSHOPS.

Telegraph stores.

76. The value of the stock at the beginning of the year was R 48,01,436 and stores to the value of R 43,20,889 were received, of which R 13,79,031 represented the value of stores imported from England ready for issue, R 12,02,366 the value of stores transferred from the Telegraph Workshops and R 2,60,923 the cost of stores purchased in India. The issues during the year represented R 46,70,767, of which R 13,61,233 appertained to stores transferred to other Government Departments or sold to the public. The value of the stock in hand on 31st March 1916 was R 44,51,558.

Close attention has been paid to contingent expenditure in recent years and the cost of handling is now only two-thirds of what it was five years ago. This result is due chiefly to the reorganisation of the stores branch in 1911, and to the improved arrangements and methods of handling adopted since that time.

77. During the last five years the Telegraph Workshops have made not-ble progress with regard not only to output but also to the adoption of econo-nical methods of work. Te'eg shops.

The value of the outturn rose from ₨ 9,32,000 in 1910-11 and 12,77,000 in 1914-15 to ₨ 14,73,0C0 in 1915-16, the highest figure yet tained.

The total annual output of castings of all kinds rose from 1,800 tons in)10-11 to 2,400 tons in 1915-16 and it has been found necessary to enlarge id rearrange the tube-making and galvanising shops and to erect a new undry of nearly double the capacity of the old one. By a reorganisation of bour and by improvements in design the expenditure on casting has been duced by about ₨ 15 per ton, resulting in a saving of ₨ 30,000 per inum.

58 steel masts of 264 feet in length and over 30 masts of smaller size have en made since 1910-11 for wireless stations, 14 of the former and seven of ie latter having been turned out during 1915-16. A new pattern of lattice ast designed in the Workshops has also been constructed in large numbers.

In the instrument branch there has been great development, the number the principal instruments manufactured having risen from 3,400 in 1910-11 8,000 in 1915-16. There has been a steady expansion of wireless telegraphy nce 1910 and from that year the Workshops have been engaged constantly in aking wireless apparatus of all kinds. Five complete sets of wireless nding and receiving apparatus were manufactured during 1915-16. Two sets apparatus were manufactured for the Pilot Brigs and four permanent 5-K.W." sets, four smaller permanent sets, and four mobile sets besides rge quantities of auxiliary apparatus were designed and manufactured during ie year.

The number of instruments repaired has also increased in proportion. The ost remarkable expansion in this branch has been in connection with tele-hones and the new and intricate types of Automatic telegraph apparatus.

In 1913-14, the Post Office started a Motor mail service in Calcutta and ie fleet consisting of 8 cars and lorries is maintained and repaired by the Tele-aph Workshops.

The value of raw materials and stores consumed for all purposes was 6,45,500 in 1910-11 and ₨ 11,26,000 in 1915-16, the increase in respect local purchases being from ₨ 2,15,000 to ₨ 3,54,000.

FINANCIAL RESULTS OF THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

78. The Telegraph Accounts for the last three years show the following sults :— Finai of the Depart

	Receipts.	Revenue charges.	Surplus.
13-14	1,55,50,430	1,37,01,971	18,48,459
914-15	1,70,59,934	1,40,66,947	29,92,987
15-16	1,85,77,748	1,42,26,782	43,50,966

* Revised figures.

Revenue charges include gratuities, leave allowances paid out of India and the average capitalised value of pensions paid to telegraph officials, while the receipts include the pro formâ value of news-free and concessional traffic. No credit is, however, taken for the services rendered by the Department in the care and maintenance of large quantities of mobilisation telegraph stores which are kept at the disposal of the military authorities at various centres; nor is any allowance made for the very heavy expenditure, both initial and recurring, that has been incurred in connection with the erection and upkeep of the various wireless stations for which there is practically no monetary return.

The capital account of the Department was increased by R 17,95,925 during 1915-16 and stood at R 12,72,47,181 by the end of the year.

Mr. E. V. Arklie, Deputy Superintendent, Engineering, was severely burnt during the fire which occurred in the Telegraph storeyard at Busra on the 1st January 1916 in a gallant attempt to rescue Mr. Sherratt, Telephone Inspector, who was inside the godowns and lost his life.

Among many others who have performed brave acts, I may mention the case of Jaga Haja, sweeper, who was drowned in an attempt to save a packer who had fallen into the river near Busra. Mr. Shujath Ali was highly commended for the help he rendered to the Medical authorities in conveying wounded men down the river Tigris.

Notwithstanding the heavy demands for men for the various fields of military operations and the extra responsibilities imposed on the Department on account of Censorship and other exigencies of war as well as the abnormal expansion of Government and Press telegraph traffic, the business of the Department proceeded just as smoothly and efficiently as in normal times. To this result the staff of every rank contributed, and it affords me the greatest gratification to record that their loyalty, zeal, and devotion to duty were never more conspicuous than in this year of stress.

It is satisfactory to note that the net surplus of the Department as a whole was the largest on record, the amount being over R 75 lakhs as compared with only about R 60 lakhs for each of the last two years.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

W. MAXWELL,

Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

No. 1378.—A despatch by Lieutenant-General Sir P. H. N. Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., on the operations of Indian Expeditionary Force "D" from the 30th April to the 27th August 1916, is published for general information.

No. 168-33-O., dated 27th August 1916.

From—Lieutenant-General Sir P. H. N. Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., Commanding, Indian Expeditionary Force "D."

To—The Chief of the General Staff, Army Headquarters, India, Simla.

On relinquishing command of Indian Expeditionary Force "D," I have the honour to submit a short despatch, dealing with the operations of this Force since the fall of Kut on April 30th, and also describing in general terms the work carried out at the base and on the line of communications up to the present date.

1. Operations.—No operations on a large scale have been undertaken since the fall of Kut.

On the Tigris line the troops immediately facing the enemy were, with the exception of those actually on duty in the trenches, resting, recuperating and consolidating their position. Fatigues were very heavy, the heat of summer came on rapidly, and a good deal of sickness prevailed.

Nevertheless pressure on the enemy was never relaxed and every opportunity was taken to test his morale by bombardments and minor engagements whenever opportunity offered.

2. During May the pressure of the Russian advance from Persia towards Baghdad must have begun to make itself felt by the enemy, for on the 19th May General Gorringe reported his apparent withdrawal from his advanced positions at and in front of Es Sinn on the right bank, though the Sannaiyat position was still strongly held. This withdrawal was followed up, and by the evening of May 20th, General Gorringe was able to report that, except for small rearguards covering the bridges over the Hai river, the right bank of the Tigris as far as the Hai was clear of the enemy.

3. As the enemy's retention of the Sannaiyat position prevented the passage of our supply ships up the river, our troops operating on the other bank towards the Hai had to depend for food, forage, and in some cases even water, upon land transport.

Consequently General Gorringe's occupation of the positions evacuated in the enemy's retirement could only be gradual, and was largely dependent upon the construction of new roads and a reorganisation of his supply system.

These conditions have continued practically unchanged up to the present date. The abatement of the floods and the intense heat have dried up the ground, caused the marshes to recede and made movement easier. On the other hand water difficulties have increased, and drinkable water away from the river is difficult to find, the soil being usually impregnated with various salts.

The Turks still hold the Sannaiyat position, and have constructed other lines behind it, on the left bank, which they appear to hold in force.

On the right bank their outposts reach the Hai river, which is now fordable. We hold positions from which we dominate the Hai and can deny its passage; while we could, if we pleased, bombard Kut itself.

4. One incident requires mention. On May 20th a strong Russian cavalry patrol of 3 officers and 110 other ranks arrived unexpectedly at Ali Gharbi. The patrol had started from the neighbourhood of Karind and had safely executed an adventurous march of some 200 miles, much of it through the Pusht-i-Kuh hills. The officers came to report themselves to me in person at Basrah, where, by command of His Majesty the King, I decorated them with the Military Cross, in recognition of their exploit, and of this the first meeting of British and Russian troops as allies in the field for 100 years.

The patrol left Ali Gharbi on their return journey on June 4th, and after skilfully surmounting various difficulties succeeded in reaching their main body in safety.

5. On July 11th, General Gorringe was succeeded in the command of the Tigris column by General Maude who has held it up to date.

6. As regards aviation, the superiority of certain of the hostile æroplanes over any of our machines in the matter of speed, combined with a large reduction in the number of our pilots (due to sickness partly attributable to overwork), enabled the enemy in May and June to establish what was very nearly a mastery of the air.

With the arrival of more pilots from home matters improved, until in August three of our machines working together forced the best enemy machine, a Fokker, to descend, seriously damaged, in its own lines.

7. Operations on the Euphrates have been confined to raiding expeditions, carried out in order to punish attacks on our vessels, damage to the telegraph line, or attacks on tribes who are our allies. Ibn Rashid, the leading hostile desert Arab chief, was driven away southwards in July with much diminished prestige. A very successful raid undertaken against Ajaimi, the chief Arab Shaikh hostile to us on the Lower Euphrates, was carried out on August 15th. All these expeditions have been well organised by Major-General Brooking.

8. On the Karun Line the only incidents worthy of note have been attempts by pro-German Persian tribesmen, who had been co-operating with the Turks against the Russians, to escape to their own mountains where they were likely to make mischief. These attempts were frustrated by the 23rd Cavalry operating on the Kharkeh and Ab-i-Diz rivers. Lieutenant-Colonel Younghusband's arrangements were well conceived and resulted in the complete discomfiture of the tribesmen and the capture of their leaders.

9. During the hot season, now drawing to a close, the business of administration and the work of preparation for more active measures during the coming cold weather assumed relatively great importance. I make no excuse therefore for alluding at some length to the work performed.

10. The valuable co-operation of the Royal Navy under Captain W. Nunn has as usual been conspicuous during the period under review. The gunboats stationed on the Euphrates took a leading part in the successful minor operations referred to in paragraph 7 on that river and in the Hammar Lake.

I would also bring to notice the able assistance given by Mr. W. Grant, Admiralty Overseer at Abadan in preparing river craft for service.

11. In my previous despatch I alluded to the difficulties against which the Medical Services have had to contend.

Much thought and hard work have been devoted to overcoming these difficulties and meeting the medical needs of the force. The advance made in this direction is clearly shown by the fact that the total accommodation for sick and wounded in Mesopotamia, which on January 21st (exclusive of Kut) was 4,700 beds and by May 13th had risen to 9,425, amounted on July 1st to 15,745, with 2,700 more in process of organisation.

The advent of the hot weather early in May, with a sudden rise in the temperature, increased the number of sick rapidly. The intense heat was aggravated at the front by the total absence of shade and by the failure of the "shamal" or north wind, which, usually due about the middle of June, did not commence to blow till July 19th. The admissions to hospital then at once lessened and are still decreasing. The majority of the cases are not serious.

An outbreak of cholera occurred at the Tigris front at the end of April, but was got under control in the course of a short time, since when only a small number of isolated cases are reported from time to time from various parts of the country.

I am much indebted to Surgeon-General F. H. Treherne for the valuable assistance he has consistently rendered since his arrival in the country; also to Colonel W. H. Willcox, Consulting Physician, whose high professional knowledge has always been at the service of the force. Much credit is due to the Nursing Sisters, who have carried out their duties with great devotion, and have shown untiring zeal and energy in alleviating the sufferings of those who have passed through their hands.

By the untimely death of Colonel Sir V. Horsley, both the force and the medical profession sustained a severe loss.

12. In the Supply and Transport Corps much sickness followed by invaliding occurred, specially among the senior officers. As a result the duties of the corps fell heavily on those who remained, while the service of supply was much hampered by a shortage of river transport on a rapidly falling river. That the supply of food, clothing, etc., has nevertheless been maintained without serious deficiencies reflects credit upon the work of the corps.

13. During the flood season, from April to June, nine-tenths of the country round Basrah is under water, and in normal years a continuous belt of flood, from 6 to 9 miles wide and from 1 to 4 feet deep, separates the Basrah tract from the higher lying desert country to the south-west.

This flood water in 1915 forced its way into and inundated the Makina Masus Camp area. This year, in order to meet the needs of the constant stream of troops and stores pouring into Basrah, it was imperative to safeguard from floods the ground space required for camps, hutting, store depôts and additional hospital accommodation. This was done by constructing, first, a main protective embankment or "bund" from the Tigris at Magil to the higher ground at Shaiba. This "bund" was 11 to 12 miles long, and completely shut off the belt of flood water above referred to.

It was supplemented by a second bund, which branched off from it about 2 miles from the river and was carried to the neighbourhood of the Zubair Gate of Basrah, some 3 miles. A series of smaller subsidiary bunds was constructed along the river front and the intermediate creeks. The whole system, covering a total length of some 20 miles, safeguards an area of some 48 square miles in all and of 1½ square miles at Magil and Makina Masus, which has been adopted as the main camp for troops in and near Basrah. Wharves have been constructed and ocean-going steamers are now able to come alongside and unload.

A large amount of hutting for hospitals and troops has been erected, providing accommodation for 8,700 sick and 15,000 troops; water supplies for the troops have been installed at Basrah and Amarah, and many important miscellaneous works have been carried out.

The amount of valuable work brought to completion reflects credit on Major-General J. C. Rimington, Chief Engineer, Colonel E. R. B. Stokes-Roberts, Director of Works, and those serving under them.

14. Two railways are now in course of construction. Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. White and his assistants are pushing on both lines with much zeal and energy in spite of considerable difficulties in the transport of materials.

15. A new powerful wireless station has been installed. Work was commenced on the 10th February 1916 and completed on the 25th August 1916. The rapid erection of this station is due to the energetic co-operation of the Director-General, Posts and Telegraphs, India, to Mr. E. L. Bagshawe, Director of Telegraphs, Force "D," and especially to the ability and energy of Mr. J. G. P. Cameron, Assistant Superintendent of Telegraphs, the Engineer in charge of the construction work.

16. The Veterinary Services under Lieutenant-Colonel W. S. Anthony have done much to maintain the animals of the force in good condition in spite of hard work and unavoidable short commons in certain cases.

17. The administration of the Remount Services, the care and training of the horses reflects credit upon Captain J. F. H. Anderson, Army Remount Department.

18. I am anxious to place on record my deep sense of the good effect produced throughout this Force by the Army Chaplains of all denominations, whose devotion to duty and contempt of danger while performing it deserve the highest commendation.

19. Like other Departments, the Royal Indian Marine has suffered severely from sickness and invaliding especially among its superior officers. The rapid growth of its duties may be gathered from the fact that whereas in January 1916 there were 19 permanent and 21 temporary officers and 525 other ranks employed, by July the number had risen to 40 permanent and 163 temporary officers and 3,981 other ranks besides native labourers. The necessity for assimilating this large influx of newly appointed officers and men threw a heavy strain on the permanent cadres, who were also faced with many unforeseen demands. That under these conditions its duties have been carried out with a considerable measure of success is distinctly creditable to the service.

20. The thanks of the whole force in Mesopotamia are specially due to the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, the British Red Cross Society, including its Indian branch, and the Young Men's Christian Association.

The two former through their representative, Lieutenant-Colonel J. Gould, have devoted their resources to supplementing the medical appliances and comforts provided by the state for the care of the sick and wounded. All officers and men who have passed through the hospitals at any time would desire to express their gratitude to these Societies.

The Young Men's Christian Association, on the other hand, through its able officials, among whom I would specially mention Mr. L. A. Dickson, Revd. B. H. McLain, Revd. T. S. Riddle, and Mrs. Webley, has contributed most materially to the well-being, physical and moral, of the troops in general outside the hospitals in a manner deserving of the highest admiration.

21. The appointment of Sir G. C. Buchanan to the Force as Director-General of Port Administration and River Conservancy has been of undoubted value. Owing to the difficulty experienced in obtaining certain stores and equipment from India and Burma, and to sickness among the supervising staff, the work of developing the Port of Basrah, and of dredging and improving the water communications generally, was at first delayed. It is now, however, well in hand and the results already achieved are sufficient to show that the projected measures will have far reaching effect on the business of the port and our all important river communications. Sir G. Buchanan especially desires to mention the assistance he has received from Lieutenant J. G. Grant, R. E.

22. My thanks are due to Captain the Honourable Malik Sir Umar Hayat Khan for many valuable services rendered in connection with the Army of Occupation: also to 2nd-Lieutenant E. Ezra, I. A. R. O., attached General Headquarters, who held his fast motor launch at all times at my disposal.

23. The able services of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir P. Z. Cox and the officers of the Political Department, to which I referred in my previous despatch, have continued to be of high value to the state during the period under review.

24. The administration of the lines of communication has throughout been extremely arduous and difficult; to Major-General G. F. MacMunn, Inspector-General of Communications, and his staff, I am greatly indebted for the manner in which they have handled the many intricate problems of supply and demand with which they have been constantly confronted. The administration of the base depôts under Lieutenant-Colonel d'A. C. Brownlow, Base Commandant, has been carried out in a highly satisfactory manner.

25. In conclusion I desire to bring again to your notice the able and devoted assistance that I have at all times received from the general and administrative staffs at General Headquarters and from my personal staff, to all of whom I am deeply indebted. In this connection I would especially mention Major-General M. Cowper and Major-General A. W. Money, heads respectively of the administrative and general staffs, Brigadier-General C. B. S. F. Shore, Sub-Chief (now officiating as Chief) of the general staff, Lieutenant-Colonels W. H. Beach and H. R. Hopwood of the general staff and Captain L. G. Williams, Assistant Military Secretary. The work of all these officers has been of high value to the state.

The clerical establishment have one and all shown untiring zeal and energy in the performance of their arduous and responsible duties.

26. I have, in my previous despatch, submitted a list of officers and men whose services were deserving of reward. That despatch covered a period of active operations and the bulk of the names were those of officers and men who had distinguished themselves actively at the front.

I now submit a list composed chiefly of those officers and others who deserve commendation and reward for services, less interesting, but equally essential to the well-being of this force, rendered in connection with its administration.
